Last night a drunken man made one of the narrowest escapes from death by the care at the Penns; I vania depot that has ever been witnessed in this at been witnessed in this ciry. The fellow was a German, and early in the evening he pur-chased a ticket for Canton, Ohio. After se-curing the ticket he started out to look at the town, and succeeded in getting himself full of rum. He intended to go west on Western Express, which leaves here at 11:10. When the train arrived the traveler 11:10. When the train arrived the traveler and his load of bensine were promptly on hand. He did not think it necessary for him to get into the cares snyone else would do, but thought he would perform the dangerous feat of jumping on the moving train. To do this successfully a man must not be handicapped with whisky and the German traveler found this out in one attempt. As the train began running he attempted to get on the platform but fell. As he struck the floor of the station he rolled under the train. In snother instant the rear wheels of the heavy coach would the rear wheels of the heavy coach would have cut him to pieces. George W. Huff-negle, the vigilant night officer, saw the ocice. He knew well that a delay was surely fatal to the man. Quick as a flash he threw himself upon the floor and by force dragged the man from under the car just as the wheel was about to grind him up. The people who saw the stranger fall nder the car were sure that he would be killed; and that would have been the re-sult had it not been for Mr. Huffnagle. The strangest part of the accident was that the man had a big bottle of whisky in his pocket which was not broken by his rough tumbling around.

Death of Colonel Aaron K. Dunkel, Colonel Aaron K. Dunkel, ex-state struck for and ex-secretary of internal affairs, died at his residence, No. 1010 Cherry street, Philadelphia, on Thursday night. Mr. Dunkel was born in Manheim township, Lancaster county, on May 20, 1837. He was educated in the common schools and learned the printer's trade. He entered the war as a private, but through bravery in battle was gradually promoted until he became captain of one of the comsylvania Volunteers. He became connected many years ago with the Phila-delphia Press, when that journal was owned by John W. Forney. He left the Press with three other employee and established the Sunday Republic. In 1874 Mr. Danket was elected to the state Senate from the Sixth district, and in 1868, while still a member of the Sanate, was nominated on the same ticket with Governor elected. Since leaving that office he has not figured prominently in political affairs.

Throwing Away Tons of Food Thousands of crates containing tomatoes oucumbers and string beans, which had been brought to New York by steamships from the South, were dumped into the bay on Tuesday last because of the sudden glut of the vegetable market, which knocked prices endwise and practically destroyed all demand for arriving cargoes. The steamship companies would have liked to give away the cargoes, but direct to give away the cargoes, but did not feel free to do so, as such a course would have tied up the business of course would have tied up the business of merchants who had managed to get their stock in the market. The murderer then went home and to bed, not knowing anything of the result of his criminal act. James Clark was sent for, and upon reaching home about midnight searched the house, the last room being the bed room, where he found his wife lying searched the house, the last room being the bed room, where he found his wife lying across the threshold cold in death. The other women did not know that she had been shot, but thought that she had been frightened and had gone to some neighbor's house. Clark was in bed when arrested. The murderer is a wealthy man.

ORAZED BY " CHRISTIAN SOIENOE."

A Bright Mind Wrecked and a Frantic Effor The patrons of a down town drug store in Cleveland, O., were much surprised Thurs. day afternoon when the police arrested in their presence a fashionably dressed young man who was accompanied by a pretty girl.

The prisoner was Frank Tanner and his companion the lady to whom he was en-gaged and was shortly to marry. Tanner has been made insane by "Christian sci-ence." Until Wednesday he was division clerk in the Bee Line railroad office and possessed of more than usual intelli-ce. For some time he has been troubled with asthma and catarrh, and, it is claimed, was cured of these by "Christian science" method. He became interested in the subgiven by Dr. Egbert. Last Sunday his friends noticed a change in his manners. The day following the symptoms became more pronounced. He spent every spare moment studying the Bible, and announced his determination to cast out all earthly considerations in his mode of living. On Wednesday he resigned his position in the railroad office, saying that hereafter he was going to work for the Lord. He claimed to have millions of dollars, which he was going to devote to purposes of religion. He stopped eating, saying he was going to live on love. His actions indicated soute manis.

Thursday he started down town to buy wedding presents for his prospective bride, as he said. Miss Patterson, his fiance, accompanied him. She left him for a secompanied him. She left him for a moment, and notifying an officer of his condition, had him taken into custody. At the big Conestogs bridge he was injured in the old way. He was sitting on the platform of one car with his feet upon another. Suddenly the cars came together with great force and his left leg was jammed and his back badly bruised. No bones were injured and the man remained on the train until it reached this city. He then made the nature of his injuries known. Dr. Weichans attended him and he was sent to the ples and Bassans-Some of the Property Recovered - Bitner and His Compacions Under the Enfluence of Liquor.

At an early hour this morning the cigar store of John Baker, at No. 110 North Queen street, was entered by theves. One of the guilty parties, if there was more than one, was arrested and looked up. Mr. Baker also has a fruit and candy stand in front of the store and some of his stock was just inside of the window. In the window there is one large pane of glass which is on hinges and opens and closes like a door. The thief broke a small pane of glass in the south side of the window, and was thus en-abled to enter his hand sufficiently to turn the latch of the large window pane. Through this opening he was then able to make his way into the store. The goods taken from the store was a lot of cigarettes in boxes, about fifty bananas, some apples, chewing tobacco, &c. The apples and bananas were found lying scattered along the street afterwards. Between 3 and 4 o'clock this morning Officer Flennard was walking along North Queen, when he saw a crowd of boys standing near Andrew Casper's fruit stand at Orange and North Queen streets. The officer crossed over and the boys moved down the street. The officer then learned from Harry Remley, the young man who attends Mr. Cooper's stand at night, that Baker's store had been robbed-He said that the crime was committed by Charles Bitner, a boy about 17 years old, who was in the crowd that had been standing there. Young Bitner was seen going to the store by Remley and others, and later he said that he had robbed it. When the officer learned these facts he followed Bliner, who went to Centre Square and then turned towards the Central market house. The officer followed and when Bitner caw that he was being pursued he began to run. The officer was fiset of foot and he soon captured him-He was quickly taken to the station house, when the following was found upon him: 32 cents, 5 sticks of licorice and 35 cigarette pictures. Bitner admitted that he had robbed the store, but said others were with him ; and he tried to implicate them. After Bitner had been looked up the officer again came across his companions at Orange and North Queen streets. They insisted that Bitner had committed the theft him self. The officer asked them what he had done with all the goods that he had stolen. They said they did not know, but after he had come away from Baker's store he walked down West Orange street. The ket of Adam Gutfleisch's barber shop, on Orange strest near North Queen, a full box of cigarettes in packs and a box with nine packs were found. They had undoubtedly been thrown there by Bitner after he had stolen them. The tobacco which was taken was not recovered.

The officer said that Bitner, and the young fellows who were with him were under the influence of liquor when he was talking with them. They say that they had been to a marquerade party in the southern part of the city. It seems that some time before the store was entered on his beat. They were making a noise, and when he remonstrated with one or two became very impudent and after using bad language took to their heels and ran away. Young Bitner, as well as the youngsters who were with him, has the repu tation of being a very bad boy. They spend much of their time on the streets at night and were frequently seen under the influence of liquor. One or more of the party is known to have stolen upon former occasions. Bitner will be heard before Alderman Deen, where Mr. Baker complained against him Shortly before moon to day Miff Carberry and Edward Eichman, two boys who were in young Bitner's party last evening, were arrested by Constable Eicholtz. THE CARPENTERS UNION.

Deen held them for a hearing also.

Speech by Master Workman McGuire—Lunch at the schiller House. Thursday evening there was a mass meet ing of carpenters in the hall on the second floor of the Schiller house, North Queen street. The meeting was under the auspices of the Carpenters' Union, No. 208, and was called to hear a speech by Mr. P. J. Mc-Guire, the general secretary of the order in the United States and Canadas. Mr. McGuire spoke for about two hours, and gave an interesting account of the organization and growth of the order. In 1881 there were only twelve unions in the country with a membership of 2,000; now there are 433 unions with a membership of 52,000. Mr. McGuire spoke of the many advantages that had resulted and more that would result from a union of the work men. A decrease in the hours of work and an increase in the places, and would be secured in all place when a more perfect union shall be organ ized. Capital has organized against labor by the establishment of " trusts " in almost all branches of business, and it is necessary that labor should organise to protect itself against the power of capital.

At the close of Becretary McGuire's address, the Union adjourned to the third story of Schiller hall where an elegant supper had been provided for them by Mr. Wm. Spangler, proprietor of the Schiller house. The tables were spread with all kinds of substantials and delicacies, and ela borately decorated with flowers and follage plants. The banquet was discussed by the carpenters with appetites as keen as their saws and hatchets. The party separated at a late bour, pleased with the meeting and the supper, and with a firm conviction that much good had been done to the cause of the Union by the eloquent address of Mr. McGaire.

Street Commissioner Bertz has entered suit before Alderman Halbach against Conof the city ordinance of September, 3, 1824 It provides that a fine of not less than $1. nor more than $10 shall be imposed on any person or persons who may place of cause to be placed a nuisance on any of the streets, lanes or alleys of the city. The allegation is that the defendants, who are carters, use a narrow board on the end of their carts, and in hauling through the streets dirt is continually falling to the streets and is such a nuisance as is mean by the ordinance above noted. When the Holbeins were notified they refused to put street commissioner that he could not make them do so. The case will be heard by the alderman next week.

Mr. Cleveland in New York e v York Letter to Philade lphia Ledger. I saw Mr. Cleveland to-day as he was leaving the bridge on his way to review the Brooklyn parade. He was in an open carriage. A large crowd was in waiting for him at the entrance of the bridge, and, as the carriage approached, cheers went up from the crowd, and the president lifted the carriage approached, cheers went up from the crowd, and the president lifted his hat in acknowledgement. The act was simple and commonplace and was a repetition of a hundred such occurrences during the day, but it had a more than ordinary significance to me. Mr. Cleveland carried himself in so easy but dignified a way, his salute was so graceful and the smile that spread over his face as he heard the cheers was so spontaneous and genuine that the whole thing suggested to me a man sure of his position and his future and thoroughly confident of his own strength, but, at the same time, a man not yet grown weary of applause or of the honors of his station. In a word, he looked like a man absolutely happy. I remember having seen Mr. Cleveland four years ago, when a candidate for president, addressing a large audience in the New York Academy of Music. He struck me then as a man of resolute purpose and strength of will, but still as a man feeling his way and seeking to grow up to the measure of the high position to which he had unexpectedly been called. There was no luminous smile then when cheers rent the air. He looked anxious and thoughtful. The contrast with when cheers rent the air. He looked anxious and thoughtful. The contrast with his appearance to-day was most striking. It should be said that the president's reception in this city and Brooklyn to-day was everywhere most cordial, and at times on the said that the said enthusiastic. There was more than mere homage to his high office—there was much

ARRESTED IN VIRGINIA.

Officer Barnhold Goes to Richmond I Swindler Who Is Wanted Here. Early in March complaint was made before Alderman Deen against Charles Bilkowski, a resident of the Eighth ward, who was charged with embezziement. It seems that he had been employed by J. J. Staley & Co., a Philadelphia firm, to sell goods. He disposed of a lot of goods, and it is alleged that he pocketed the money. After the complaint had been made the accused skipped from town, having left Lancaster on March 7th. The officers have been looking for him for some time and finally located him in Richmond, Virginia. On Tuesday Alderman Deen received a telegram from the chief of police of Richmond, stating that the man had been in that city. Officer Barnhold went to Harrisburg yesterday for the necessary requisition papers and then left for Richmond. The amount alleged to have been embezzled is $206 50.
