The declination of Blaine is received with great pleasure by the friends of the other candidates and without any great apparent regret on any side. There is a ounced disposition to take Mr. Blaine's letter at its face value and to count him out of the race; but it must be remembered that was the disposition with which the first declination written from Florence was received, and that it looked for a time then as though Mr. Blaine was out of the field. He soon reappeared and his name would certainly have been presented at the Chicago convention and he would have been nominated but for this latest declination, which was not published until about two weeks have elapsed since it was written. Mr. Blaine has so decided a reputation for pursuing his aims by indirection and finesse that this letter is not convincing that he does not desire the nomination. It is apparent, however, that he does not de sire it unless he can get it by acclamation. His idea may be that by standing back be will encourage the appearance of a big list of candidates, all of whom will be conciliated by his standing out of their way; and in the end, when none of them are able to make the nomination, he will fall heir to all their votes. It is clear that his withdrawal will not be considered absolute by the convention if it finds that it cannot make a choice among the other eandidates. There are a great many people who think that Mr. Blaine is sincere in his declination and that he will feel very much obliged to the Republican convention if it lets him stay off its ticket. This opinion gives Mr. Blaine credit for a shrewdness that detects the desperate chance of election of the Republican ticket in the coming contest. The other men, who have not yet been candidates feel that it is worth while to run even if they are defeated; but Mr. Blaine does not care to run to be beaten. He has once had that distinction and he prefers to save his candidacy for a more propitious occasion. If he should be defeated a second time, he could never be again a candidate. He is getting up in years it is true, and cannot afford to wait the return of many presidential campaigns. But he can afford this better than to invite certain defeat this time.

His review of the situation does not promise Republican success; and this may be a fair interpretation of his declination. He gives no substantial reason for declining to be the candidate of his party. He claims that his health is good and his faculties unimpaired; and those who believe that he would be president if he could have ground for thinking that if he declines the Republican nomination it is only because he knows that he cannot be elected.

Tax Upon Art.

There is a general conviction among artists that the Democratic caucus of the House, on Monday, made a serious blunder when it decided to strike works of art off the free list as they stood in the Mills tariff bill, and re-impose the tariff of 30 per cent. on imported works of art. It is considered a reduction of the sources of education to the people of this country to place a high tariff upon works of art that he'p to elevate public taste and encourage home talent.

It may be said that it protects the market for the works of American artists, but American artists do not want the protection. Such men as Albert Bierstadt, Elihu Vedder, F. D. Millet, Eastman Johnson, R. Swain G.fford, and hosts of lesser American artists, declaim indignantly against the procedure. Richard Watson Gild r, editor of the Century Magazine, says that President Cleveland has always insisted upon works of art being free of duty. Mr. Gilder makes a strong point when he says : " France and Germany give our students every facility for prosscuting their studies, and we respond by taxing the pictures of French and German artists when they are sent over here. It is pretended that art is a luxury. It is not. It is education. Pictures are not luxuries any more than books are. Supposing we could only read Shakespeare by going to England. It is an analogous case. They say the duty keeps out rub-bish. It does not. A hundred franc picture pays a duty of a few dollars, and foreign rot is multiplied all over the land. Good art is kept out and the mass of the people lose the opportunity for educa-

It is a move that will very likely be debated, when the Mills bill comes to be voted upon.

P. R. R. Tracks at Middletown.

The Dauphin county court has dissolved an injunction against the Pennsylvania railroad, restraining it from raising its tracks two feet where they cross the most important business street of the borough of Middletown. It is said that nearly all the citizens of Middletown were agreed that the road should be elevated, because this would give a street crossing under the railroad tracks. But adjacent property owners claimed larger damages than the railroad thought fit to pay. The company then, probably in a fit of spite, raised the grade of the road at this crossing about two feet, making the passage over the railroad there much more dangerous than before. It will also remove the station from its present location to a point some distance from the business centre of the town. The removal of the depot has the air of a land speculation and the force of a pun-

Judge Simonton was probably technically right in the position he took on this question, remanding the citizens to the law for a remedy in a suit for damages. The rathroad company must use its property in such a way as not to be a nuis ince or damage to any one els;

in the enjoyment of his property Whether that damage was so overwhelming as to require an immediate injunction to prevent irreparable loss was left to the discretion of the court, and the court decided in the negative. If the aggrieved citizens are in earnest, they will quickly bring suit for damages for what seems to be a petty exhibition of tyranny by a great railroad corporation.

Open the Window. The advent of the electric light and its steady improvement gives hope that in time accidents like that at Elberon, N. J., on Wednesday, will be impossible. A child and nurse were found dead in a room filled with gas. The nurse had been accustomed to gas light all her life, and was a trustworthy and steady woman, so that the ever ready explanation that the gas was blown out will not do. There were two burners in the room and it is explained that one had been lighted and was closed. The other had not been lighted and was open. It is no made clear how this is known, but the plausible theory is advanced that the nurse could not make the open burner work and forgot to close it when she lighted the other. After she had turned out the light and retired the pressure of the gas may have forced away a slight obstruction in the open burner.

Let people always have a window of the bed room open, and they will not only avoid sudden death from suffocation, but will be healthier and sleep better. Improved systems of lighting may put a stop to this smothering of people in their sleep, but meanwhile a little attention to the supply of pure air in the rooms where most people pass a third of their lives is a most pressing and vital necessity.

CONGRESSMAN BOUTELLE, of Maine, who is a great friend of Biaine, says of the latest utterance of the latter: "Any one can read the letter two ways if he wants This two-faced way of looking at things has caused Blaine's moral equint.

SENATOR SHERMAN has compared the president's use of the veto to the despotism of the czar of Russia. The comparison may be accepted as accurate with these trifling differences as noted : The czar never had a chance in his life to veto or approve a bill. All the proceedings of the government are under his absolute and unquestionable con trol. Congress may overrule the veto of the president, or the people, if displeased, may refuse to re-elect him. Senator Sher man is growing poetical and imaginative in his old age, and we may fully expect to hear him tracing a recemblance between the president and the Ah Sind of Muscat.

THE York Disputch is thirteen years old, which has not for it proved an unlucky number: as it was never so bright and prosperous as flow.

No people need to be more tenderly cared for than those who have given their lives to religion, and who in their old age find themselves unable to do any more service for the great cause and are without pecuniary resources. They should be ten-derly looked after and made to feel not the least discomfort for the alms which is their just right. The Methodist conference in New York recognized this when at Wednes day's meeting they made a long-needed provision for the care for its superannuated ministers. This was done by adopting a report from the committee on tempora conomy, which recommended the creation of a board of conference claimants, consist ing of twelve ministers and twelve laymen, appointed by the general conference, with the board of bishops, who shall travel through the annual conferences and secure pledges and make collections for a permanent and disbursing fund. It was decided that the board shall be located at Chicago.

PITTSBURG salesmen have taken the bit in their teeth. In nearly all the large stores on Tuesday evening they stopped work at 6 o'clock, notwithstanding that the proprietors had ordered them to remain until 9 o'clock. This is a novelty in strikes.

ALMOST every day in some part of this city and probably in every city of the Union a scene like the following is enacted. A pedestrian is calmly traveling along a well laid sidewalk with a feeling of security justi fied by the notorious and firmly established habit of keeping horses and carriages off the pavement, and forgetful of the new principle that human beings not only trayel on two legs, but also on two or more wheels a various sizes. Back of him comes very young America on a tricycle, or a half dozen of him with a toy express wagon, or a more mature specimen on two wheels. The pedes trian has his soul stirred by the influence of art exemplified in a freshly painted red house. He steps to let it stir. The tricy clei or the express wagon, driven by the energy of the rising generation, upsets his understanding, and a kind providence interferes to save him from sitting upon said generation and crushing it out of existence. Or the small bicycle rider attempts to elude the sudden danger and skates into the gutter on his shoulder blade. Art ceases to stir the pedestrian and be feels as though he had taken one step too many in mounting an unfamilier stairway in the dark. Incidents of this kind are of frequent occurrence but the resulting damage appears to be trifling, and the only thing necessary to preserve the peace of the sidewalk is a more constant alertness on the part of the pedestrian. He must keep his ears it speed back, educate his " hindsight, " and at all times " look out for the locomotive."

Innoceat of the Crime. Wilson M. Campbell, who has been in the penitentiary in Topeks, Kansas, for four years, and was sentenced to a life imprisonment upon being convicted of assaulting his own daughter, has been pardoned by the governor. The state board of pardons, which investigated the case, reported to the governor that they were satisfied that Campbell is innocent, and that his daughter testified falsely against him through the influence of her mother.

BEER AND DIGESTION What Dr. Hare, of the University of Penn-rylvania, Says About It.

Dr. H. A. Hare demonstrator of experimental therspeuties and instructor in physical diagnosis in the University of Pennsylvania, says the physician is frequently puzzled when prescribing for a convaiescent as to which alcoholic beverage of a mild and pleasant character he can recommend with the least fear of "upsetting" the stomach. The writer has therefore, attempted to decide this question. Before passing to a direct consideration of the methods employed and the results obtained it is necessary that a few physiological and therapeutical points be brought forward. Every one knows that a cohol retards digestion in the test tobe, but aids it in the stomach; and while these facts seem somewhat paradoxical, they are, in resulty, perfectly logical, for the following reasons:

ical, they are, in resitty, perfectly logical, for the for lowing reatons:

In the test-tube we have a given quantity of digestive fluid on which the alcohol may act, and we cannot have a y increase in the quantity of that fluid, because it is surrounded by glass walls. In the stomesch the alcohol acts quite as much on the digestive ferment as it does on the test tube, but it also, by the presence of that viscus, excites the gastric glands to such an extent that an excess of gastric juice is secreted sufficient to con aterbalance any anti-directive mineral to con aterbalance any anti-directive mineral to construct the secreted sufficient to construct the secreted sufficient to construct the secreted and itself in the digestive ferments.

Theoretically, alcohol should never be used in indigestion or in conditions of gastric weakness; practically, every physician of experience or education gives alcohol under just these circumstances, and, very properly, too, gives the stronger alcohole preparations instead of the weaker. In typhoid feyer we give brandy or whisay in the first stage, almost the stale of the weaker. In typhoid feyer we give brandy or whisay in the first stage, almost colley for the purpose of increasing digestion.

It is also known, by those interested in such solely for the purpose of increasing digestion.

It is also known, by those interested in such matters in the profession, that beer aids digestion but little, or at all, by means of its slochol, s nee that constituent is present in so distanced a form and in such small quantity that it can neither a d digestion to any extent by acting on the coats of the stomach nor retard it by is fluencing the digestion to any extent by acting on the coats of the stomach nor retard it by is fluencing the digestion did it should not be forgotten that white all alcoholic fields theoretically retard gestric digestion, that beer does so much less than brandy or whisky owing to its small amount of alcohol, and white, as has already been shown, this fact rather obtains against its practical use, that this is overcome by the carbonic acid and bitter principles of the beer, which stimulate, excite and act as bitter tonics on the gastric giands.

Beers, to be wholesome, should therefore.

excite and act as bitter tonics on the gastric gands.
Beers, to be wholesome, should, therefore, contain carbo-ic acid and bitter princip es to a fair degree, the sicohol taking a subservient and almost uscless role so far as digestion is concerned.

To sum up the results of these experiments, we find that the beers examined varied in their action as much as fifty-nine minutes, and that while most beers do not reard digestion in all probability in the stomach, that others, such as those mentioned in the first part of the table, aid digestion very insterially.

Thus, in the case of the BEEG VER & EN.
G&L BEEWING COMPANY'S Tannhaeuser it will be noted that even in the test-tube the average delay in gastric digestion equaled but

1 MINUTE SO SECONDS.

DRUNKENNESS OR THE— LIQUOR HABIT POSITIVELY CURED BY ADMINISTERING DR. HAINES' GOLDEN SPECIFIC. It can be given in a cup of coffee or tea without the knowledge of the person taking it: is absolutely harmhoss, and will effect a permanent and speedy cure, whether the patient is a moderate drinker or an alcoholic wreck. Thousands of drinkerds have been made temperate men who have taken Golden Specific in their coffee without their knowledge, and to-day believe they quit drinking of their own free will. IT NEVER FAILS. The system once imprognated with the Specific, it becomes an utter impossibility for the liquor appetite to exist. For sale by CHAS. A. MYERS & RATHFON.

To every member of the Grand Army we offer a suggestion quietly-don't buy a Cheap Blue Suit that will turn its color because you can buy it for a few dollars less than some one else has paid for a good one. This is truly poor economy. No one buys Clothing at such extremely low prices as the members of the Grand Army. We've favored them because we think we're indebted to them for past service. We have just offered them Suits at prices without profit. Our Suits at $9, $12 and $14 are the gennine " True Blue." and if you've heard of any from our stock that were not "True Blue" we should like to hear of it. Two sets of buttons with each Suit.
