Our Lamb.

The president has dealt more kindly with Lancaster than with Allentown, and the difference in the situation in the two places justifies the discrimination made in our favor. Lancaster is not only a much larger city than Allentown, but it has more federal offices, and larger rentals are paid by the United States. We were fully entitled to a $100,000 public building upon the score of economy in the saving of rents. We would have been entitled to a more expensive building, if we had been dealt with as liberally as other places have been in the past. Reading, for instance, has received $180,-000 and Harrisburg had something like a quarter million, we believe. The latter appropriation, however, was got by the skilled hand of the aged Winnebago, who plead for it as his "pet lamb." Reading got her second appropriation probably while the president was busy thinking about something else; as did also, doubtless, the little towns through the country, much smaller than Allentown, that got public buildings, though she did not. We hope Congressman Sowden will have more influence with Congress than he seems to have had with the president.

The $100,000 appropriated for Lancaster will be amply sufficient to provide the needed building. The ground required can readily be had upon a side street for from $15,000 to $30,000, according to location and quantity. And a side street near the centre is just about as good as the main street for this use. There is no need to have the postoffice in the busiest street. It needs only to be near the centre of population and busiand close to the railroad depots. The latter is an important matter, because of the saving of time in the closing of the mails. Many sufficiently suitable sites are suggested on Orange and Chestnut, Prince and Duke streets, and the choice of location will probably be made on one of these streets and in the blocks which they bound.

The question as to how much vacant ground should surround the building will have an important influence in the melection of the site : it will be desirable to have as much as we can afford to pay for, and leave enough for a handsome building. It will be wiser to put the money in ground, where trees and flowers may grow, than in cut stone for dust and dirt to rest upon. We confess to discontent with the cut stone commonness and unmeaningness of public buildings and to a preference for the structure of burned clay, as more enduring, more in- New York. beautiful in color, and, in these days, quite as handsome in ornamentation.

A Good Illustration.

The failure of the great San Francisco house of William T. Coleman & Co. is mainly caused, according to its statement, by the loss of value to its borax mines caused by the threatened removal of the duty on boracic acid by the Mills bill. These mines, which were about to be sold for $2,000,000, became unsalable at once, their value being dependent upon the duty, for the reason that all the borax mine owners in this country united some months ago in an agreement to limit the total production to 3,800 tons annually, of which the Coleman mines were assigned 1,200 tons; though they had capacity sufficient to supply all the demand of the country, if not of the world. The price of borax went up from five and a-half to eight cents per pound. The duty on the commercial article is four cents, and its European value five cents per pound. So the home price was forced up by the agreement nearly to the point which would permit importation. The tariff on borax was for the sole benefit of home owners of mines, who divided the trade between them. Coleman's mines got a value through the tariff of $2,000,000, when free competition would have made them of little worth.

Nothing could better illustrate the plane upon which tariff reduction should take place than these facts. They should make it clear to everyone that a natural product of the soil ought not to be made valuable by law. Why should a valueless borax mine be made salable at $2,-000,000 to its fortunate finder, by law The old idea used to be that all minerals belonged to the state, though nowadays the finders are allowed to claim them; but, in addition to this, should the law tax the people that the discovery may be made valuable to the discoverers? Surely everyone can see that this is folly; and here is shown to be the true foundation of tariff reform. Minerals of all kinds. the products of the soil, which require little labor for their extraction, should not be protected. If they are not worth taking out under natural conditions, they should stay in until they are.

Foxey Boulanger.

General Boulanger has taken a very determined stand against his friends who asued an appeal in his name for the suffrages of the people in the department of Isere. He even threatens to prosecute persons who venture to use his name as a candidate, and shows himself well able to save himself from his friends. His recent triumph gave him quite enough of that kind of glory for the time being, and to essay to repeat it in other departments would only be to risk failure without chances of compensating advantage. It is safer to allow his friends to take the risk in their own names and he will reap the credit of victory while saddling them with the responsibility of defeat.

He seems to be closely following the keen policy of the great Napoleon in this respect. If his friends are successful the stches will read, "Boulangist deputies have been elected;" if they fail, " Messrs. Blank and So-and-So have been defeated." He takes no unnecesary risks, assumes all the glory and waits. Meanwhile the various parties will try to find out what kind of constisutional revision each of them thinks best, and when they begin to squabble over the matter, Boulanger will be heard from once more. Fortunately there are plenty of strong men eagerly watching the drift of affairs from every quarter of the political compass, and there is ground for hope that the conflicting ambitions of imperialists, royalists and Boulangists may continue to meet and balance so equally that the republic may be pre Lancaster's Wealth.

From the statement compiled from the ssessors' books in the county commissioners' office, we publish to-day an interesting review of the wealth of the great county in which we live. It is seen that there is a total real estate valuation of $84,259,193. Of this amount nearly oneseventh represents the city's share. In the city the Second and Sixth wards together make more than one-third of the city's total.

In money at interest, there is a total of $25,009, 206, about one-sixth of which is the city's part therein. In this showing the Second ward equals the sum of returns from the First, Third, Fourth, Fifth and Seventh wards, which illustrates the great wealth that lies between the boundaries of East King and East Chestnut streets.

The horses and mules of the county aggregate in value $1,809,778, and the cattle $626,529. The exhibit is very interesting and strongly presents the great wealth which lies within our borders.

ALLENTOWN WAS SO DEAR and IS NOW 10

WE were told that Alabama and Georgia were going to fire Mr. Cleveland overboard, because he was too much of a free trader It was an absurd charge, and was so con sidered by the state conventions of these two states, which were for Cleveland might and main. We see no rift in the Democratic lute in the Solid South.

MARYLAND, Vermont, Michigan, Tennessee and Alabama all answered Thursday the Democratic roll call and the response was "Cleveland."

NATURAL GAS has just given another powerful illustration of the fact that it is a good servant but bad master. The handomest church edifice in Buffalo, St. Paul's Episcopal cathedral, has been using natural gas in its furnace. On Thursday an explosion occurred and the $250,000 building is now in ruins. It may not be as convenient or as cheap to burn coal as to use natural gas, but the former practice is not attended with such exciting experiences.

HENRY E. DIXEY, who has taken quick bound into fame by his play of "Adonis," is said to have lost $18,000 at poker to one Andrew J. Dam in New York. It is very doubtful if Dixey ever had that much money to lose. If the story is true, it shows how a fool and his money cannot keep company very long.

MR. HEISTAND has not been one of the talkers of Congress, but the success of the public building measure proves him to have been a doer.

THE New York World was five years old on Thursday, and it recalls the fact that the circulation for Sunday, May 20, 1883, wrs 16,750; for Sunday, March 11, 1888, 286,-130-an increase of 1,700 per cent. Mayor Hewitt in a Huff Mayor Howitt withdrew from the electrical board in New York on Thursday in a huff. One of the members, Mr. Gibbons, at the board meeting at the mayor's office made some sharp attacks on the mayor for not doing his sworn duty. At this the mayor exclaimed : "Under the circumstances I think that it is a direct insuit to me, and hereafter I shall decline to sit with me, and hereafter I shall decline to sit with men who don't seem to have the first common instinct of gentlemen. This thing has become a public scandal. I have a duty to perform, of course, but when every set is opposed, and I am'insulted, I don't propose to stand it. I was piaced on this commission without my consent. I now leave my seat for good." With this the mayor left the meeting and went to his desk. The commissioners got even by adopting a resolution calling the mayor a liar for several statements he had made.
