Chock Fall of Whisky.

Daniel Burke and James Featheralt are names of two "soaks" who were ted up on Orange street this morning while full to the neck with tad whisky, by blos Barnholt and Wittick. They were playing the deaf and dumb racket, on which they secured some money. Barke had a slate under his coat which here the inscription : "I am deaf and anot hear. Please help me." Featherall working the dumb end of the two so roould show a deaf and dumb front. At the station house neither of the men were dumb nor deaf and they carred each other for their ignorance in getting might. Burke could hear anything that made a stump speech. Alderman Deen will investigate them later.
