THE DEAD EMPEROR. The Son Sorvived His Father Only a Little

Over Three Months. It is just a few days over three months since Frederick III became the emperor of Germany. Emperor William died on Friday morning, March 9. The Crown Prince Frederick Withelm Nicholas Karl ascended the throne and was crowned as Frederick III. He was the only son of the late Emperor William, and was in the fifty-seventh year of his age, having been born on the 18th of Outober, 1831. At the age of seventeen he was sent to the University of Bonn, and at the conclusion of the university course was recalled to this gradually rose to the grade of general field marshal. On the 25th of January, 1808, he was married at London to Victoria, princess royal of Great Britain, the eldest child of Queen Victoria. By her he has had seven children, three sons and four daughters. The acquaintance between the royal couple began in the summer of 1857, when the latter paid a visit to the royal family of England. Queen Victoria has related in her "Diary" the story of his royal love; how, during an excursion to the Highlands, the princely bestra came to an understanding, and how the royal parents wished to postpone the promised marriage for a while, "because Vicky was still so young!" Nevertheless, the marriage took place on the 25th of January of the following year. The marriage was celebrated in the Chapel Royal, at London. The Frince of Walts and the Duke of Edinburgh was present in Highland costume. The crown prince stood nervously in the alsies, twitching at the plume of his aliver helmet and waiting for the arrival of his father and the bride. The queen of Kongland ast in the royal pew, with her younger sons and daughters on either side of her. Lord Palmerston bore the massive sword of state, in its gold and orimson scabbard. Amid sounds of trumpets and beat of kettledrums the lord high chancellor entered the chapel in his robes of state. Conspicuous among the peers was the Duke of Atholi, wearing the fall costume of his clan, tartan and philibeg, claymore and heron's plume. Mr. Labouchere, afterwards Lord Taunton, distinguished himself by wearing the extraordinary uniform of an Elder Brother of the Trinity House. The bride, in a rich robe of milre autique, ornamented wti flucuoes of Honiton less, the patterns of which was formed of bouquets of the rose, shamrock and thistie, knelt before the Archbishop of Canterbury, who was arrayed in his lawn robes and episcopal wig, and replied to his question in a childrike and tremulous voice. The ceremony over, the married couple went by train to take the train to Windsor, the ladies nearl concert with the army other and, in concert with the army commanded by Prince Frederick Charles, his cousin, moved on converging roads to Sadowa. He marched his army with celerity, and arrived on the battle field while the engagement was at its height, on the 3d of July. Promptly throwing his columns into action, he struck the Austrian flank and conveiled the conthe Austrian flank and compelled the en-tire army to retreat in disorder. The vic-tory gave him a military reputation econd only to that of Prince Frederick Charles, day. In this campaign his chief of staff was Major General von Blumenthal, and he had under his orders three army corps, the army itself being composed of about 125,000 men.

The prince beld one of the chief commands in the war of 1870-71 against France, and fully maintained his high reputation as a soldier. The close of July, 1870, found him on the Rhipe frontier, in command of the 31 German army, command the bell file and lith North prising the 5tb, 6tb, and 11th North German corps, the 1st and 24 Bavarian corps, and the division furnished by Baden, Wurtemberg, and Hesse, in all about 206,000 men and 500 guns. On the 4th of August he vigorously attacked the position held at Welssenburg by that portion of Marshal MacMahon's corps which was commanded by General Abel Douay. The French were repulsed and dispersed after a severe struggle. Following up this rising the 5th, 6th, and 11th and dispersed and dispersed and dispersed setter a severe struggle. Following up this important victory, he attacked on the 6th the united army corps of General MacMahon, Failly and Canrobert, drawn up in position at Woerth. MacMahon had under him 50,000 men in all, and occupied a strong defensive position on the slopes of the Vosces. The grown prince arrived of the Vosges. The crown prince arrived from Weissenberg on the evening of the 5th with an army of 130,000 men, and egan the attack at 7 the next morning. The Frer c'i line was turned at two points, an their left and centre broken, notwithstand ing a desperate charge of cavairy, which was ordered by MacMahon as a last resort. At the memorable engagement rear Sedan (September 1) his troops and those of Prince Frederick Charles were engaged against the greater part of MacMahon's forces, and the Germans succeeded in troops the ruser MacMahon's forces, and the Germans. crossing the river Meuse, this extremely difficult operation being effected by the crown prince with his Prussian and Wurtembergers supported by the Bavarians under General von der Tann. He next made his way towards Paris, entered Versallies September 28, commenced to throw additional troops around the capital and remained in the vicinity of the invested city until after the conclusion of peace. On October 28 he was created a field marshal of Prussis, and on November 8 a Russian field marshal. His promotion to the rank of held marshal, was announced in the following the contract of the contrac of held marshal was announced in the fo lowing characteristic telegram to the em-press then Queen Augusta:

"VERSALLES, Oct. 29, 1870.—The de-feat of the two armies which recently marched against us, warrants me in conferring upon our two commanders, Fritz and Frederick Charles, the batons of field mar shal—the first instances of such appointments in our family history. WILLIAM."

After the close of the war with France After the close of the war with the prince led a comparatively uneventful life, and did not figure conspicuously before the world until he was stricken with before the world until he was stricken with the terrible malady which brought him to death. He began to suffer from catarrh and hoarseness in January of last year, and at the beginning of March a morbid growth was discovered on the left vocal cord. In the middle of April he was ordered to Ems where he took the waters for a month, and then returned to Berlin no better. The growth in his throat was at that time found to have increased in size. The The growth in his throat was at that time found to have increased in size. The German doctors who were called in consultation all agreed that the growth was cancer, but before performing any operation for its removal advised that Dr. Morell Mackenzie, of London, be summoned. The latter took charge of the patient on May 19, and on the following day removed a portion of the growth, a second operation being performed on June 7. From that day to this the actual nature of the maiady has been in dispute between the doctors, and it has not yet been certainly determined whether the aliment is of a cancerous nature or not. On June 13 the royal patient arrived in England, where he remained under the entire charge of Dr. he remained under the entire charge of Dr. Mackenzie until September 3. As a son in-law of Queen Victoria he took a conspicuous part in the ceremonials and processions connected with the celebration of the latter's jubilee. Towards the close of June latter's jublice. Towards the close of June Dr. Mackenzie performed another operation upon his throat, and again, on August 4, removed another portion of the growth in the throat. On the 10th of August he arrived in Edinburg, with the view of trying the bracing air of Scotiand. He finally left for the continent on September 3, and after a visit to Berlin and a tour through Tyrol, settled down early in November, at San Remo, on the Riviers, where he remained and where he submitted to the operation of Remo, on the Riviera, where he remained and where he submitted to the operation of tracheotomy on the 9th of February. The recent progress of his malady has been so fully reported from day to day that no details are necessary in this connection. He remained at San Remo until summoned to Berlin by his father's death. His brief career of emperor is known to the public. Emperor Frederick was a man of commanding presence. A correspondent once wrote of him:

When seen on horseback, at the head of a brilliant staff he can well be compared to Mars, the god of war. 'Unser Fritz' is certainly a magnificent specimen of the German soldier. He has not only been men of letters, savants and artists, even his political enemies being welcome. Ris wife is a highly cultivated lady, very fond of art in all its branches, and is herself a good painter. She has been mainly instrumental in the creation of those museums, industrial achools and literary societies that are doing such excellent work in Germany. The new sovereigns have heretofore resided sometimes at Potsdam and sometimes in the 'Krouprinzliche Palast,' a house which stands next to the imperial one in 'Unter den Linden.' It is much larger than the mansion occupied by the late Emperor Wilhelm, and it is filled with objects of art of all sorts, while the collection of both old and modern paintings is among the first in Berlin. The gams of these galleries were personally selected by the English princess.

The volume, of which only forty copies were printed, was in quarto form, containing 153 pages. The copies were presented, with the prince's autograph, to his personal friends. Last November it was announced that a Berlin publisher was about to issue another work by him entitled "Jagden und Beobachtungen" ("Hunts and Observations,") but no notice of its appearance has been made.

THE NEW EMPRSOR. Sketch of Frederick William Albert Victor, Who Now Assumes the Throne. Frederick William Albert Victor, the new emperor of Germany, was born January 27, 1859. He was educated at Cassel and at Bonn, and while not a particular bright young man he has shown some military aptitude. Unlike his father, he is a senzollern type, and he is entirely Prussian in his military training and political views. In appearance, too, he is his fath-er's opposite. Though in his thirtieth year he does not look more than his twenty-fifth. Although it is said by his adfifth. Although it is said by his admirers that he resembles the great Frederick, he has nothing of the staiwart characteristics of the Hohenzollerna. Besides he is deformed, his left arm being withered since his birth and nearly useless, a defect which he always tries to conceal. He has been moreover sill oted with abscsses in the interior of the eara. His general sppearance is that of a young man who has inherited constitutional troubles. In disposition he is brusque and often displays an overbearing temper.

It was erected in great magnificence by Frederick the Great, and with its exquisite gardens and park was a de lightful place in which to quietly away from the noise of the capital. The room in which the kalasr died is on the first floor, and is large and light. It is furnished and decorated in the finest taste. The walls are covered with crimson damask and gold lace, and white and gold is the predominating character o the painting of the room. On one side a long window reaching to the floor leads out on a terrace, while opposite a door enters the study out the windows of which a view is obtained across the garden and down the principal avenue of Potsdam. The doctors' consult ing room is near the bedroom and the phycontained the sick chamber. In the midst of this magnificence the kalser, stretched on a plain brass bed within a few feet of the room in which he was born, looked for the last time upon earthly scenes.

THE PITTSBURG CLUB'S BANQUET. The Organization Winds Up Its Affairs at

About a year ago the Pittaburg club of Lancaster, composed of members of Lancaster Commandery No. 13, Knights Templar, was organized in this city for the purpose of making the pilgrimage to Pittsburg to attend the state conclave. The club made the trip successfully in May and last nigh they wound up their affairs. There was still some money left in the hands of the treas urer and with this they resolved to have a banquet. It was given at Hotel Copland on Thursday evening when twenty-five gentlemen eat down. Caterer Copland had prepared an elegant menu which was admirably served. It was as follows :

The seventeen-year locust, the clead septendecim of the scientists, is beginning to make its appearance in some parts of the Peques valley. Farmers are plowing or hocing them up in the fields, and the probability is they will soon cover the trees and bushes in immense numbers. It is a little too early yet for their appearance, the last week in June or the first in July being their season for coming to the earth's surface after their seventeen years of subterranean

No doubt some of the older inhabitants will remember when the locusts visited Riley, a noted scientist in the employ of the United States government, several years ago predicted that the locusts would appear this year in the Pequea region. Almost everybody remembers the swarm of them that appeared in Lancaster and York counties in 1885. It is a well-known fact that the seventeen year locusts appear in different sections in different years. Dr. S. S. Rathvon remembers their appear ance in Hellam township in 1817, when he was a small boy, and subsequently in 1834, 1851, 1868 and 1885. These were an entirely distinct brood from the Pequea locusts, though it occasionally happens that the two broods overlap in the territory occupled by them, and hence appear twice in seventeen years ; but this is only an accident, a portion of the brood having overstepped its territory, and thus apparently come up at the wrong time, but everyone of them had their seventeen years under

It has been noted that there are two va rieties of these locusts, a larger and smaller variety. The smaller variety is very dark, nearly black, and has very fine wing tracings; the larger variety is of a lighter brown color. Our friends along the Pequea will be rendering a service to science if they will capture specimens of the locust and forward them to Dr. S. S. Rathvon, 506 North Queen street. They should be captured alive, and sent in small paper boxes, or wide mouthed bottles, uncorked, and with a piece of thin muslin or mosquito bar tied over the mouth of the bottle.

There have been in times past a good nany stories circulated that persons had been stung by the seventeen-year locusta Dr. Rathyon tells us there is not upon record one well authenticated case of person being stung by a locust. They may be gathered by the handful, and handled with impunity. They are perfectly barmess except that they will puncture the trees when laying their eggs.

THE SAFE HARBOR RAILROAD. Correspondent Who Thinks the Freject Has

Not Been Pairty Treated.

EDS. INTRILIGENCER—The writer was much surprised at reading in your paper of last evening the report of the chairman of the railroad committee of the Lancaster Board of Trade on the proposed Safe Har-bor railroad. The understanding the parties interested in this matter had with the railroad committee was that the cost of the right of way for the proposed railroad was first to be ascertained before report on the enterprise was made to the Board of Trade. the parties working on the matter of right of way, that the railroad committee would report to the Board of Trade on the pro-posed railroad until the work of securing the right of way had been completed and the cost ascertained. Regarding the change of route, as suggested by the chairman of the railroad committee, I would say that it would involve the expense of building longer line of railroad, also much gre expense on right of way than if the line were built on the present survey. As to the station at the Safe Harbor en of proposed ratiroad, I would say that when of this kind, I think they can be satisfac torily arranged without much trouble. Not wishing to occupy too much of your valuable space, I would merely say that when a legitimate enterprise like the above railroad, is submitted to a committee of the Board of Trade; an enterprise which is admitted by all parties who have taken the trouble to investigate the matter thoroughly, would not only pay a fair interest on the investment, but would also be of great benefit to the business interests of Lancaster city and county ; in our opinion if the committee, for reasons of their own, do not see fit to endorse the enterprise, they might at least refrain from placing obstacles in the RAILROAD, ing Alarms Improperty.

Fire alarms have been numerous this week, but none of the fires which caused them have been destructive. Shortly be-fore nine o'clock last evening there was an alarm arising from a slight fire in the building in the southern part of the city which was formerly occupied by the Miller Scap company, but is now used as a planing mill by S. J. Martin. Over the boller there is a frame shed, and in this the fire was discovered by Harry Shaub who is engineer of company No. 2 and is employed at the Lancaster gas works. The fire was extinguished with buckets of water, after considerable of a hole had been ourned in the roof. The fire likely started from a spark from the furnace under the

From the manner in which the alarm was struck last night it was difficult for the department or any one else to locate the The alarm was sent from box 56, at Herei and Prince streets, and the man who struck it pulled down the lever in the box an three times in rapid succession This mixed up the slarm so that no one could tell where the fire was and it cause nuch trouble. Ever since Lancaster adopted the call system the chief engineers, fireme and newspapers have been trying to instruct the people how to strike fire alarms, but it seems that they do not have the idea yet. The right way to strike a fire alarm is to pull down the lever to the left and let it go. The right number will then be struck. and if that is not sufficient to give the alarm the lever can sgain be pulled after it has stopped striking. It is not necessary to pull the lever up and down like the han-dle of a pump, as that only serves to make trouble. There are several new boxes in the centre of the city and these are the only ones that cannot be interfered with by cor tinued pulling. This is a very important matter to citizena as well as fireme persons holding keys might with profit atudy how to strike an alarm correctly.

Fire Department Notes. Some time ago, by order of the fire committee, an entire new floor was laid in engine house No. 2, on South Queen street. The members of the company are now busily engaged painting the walls, ceiling and woodwork. The new engine is one foot longer than the old one and it was found necessary to cut a hole through the brick wall between the stable and the engine house proper to accommodate it.

Truck A, of the department, is now in Doersom's shop, where it is being repainted. In the meantime the company is running a wagon with long ladders to the fires.

The firemen have had three runs this week, but none of the fires gave them any work except to their apparatus upon re turning to their houses THE VOUNG REPUBLICANS.

A Uniform Will He Adopted at a Specia Meeting Week After Next.

The Young Republicans met last evening and the principal topic of discussion was the style of uniform for the marching club in the coming campaign. At one of the meetings a few months ago an effort was made to form a battalion, but as that would have necessitated the significant of some of the best workers as members it was abandoned, because the "blue bloods' who run the organization did not desire any members outside of their own set. The meeting last evening decided to hold a special meeting week after next when a uniform will be adopted. Another matter discussed last evening was the transferring of E. M. Gilbert from the active to the contributing list. He holds the position of prison solicitor and that in the judgment of some of the members retires him from the active list. Arrangements have been made for a rati fication of the Chicago ticket on an evening about a week after the adjournment of the convention. Among the speakers will be Gen. McKinley, of Ohio, and Marriott

The club intend running an excursion to Penryn park the last week in July.

The strawberry festival for the bene fit o the Young Folks society of St. Stephen's Lutheran church opened last evening in Central hall, No. 24 Centre square, and will be continued this evening and Saturday evening. The hall is prettily decorated and the tables artistically arranged. The chief attraction is of course the strawberries, an abundant supply of them, large and luscious, being furnished by Mr. Will son, of the Wheatland farm. The other at furnished by Adams & Fordney; cakes o all kinds, Rebecca at the well with lemon ade and other cooling drinks, the wheel of fortune, &c., &c. Last night there was some good vocal music rendered by the Sunday school children with organ accon paniment by Miss Annie Ochs. The festi val is under the immediate management of Rev. E. Meister, assisted by an active committee of the young folks. The attendance last night was very large and the sales quite encouraging. To-night and Saturday

A Deacon and Wite Found Dead Descon Issae Bronson and wife, of Poke ville, Conn., were found dead in their farm house Thursday morning by a man who was doing chores on the farm. woman's head was hanging by a mere thread and Bronson's threat was gashed by a razor. The theory is that Bronson, in a fit of insanity, symptoms of which he had lately shown, cut his wife's head off with an axe, and then cut his throat. A broken pitcher found in the room gives rise to the opinion that he first stunned the woman by a blow with it.

James McTague was arrested on Thursday for begging money. He is an old offender and spends the greater portion of his time in the county jail. His punishment was made at 30 days.

The Leaders Blindly Boast of the Strength of Their Favorite Candidates-Harrison Men Claim That There Was No Trees With the Greeham Cohorte

CHICAGO, June 15. - Delegates and riends of the various candidates are straggling in this morning from alm section of the country, and the excitement around the hotels affords evidence that the political pot will be boiling before many hours. The henchmen of Gen. Alger are pouring in heavily as are the supporters of Gen. Harrison and there is more setivity about the Michigan and Indiana headquarters than at any of the others. The Harrison men are highly indignant at the report published this morning to the effect that a truce had been declared be-tween their forces and those of Gresham, by virtue of which each would refrain from attacking the other, and the Harrison support would go to Greeham in the event of the former falling to gain strength after the the former mining to gain this story is vigor-second or third ballot. This story is vigor-and amphatically denied by such ously and emphatically denied by such men as E. W. Halford, Delegate-at large J. N. Huston, J. D. Karly and others of the Harrison leaders. There is less Gresham talk this morning while the Sherman people are keeping to their rooms. Gov. Ruak's advance guard headed by Senator Spooner and Col. Henry C. Payne is on deck, and the former says that the delegation will stick to old "Jerry" in the hope that the lightning will strike him should it be found impossible to oncentrate a majority upon any of the other candidates.

WHOOPING IT UP FOR BLAINE. DENVER, Col., June 15 .-- The spec train of seven new Pullman coach two dining care conveying the Pacific coast delegates arrived here at 6 o'clock yesterday morning. The delegates spent the day in the city, where they were handsomely entertained. They left at 8 o'clock last night. Delegates admit that an informal meeting was held at Evanstown after the Oregon men had joined them, and it was agreed to set as a unit.

o'clock last night two masked man entered Barber & Buriingame's refinery here, bound the watchman, Isaac Lord, and his little boy, broke off the door of the safe and departed with the contents. Mr. Burlingame says there is a large loss, the amount of which will be reported later.

No Fourth of July Celebration This year Lancaster has made little or no preparations to celebrate the Fourth of July, and it is likely that the day will be dult enough to drive many of our citizens away. It seems rather strange that Lancaster can-not get up any kind of a celebration when Columbia and other smaller towns do so well. Last year a fine display of fireworks was given in McGrann's park and thou of people were delighted. The money for this purpose was raised by private sub tion, and there is no reason why a sufficient sum for a similar purpose could not sgain be raised. A gentleman of this city tried his hand at collecting a few days ago, but he gave it up in disgust in a short time. Queer Doings at the Prison, Isaac Lorah, who was elected a watch man at the prison in the spring, was saked to resign about two months ago because he slept while on duty. Beuj. Brubaker, of Fiorin, was elected to take his place, but he failed to report at the prison for duty. Today a special meeting was held to fill the place. Brubaker was present and asked to be given until Monday when he would be ready for duty. This they would not agree to, and they said they would rather elect another man. Finally Brubaker agreed to go on to-night. Lorah, who is a son-in-law of Inspector Eshleman, has been on duty since Brubaker was first elected. The latter is Eshleman's brother in law.

Boy Injured in an Explos Charles Reiker, an eight-year-old son of Frank Reiker, brewer, of West King street, on Thursday had a pack of shooting erackers and from each one he took the powder, which he placed in a tin can. He then applied a match and the explosion followed. The little fellow's face and arms and hands were terribly burned. His eyebrows and hair was scorohed and it was feared he would loss
