The Allentown Postoffice.

The president says that there is no need of a hundred thousand dollar postoffice at Allentown, where the rent now paid for postoffice accommodation is but $1,300 and where no other United States office needs to be housed. The president seems to have good ground for thinking that a hundred thousand dollars will not be profitably invested in Allentown.

The case of Lancaster is different ; the town is larger, the United States offices to be accommodated are more numerous and the rentals now paid are greater The president's Allentown logic should induce him to sign the Lancaster bill, and we expect him to do so. We can consider the Allentown case and sympathize with the Allentown people without danger of being thought to be affected by a danger signal raised to our own shallop.

In contemplating Allentown, we gaze upon the picturesque figure of Brother Sowden, the valiant representative of a Democratic district. He is a Democratic congressman, a comparatively rare bird in Pennsylvania fields. He is a good congressman; a rarity in every field. Mr. Sowden is earnest, independent, honest and wise. He is a man and a congressman worthy of the distinguished consideration of the president; particularly of a Democratic president.

He does not seem to have been favored with any startling amount of it in this case. He went up last week to see the chief magistrate, with a hundred or more of his Allentown constituents, who acquainted the president with its beauties and virtues; and Mr. Sowden says that he was told that if anything should appear to dim the chances of the Allentown postoffice he would be notified: and so he was; when the veto message was read.

Some malicious people think that the president slew Congressman Sowden's pet lamb because he is recalcitrant upon the tariff question; but we do not believe anything of the kind. The president would have his hands more than full if he undertook to slay all the Democrats who do not think as he does about the tariff : and Mr. Sowden is not the style of man upon whom that sort of argument would be effective. The fact doubtless 1: that the president considers the position he takes in the Allentown postoffice care to be sound, and to be such as public sentiment will approve; and he may not have been sorry to emphasize it by taking it at the expense of a Democratic district and congressman; whereby his independence and sincerity will be displayed with

That is all right for the president ; but bad for the Democratic district and congressman; and probably sympathy and good will for Mr. Sowden will persuade two-thirds of the congressman to help him to his postoffice despite the veto and its logic. We concede that the logic is sound; but confound the logic that deprives the good people of Allentown of what they have been fondly awaiting We believe we would vote them their postoffice.

Amendments in Order.

The general debate on the tariff is to last several days longer and to be illuminated with the speeches of the big party guns; then the consideration of the Mills bill is to begin in fact, and from appearances it will be long continued. The Democratic members have been invited in caucus to present any amendments they may desire to offer, to the Democratic members of the ways and means committee, for the consideration and action of that committee. A large number have been already proposed; and the variety of opinion indicated shows that there is going to be a lively time when the House gets to close quarters in debating the clauses of the

We note that Mr. Holman, of Indiana, wants the duty on sugar reduced onehalf, and that on rice and pictures and coal retained; which seems to show much wrongheadedness. Mr. Chipman, of Michigan, thinks so, for he proposes to put coal and rice on the free list, while keeping the present duty on wood pulp and window glass. Mr. McAdoo, of New Jersey, wants coal on the free list : and also carpet wools, sait, goat hair, timber, building stones and chemicals. Their heads are more level than Mr. Holman's; save that we do not understand Mr. Chipman's argument for protected wood pulp.

It will be a great blessing when the useless speech-making business is through and Congress gets down to business on the tariff bill. It seems very silly to spend so much time in vain repetition upon the general subject of the tariff; but it seems impossible to get any work out of Congress until a general deliverance has been had of the members' bellies full of political economy.

Too Many Doctors.

The American Medical association, in session in Cincinnati, heartily applauded and will no doubt act upon suggestions of President Garnett, looking to the more careful guarding of the means of entering the medical profession. A curious clause in the instructions to the committee, laid down by Garnett, is the following: "That each one of said committee, or a majority thereof, shall attend the session of their respective legislatures, or from time to time as their duties may require, for the purpose of using all honorable means looking to the reduction of the number of medical schools in the United states, and a consequent diminution in the annual number of medical gradu-

Can it be that even the profession admit that we have too many doctors for public safety, or are they only considering the evils of a division of profits among too many? It is true that the president goes on to insist upon an improvement in the quality of doctors turned out by the medical schools that may be permitted to continue operations, but this demand for "a diminution of annual graduates," stands by itself without regard to quality. It is precisely similar to the efforts of trades' unions to control the number of apprentices, and so force up the value of their own labor. The demand for a term of four years' study before the granting of a diploma, and the other suggestions, to insure competency, are all worthy of hearty public support. Let us have our doctors thoroughly trained, and the practice of medicine carefully guarded from ignorant and reckless quacks; but if every boy in the country should express a desire and show his ability to become a physician, we would calmly stand aside and await the extermination of the race without a word of protest.

We could not find a grander climax for our destiny than by courting the madness of too much wisdom in one of the noblest of the learned professions. Ruise the standard, endow scholarships, found prizes and then open the college doors and let the deluge come.

Gold was the name of the woman who windled old Joel Kirkbride, of Camden, N.IJ., out of $10,000; and he now thinks that all is not gold that giltters.

An interesting gathering will be that in Berlin next April when there will be a Universal Exposition for the Prevention of Accidents. It is to be representative of apparatus and appliances invented "to protect workingmen against the dangers which threaten them in industrial occupations, and from the knowledge and intro duction of which a reduction in the number of industrial accidents may be expected. The exposition does not aim simply to promote a knowledge of the apparatus and appliances designed to prevent accidents, but also to stimulate an interest in their further developments, and to furnish the inventors of similar contrivances an opportunity to demonstrate their practical utility." In each country there will be original inventions, and where protective sppliances have been brought into use improvements will have been made upon them. Some also will have been known in one country and not in another. By bringing all these together and comparing their practical utility, much interesting information will be gained, by which inventors may profit and employers of labor be benefited.

READING's board of trade would like to have the National Guard encamp within its precincts, which raises the question whether the militiaman on soldier duty and with an irrepressible tendency to "let 'er go, Gallagher," is a desirable acquisition in summer time to any city.

THE air brakes of the limited express train east on the Pennsylvania railroad refused to work near Gailitzin the other day, and the train ran sixty-five miles at our, instead of twenty-three miles, the chedule time. A disastrous wreck was only averted by the hand brakes. A brake that may fall when most needed will not fill the bill for the traveling public of this progressive century.

THE New Orleans Progress, a paper con ducted by colored men, says that the recent election has completely broken up the color line in Louisians, many colored mer having voted for the Democratic candidate for governor. Letters to Northern papers from various sources confirm this state ment and the names of prominent colorse men are given who "flopped" to the Democracy. This is in line with the warning given by Bishop Brown, of the African Methodist church, who is quoted by the Pittsburg Post as follows: "There is one lose sight of, and that is that many colored people will cast their ballots next Novemfor the party which champions the cause of Prohibition. Then there are others who will vote for Mr. Cleveland, and still others who would vote the Democratic ticket no matter who the nominee. All in all, I think there will be serious defection from the ranks of the grand old party, and that nothing but the hardest work and greatest judgment will put it through the campaign with victory upon its banners."

INGALLS is wanted for president by the Kansas Republicans. He would be pie for Cieveland.

WILLY WALLY PHELPS, the banged hair statesman of New Jersey, is named for president by the New Jersey Republicans ; which means that he is to be a stalking horse for Blaine.

THE best solution of the labor problem is cooperation between employer and employe. John Wanamaker, the Philadel phia merchant, has shown that it is practicable by distributing one hundred thousand dollars of the profits of last year among his employes. Mr. Wanamaker rightly believes that the enthusiasm of the employe is the best lever to boom business, and suct enthusiasm can only be generated by generous treatment of him. It is safe to say that there will be no strikes in Wans maker's store this year.

It can be given in a cup of coffee or tea without the knowledge of the person taking it: is absolutely harmless, and will effect a permanent and speedy cure, whether the ratient is a moderate drinker or an alcoholic wreck. Thousands of drunkards have been made temperate men who have taken Golden, Specific in their coffee without their knowledge, and to-day believe they quit drinking of their own free will. If NEVER FAILS. The system once impregnated with the Specific, it becomes an utter impossibility for the liquor appetite to exist. For sale by CHAS. A.
