NOVELIST AND BONIFACE.

THE BURIATER UPON WHOSE ROBARDS A PAITE IS POURDED.

Theore. Keeper-Joseph Smith Transmet. His Production Into the Book of Mormon. A Graduate of Dartmooth College.

Amity, Pa, Correspondence to Pittsburg Post Amity, Pa, Correspondence to Pittsburg Post.

A neglected grave, marked by a fragment of broken subdatone, ofth be found in Amity's old cemetery, where three quarters of a century ago the dead were laid beneath the sod from which had hardly faded the foot prints of the Monongabeles, the Mingose and the Shawness. Yet around this uncared-for tomb centres much of interest to the historian. The oblipped and mutilated stone indicates the burial place of Rev. Solomon Spaulding. It was in Amity that he died, leaving an unpublished romanos, "The spanding. It was in Amily that he died, leaving an unpublished romance, "The Manuscript Found," which, falling into the hands of Joseph Smith, became the scriptures of the Mormon church, the so-called "Hook of Mormon." hands of Joseph Smith, became the soriptures of the Mormon church, the so-called "Hook of Mormon."

The Rev. Solomon Spaulding was born in Connecticut in 1761, graduated in the class of 1785, Dartmouth college, and immediately entered the ministry of the Congregational church. After preaching several years his health failed and he was forced to abandon his sacred calling and go into business in New York state. His enterprises were all unsuccessful and in a few years he had failed again, this time to meet paper failing due. He then removed to Conneaut, Ohic, and embarked again in an unsuccessful business venture. While residing here he began writing the mystic romance which Joseph Smith is known to have used so freely. Removing to Pittaburg in 1812 he left his manuscript at a printing office, where it remained unpublished for several years. In the meantime a journeyman printer, Sidney Rigdon, made a copy of the novel which, through him, fell into Smith's hands, and was afterwards transmitted into the "Book of Mormon." The historical evidences supporting this is as nearly perfect as could be wished, and so here can be little doubt as to the conclusion. Spaulding moved from Pittsburg to Amity in 1814, where he died October 20, 1816. None of the inhabitants of the village can date their personal reminiscences back as far as the death of the famous divina. Beveral years ago the last link was removed in the death of Joseph Miller, a highly respected citizen. In his early days he was well soquainted with the Spaulding family, and often heard portlons of "The Manuscript Found" read by the author. It was Mr. Miller's lot to make the ceffin in which Rev. Spaulding was buried. The tombstone has entirely disappeared, and nothing but a small chung of sandstone that once marked the foot of the grave can now be seen. Even this is fast disappeared, and nothing but a small chung of sandstone that once marked the foot of the grave can now be seen. Even this is fast disappeared, even on this is fast disappearing. Every tourist fe

The people of Amity, of course, venerate Spaulding's memory. It is traditionally held by them that he was a short, "equat" man, compelled to move around on cruiches and always in bad health. He was the lit and always in bad health. He was the literary lion of the piace and was eulogized by everybody. Some rather wild views are clained to have been promulgated by him. Spaulding's worldly affeirs were in a bad shape while he lived here. The novel doubtless was written with a view to pecuniary compensation. He supported his family by keeping a hostsiry, then quite famous, across from the present hotel. He was an affable landlord, had a good trade and, so mays tradition, kept for sale an excellent brand of whiskey. The old tavera building is now occupied as a residence, but it bears many of the marks of time. At the death of the novelist, the family moved to New York, and alterwards to Massachusetts.

THE WHEAT OF THE WORLD

I idia's Competition With This Country-Labor More and There,

Mr. J. R. Dooge, statistician of the department of agriculture, in an article entitled be published with the department's August crop report, says: "The thicial record of crop report, mays: "The sificial record of imports of wheat into the United Kingdom for the first half of the present years shows a large increase in the proportion furnished by the United States—68 per cent against 54 per cent. In the first six months of 1886 and 1885. Counting flour as wheat, the proportion is 73.5 per cent. against 60.8 in a similar period of 1886, and 60.6 in 1885. There is a great reduction in resemble from Russia. is a great reduction in receipts from Russia, a decrease from India of 20 per cent as compared with the first half of last year, and a musclately relieved by Shiloh's Cure. Sold by H. S. Cochran, druggist, Nos. 137 and 139 North Queen St. Lancaster, Pa. (4) from this country is 8 cents per bushel more than from India and 5 cents more than Rus-sian wheat. 'It is higher than that of any non-European country, and yet the quantity furnished is twice as much as that supplied by all other countries. This is a satisfactory especially as the price averaged 5 cents higher than for a similar period last year. While India is the principal competitor of the United States in the world's markets, her importance as a competitor is greatly overrated. The occurrence of a Jamine yearwould reduce to zero her exports. So fixed are the industrial usages of the people that great enlargement of the wheat area is next to an impossibility; there has been no material increase as a result of the exportation of the surplus of the last 10 years."

The present indications point to a more than average European crop. It was late mearly everywhere, berhaps two wesks on an average at the beginning of June, but in growing condition, and its advancement stroch has been rapid. The Russian and Austrian crops especially are of fine promise.
That of Spain is medicore. In thermany, France and England reports are generally favorable. The lutian crop, harvested a few months ago, will be 20,000,000 bushels less than the preceding, say 238,000,000 bushels.
Australesia will produce probably 15,000,000 bushels. The product of the world promises to be quite as much as for each of the two preceding harvesta.

The competition of India with the United States in the markets of Europe has led Mr.
Dodge to make a careful study of the distribution and conditions of labor in that country as compared with the United States. The population of India in 1881 was 253,982,505, or about five times that of the United States in an area less than half that of the United States, (oat including the Indian Tearitory or Alexka) The proportion of workers to the whole romeir due of India is 46 per cent.
This difference is manily to the presure of poverty in India which forces its dense population to begin isooring at an earlier age than children are required to work in the United States. In dia is a very old country, with centuries of development in industry and great skill in certain lines of artisan effort, and yet nearly two thirds of her laborers are employed in spricultural india in a very old country, with centuries of our proposition of the surple and protion of the very old country and prost skill in certain lines of artisan effort, and yet
