Mr. Scott's Speech.

Mr. William L. Scott has delivered in Congress a carefully prepared essay upon the revenue, which occupied over two hours in the delivery and which attracted the attention of the members.

For this is all that the president has demanded. He has spoken fair words of the doctrine of free trade, but has conceded that it was not a doctrine to practice in this country, at this time.

But we do not see how this puts out Mr. Randall or any other Democrat who is ready to favor a reduction of tariff duties.

For this is all that the president has demanded. He has spoken fair words of the doctrine of free trade, but has conceded that it was not a doctrine to practice in this country, at this time.

Nevertheless, as he proceeds in his essay, Mr. Scott declares that he has examined and approved every word of the Mills bill, which does not, he says, reduce the present protective duties more than 8 per cent.

We quite agree with Mr. Scott that the Mills bill is not a free trade measure; but we do not share his surprise that he should be called a free trader, after declaring that protective duties are unconstitutional.

Mr. Scott denounces Mr. Randall's tariff bill in strong terms and declares that it increases instead of lowering duties. We agree with him that Mr. Randall's bill is mishapen, though we do not understand that it increases duties generally.

We do not agree with Mr. Scott that the purpose of Mr. Randall's bill was "to obstruct the Democratic party." We believe that Mr. Randall is sincere in his opinion and has at least as great devotion, as Mr. Scott, to the Democratic party, to which he has given the energy of his life.

Mr. Scott had much more justification for his assault upon Mr. Carnegie, as a poor friend of the workmen, of whom he assumes to be the friend, but whose wages he reduces while making a large profit out of their labor.

It was a fossiliferous action worthy of the days when newspapers did not flourish, and when book learning was confined to the clergyman and physician. It is written that "the truth shall make you free."

PHILADELPHIA stockkeepers are feeling the weight of Director Stokely's new broom, and the street sign nuisances are going.

Give the Board of Trade its due credit. The schedule of the Quarryville railroad has been changed.

Another man has been killed by the electric light wire. This time the victim was T. H. Murray, a fireman for the Brush company in New York.

There is Mr. Randall, who has been a Democrat greatly honored by his state, and four years ago proposed by it for the presidency, who has largely been boss of the state, and who has largely been boss of the state.

Very well, indeed. If he does not represent the state's opinion, we agree with Squire Magee that he ought not to be sent to St. Louis as a delegate.

vention would have sent him to the national convention and left Mr. Scott at home perhaps. Now the see-saw may be the other way; but we are excusable, perchance, for not knowing it before the state convention meets; at which, for aught that we know, Mr. Randall may be on top again.

for being hemstitched on both ends. Simply more stylish, $5 a pair! You pay nothing for the hemstitching; very little for the linen. Plump 2 1/2 yards square. Hardish, round thread, not overly white. French. The last-but-one little jag of these $5 a pair Sheets hardly stayed long enough to be counted.

Southwest of center. Henry Heath's Hats. Last lot for the season is in—Cassimere, Silk, Derby. The most famous Hats in the world. Every other Hat shape for men or boys that the best Hat store should have.

Millinery stuffs and all that goes into the make-up of women's and children's headgear—untrimmed shapes, ribbons, feathers, gew-gaws. And a room full of trimmed things to get hints from, if you please.

6,060 pairs Men's full regular made Half Hose at 12 1-2 cents will be sold here in the next few days. Mode and gray grounds, with neat stripes. They were imported by a New York house to sell for double 12 1-2 cents. We could get 25 cents for them; no, we sell as we buy.

On Saturdays and Mondays Special Novelties for Ladies come to the front at the stationery counter. Odd, pretty, useful. Fair, sample brick to-day.
