CLEVELAND AND THURMAN. THE TICKET TO BE NAMED AT THE DEMOCRATS AT ST. LOUIS.

anians Are for the "Old Re man "-W. D. Hencel Substituted for Dolerate Hoover-How the Keystone Members Will be Fisced.

The Democratic national convention will memble in St. Louis on Tuesday. From present indications Judge Thurman, who has consented to be a candidate, is likely to be the almost unanimous choice of the convention for vice president. As Cleveland's unanimous nomination is a foregone conunanimous nomination is a foregone con-clusion, the absence of a struggle over the vice presidential nomination will tend to greatly abbreviate the convention. Ex-Lieutenant Governor White, of California, Lieutenant Governor White, of California, has been decided upon for temporary, and Congressman Collins, of Massachusette, for permanent chairman. It is understood that the tariff plank of the platform will be mainly constructed from the president's message, there being strong opposition to the radical desire for the endorsement of the Mills bill.

the Mills bill.

It was thought on Friday and Saturday that the Thurman boom was ephemeral: that it had no real strength; that it was confined to the Pacific slope people, who were there with a bale of bandannas and numerous boxes of California wine for free distribution, and that the delevation. numerous boxes of California wine for free distribution, and that the delegates to arrive would see the danger and folly of nominating for vice president a man who is 75 years of age, and so infirm that he moves about with the aid of others. But this calculation has been shattered by the arriving delegates, who seem to have been overtaken by the Thurman wave while en route, and who arrive marching behind the Thurman banner and decorated with bandannss.

A singular feature of this Thurman deluge is the fact that it receives assistance from men who are opposed to it and who speak of it as "bad politics." So far as the character, qualifications and merits of Thurman are concerned there is no difference of opinion. Men like Gorman, of Maryland; Morrison. of Illinois; Watterson, of Kentucky; Voorhees, of Indians, and Scott, of Pennsylvania, really deprecate the movement because of Thurman's age and infirmities, yet are prepared to jump into the current and drift along with the tide that is to carry the "Cid Roman" to the second place on the Democratic ticket.

Among other Pennsylvanians arriving Sunday morning were the members of the W. U. Hensel association, organized for this occasion only. The Hensel men were Mr. Hensel himself, who is substituted for Delegate John B. Hoover, of this district; Fourth district (Philadelphis), Delegates John J. Shields and George Thomson, Delegates E. A. E. Malone, Lancaster; ex Congressman John B. Storm, Monroe. All the Pennsylvania delegates who arrived Sunday morning attended the caucus held before noon. Chairman Kiener was present and announced one of the objects to be choice of members of the committees. A roil call showed only 23 delegates present, and it was said there was only one other delegate in the city. As 24 is 7 less than a majority, Mr. Scott, Mr. Hansen, Mr. Hensel and others suggested postponement of action, and it was agreed to adjourn until morning. In the fiftormal talk of these delegates it was intimated that the delegates would be a unit on all questions before the convention, and the delegates at the convention, and the delegate-at-large, Royle, was the choice for chairman of the Pennsylvanians; Delegate-at-large rived Sunday morning attended the caucus Mutchier to go on the committee on resolu-tions; Delegate at Large Cassidy, commit-tee on permanent organization, and W. U. Hensel, committee on oredentials. Mr. be put on the committee on credentials.

After adjournment most of the delegates said there was no doubt that Pennsylvania would be a unit for Thurman. Mr. Scott said he thought Thurman would be nominated, that Mr. Gorman would not oppose him, and that any efforts to nominate Gray would be the tardest kind of upbill work. The Philadelphians want Mr. Sensenderfer to be one of the convention secretaries, and are confident that Mr. Patterson will represent Pennsylvania on the committee

The Democratic Clubs. The National League of Democratic clubs is well represented, with beadquarters at the Laciede hotel. possible that the anti-Thurmanites will hold out, although every effort is being made to bring them into line. The Wisconsin delegation is solid for Thurman with one exception, and the chances are that before night it will be a unit. The Pennsylvania delegation is now in session and in the opinion of one of the leaders they will fix opinion of one of the leaders they will fix up the committee slate and defer action on the vice presidency till later in the day. It has been decided that the delegation will unite on every question which may be passed by a two-thirds majority. OVER A FIVE-RAIL FENCE.

The Horse Would Not Stay in a Pasture Field Because He Was Not Hungry. To travel the shortest route from this city to the Susquebanna river one must pass at least twelve milestones. Surday morning William Deen, William Rote and H. H. Hoover started with a team and in a short time were in the company of genial Cooper Hartman. The horse was turned loose to nip the high grass in a field, and bunting wild flowers and in other diver sions. The horse had a good break fast before tavite colic by munching weeds. The fence surrounding him was not the kind to hold a full-grown horse, and no sooner had Deen & Co. got ten out of sight than the animal took a hor skip and jump and scaled the rail wall. run to town was an easy feat; not near the task the horse experienced earlier in the morning. Shortly after reaching this city the cloper was put into his stall, and many people were under the impression that a serious accident had happened

After the men bade Casper Hartman farewell they prepared to harness the horse and depart for home. They apbeen left, and were thunder-struck to find the once pastured steed absent. Thoughts varying from the theory that the horse hi been stolen to the probability that he was in swimming were entertained for awhile, but at last it was pretty certain to all that the noble trotter had gone home. The party then concluded to follow.
