In off the orehard's bioscomed field the rare
partume is blowing.
d nature's heart so strongly beats I see the Upon the bosom of the wheat the dew-gemi tremble brightly.

As to the love breath of the breeze responds that bosom lightly.

The thresh is at our trysting-place, a waiting my devotion, Perched high upon a locust-twig and singing to its motion.

No man, no woman intrudes there—I only hear his singing,
As up to heaven's cloud-freecoed dome his great song sends its ringing.

The carpet on our chancel floor is 'riched with figures oldes,

Worked in the green by deftest hand in violet and golden.
Mo creeds are promulgated there, we've only nature's teachers —
I ween 'tis not idolatry to love God through His creatures.

The brooklet, like a song, runs through the meadow's heart all gladness.

And leaves not even in the woods a hiding place for sadness;

It first beside the rough old oak, ploks up the dogwood's blossom,

And woos the spice's branches down to laugh ing backward toes them.

The birch-roots feel its tender touch, the aiders bend above it.

And growing leaves and merry birds attest how well they love it:

Its song has won them—happy I, if, caught from field and meadow.

This song shall echo in your heart or drive away a shadow!

-Will P. Me Sparran.

Rawed to Pieces But Lived For Hours Frank May, working at a saw mill near Port Republic, Va. was on Saturday caught by the saw, which cut off his left leg at the thigh, entered his side and out his leg at the thigh, entered his side and out his bowels, liver and lungs, and forced the beart from the left to the right side. He lived fourteen hours, and suffered intense thirst. The water he drank flowed out of the wound in his side. He was conscious until death. The doctors consider it most remarkable that death did not occur immediately.

The Handsomest Lady in Lancaster Remarked to a friend the other day that she knew Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs was a superior remedy, as it stopped her cough instantly when others had no effect whatever. So to prove this and convince you to its merit, any druggist will give you a Sample Bottle Free. Large size 50c. and 61.00.
