

The Daily Intelligencer.

LANCASTER, MARCH 7, 1888. THE DAILY INTELLIGENCER is published every morning except on Sundays and public holidays... Price, only $1.00 per annum, in advance.

Mr. Randall's Bill. Mr. Randall is preparing a tariff bill of his own for the consideration of Congress; which shows that he considers that the bill presented by his party associates needs too much reconstruction...

We Look at It Otherwise. An iron-master friend, whom we highly esteem and whose judgment is ordinarily good, sends us occasionally an editorial utterance of the "New York Journal of Commerce" upon "strike" issues, marking them in the margin with his warm approval...

The Journal of Commerce is an ancient paper of high renown in mercantile circles; but it does not have workingmen for its readers, nor does it ever hear their voice from afar. The editor sits in his easy chair, and contemplates the striking laborer as would a machine that has refused to go to the work of its master...

Of course to such argument no reply is possible. It would be useless to demand arbitration of the man who considers himself a judge and a criminal. This is the feeling of many men who are placed in control of the great railroads of the country...

The Journal of Commerce follows up its liberal views on the Reading strike with like manner of comment upon that of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers in the West; and it trends into a fever of denunciation when it is treated of the rumor that all the engineers in the country may leave their levers to make good the demand of their order. The people will "show these arrogant despots," quoths the editor, "that they have passed the limits of tolerance."

the Burlington by the Brotherhood, it is that all its engine drivers shall receive like wages; in which demand there seems to us to be nothing unreasonable...

And we understand further that this is a contest to break down the Brotherhood. In this aspect, we are unable to see wherefore they may not, if they find it necessary, use their power to stop every locomotive wheel in the country, until their just demand is complied with...

It is safe to say that no man in the Republican party to-day has attained higher position therein with less reason for it than John J. Ingalls, the presiding officer of the Senate. His name is appended to no measure of statesmanship, and he is without a trace of a military record...

When Napoleon in a certain great crisis of his life was surrounded by an enthusiastic crowd, he grimly observed that the same multitude would with equal equality have attended his funeral. So it is with Ingalls. The news that he is to speak always fills the Senate galleries...

Those in Ingalls' own party may be led by the mad falsehood of these remarks to inquire of themselves, "Is this statesmanship?" Ingalls probably now regrets the extreme partisan bitterness to which he was carried in his speech...

In the last number of our reports on the Gales of Christiansa, Norway, we announced that M. E. Meyer, of that city, has discovered "a new, simple and cheap ingredient, which neither changes the taste of the milk nor is inimical to health, for conserving milk in a fresh condition for months without being hermetically sealed."

There will be many tears dropped on the grave of Louis M. Alcott, whose books delighted and instructed the children of the generation that has now grown to manhood and womanhood. Her father, Amos Bronson Alcott, the poet philosopher of Concord...

COAL is dropping. Better lots than ever. SUPERINTENDENT BROWN'S annual report of the soldiers' orphan schools is printed in the current number of the Pennsylvania School Journal. It gives a history of the schools, and a list of the names of those who have been discharged...

Oil jumped from 93 1/2 cents to $1.45 on Tuesday, and the time taken was just long enough to bully squeeze those who had sold short.

WILFRED BLUNT has been released from Tullamore jail. THOMAS HARRIS, of Philadelphia, left an estate of $2,225,000 to a widow and seven children.

HENRY ECKEL, president of the Wilmington city council died Tuesday afternoon of heart disease, aged 72 years. MRS. WILLIAM M. HUNTER, of Dayton, Ohio, formerly Miss Alice Troyer, of Lancaster, is in this city visiting friends.

MISS CHARLOTTE FISKE BATES, the poetess, delivered the following epigrammatic lines in appropriate 72 years of age. You would expect in two words both epigram and a poetess.

COL. LOUIS WATKINS, general inspector of the Philadelphia and Lancaster Railroad of Pennsylvania, has submitted his report to Adjutant General Hastings. It shows the total number of sharpshooters to be 312; total number of muskets, 1,200; and total number of rifles, 1,000.

CATHARINE KAAS, of Philadelphia, left $1,000 each to the Hebrew Portuguese congregation, Mikveh Israel, and the Lancaster Home Association, and Jewish Hospital Association, and $300 each to the Ezra Northampton Lying-in Association, United Hebrew Children, and other charitable institutions.

Physicians, Lawyers and Judges are Men who are entitled to the respect of the public. It is not their duty to engage in party politics, and it is not their duty to follow in an effort to traduce the name of another.

But if there are any cracks, cuts, galls or wounds of any kind, Veterinary Hospital is warranted to cure. Never fails. $1.00 a box. All drug stores.

touches of sun, air, or foliage—your own to enjoy? You sit in the waiting rooms, are you any less at home than in your own library? This freedom is the store charm. We mean to make it more charming. Some charms are spoiled when mentioned.

Isn't this strange talk about a retail store? Perhaps you never thought of it before. But it's true. A Spring-like freshness in the Soutache Braided Robes opened yesterday. They'll soon be making the streets brighter and livelier.

200 reams Commercial and Octavo Note Paper, cream, heavy linen stock, ruled; in 1/4 ream boxes, with square envelopes to match, $1 a ream, 5c a quire. A fair price would be $2.40 a ream, 12c a quire.

Our latest in box papers are "Milrose," "Van Dyke," "Rose Lawn," and "Little Hoffman." Each name cloaks cuteness and oddity.

A VIEW OF LOW LIFE. Not from a Moral Standpoint, but in an Entirely Physical Sense. When the pulse beats wildly, when the energy is gone; when the appetite is weak and sleep uncertain, then the body is in a condition of what is called "low life."

There are no higher scientific authorities than these that speak volumes for the pure and valuable quality of the whisky which is so wonderfully popular. Beware of all bottled whiskeys which may be offered you, except Duffy's.
