Ing as he turned. "Gone!" he said: "the things are gone, the fortune gone! We are paupers once more. Boy! what do you know of this! Speak up. Sir, speak up. Do you know of it? Where are they!" He had him by the arm, shaking him like a bag, and the boy's words, if he had any, were jolted forth in inarticulato numbers. The doctor, with a revulsion from his own violence, set him down again. He observed Anastasie in tears. "Anastasie," he said, in quite an altered voice, "compos yourself, command your feelings. I would not have you give way to passion like the vulgar. This-this trifling accident must be lived down. Jean-Marie, bring me my

And he dosed the family all round, leading the way himself with a double quantity. The wretched Anastasie, who had never been ill in the whole course of her existence, and whose soul recoiled from remedies, wept floods of tears, as she sipped, and shuddered, and protested, and then was bullied an ed at until she sipped again. As for Jean-Marie, he took his portion down with

"I have given him a less amount." ob served the doctor, "his youth protecting him sgainst emotion. And now that we have thus parried any morbid consequences let us reason."

with you."

"Nay, madame, you shall not suffer for your devotion," said the doctor. "I will my-self fetch you a shawl." And he went upstairs and returned more fully clad and with an armful of wraps for the shivering An-astasie. "And now," he resumed, "to investigate this crime. Let us proceed by induc tion. Anastasie, do you know anything that can help us?" Anastasie knew nothing. "Or you, Jean-Marie?" "Not I," replied the boy, steadily. "Good," returned the doctor. "We shall now turn our attention to the material evidences. (I was born to be a detective; I have the eye and the systematic spirit.) First, vielence has been employed. The door was broken open; and it may be observed, in pass ing, that the lock was dear indeed at what I paid for it; a crow to pluck with Master Goguelat. Second, here is an instrument em ployed, one of our own table knives, one of our best, my dear; which seems to indicate no preparation on the part of the gang-if gang it was. Thirdly, I observe that nothing has been removed except the Franchard dishes and the casket; our own silver has been minutely respected. This is wily; it shows intelligence, a knowledge of the code a desire to avoid legal consequences. I argue from this fact that the gang numbers persons of respectability-outward, of course, and erely outward, as the robbery proves. But I argue, second, that we must have been ob served at Franchard itself by some occult observer, and dogged throughout the day with a skill and patience that I venture to qualify as consummate. No ordinary man, no occa sional criminal, would have shown himself canable of this combination. We have in our borhood, it is far from improbable retired bandit of the highest order of intelli-'Good heaven!" cried the horrified Anas tasie. "Henri, how can you!" "My cherished one, this is a process of in duction," said the doctor. "If any of my steps are unsound correct me. You are silent? Then do not, I beseech you, be so vulgarly illogical as to revolt from my conclusion. We have now arrived," he re-sumed, "at some idea of the composition of the gang-for 1 incline to the hypothesis of more than one-and we now leave this room, which can disclose no more, and turn our attention to the court and garden. (Jean-Marie, I trust you are observantly following my various steps; this is an excellent piece of education for you.) Come with me to the door. No steps on the court; it is unfortunate our court should be paved. On what small matters hang the destiny of these delicate investigations! Hey! What have we here? I have led you to the very spot," he said, standing grandly backward and indi-cating the green gate. "An escalade, as you can now see for yourselves, has taken place. Sure enough, the green paint was in several places scratched and broken; and one of the panels preserved the print of a nailed shoe. The foot had slipped, however, and it was difficult to estimate the size of the shoe, and impossible to distinguish the pattern of the "The whole robbery," concluded the doctor, "step by step, has been reconstituted inductive science can no further go."

No one medicine will cure everything, but apr4-2mdAw BABY CARBIAGES.

"It is wonderful," said his wife. "You should have been a detective, Henri. I had no idea of your talents."

"My dear," said Desprez, condescendingly, "a man of scientific imagination combine the lesser faculties; he is a detective just as he is a publicist or a general; these are but local applications of his special talent. But now," he continued, "would you have me go further! Would you have me lay my finger on the culprits-or rather, for I cannot promise quite so much, point out to you the very house where they consort! It may be a satisfaction, at least it is all we are likely to get, since we are denied the remedy of law. I reach the further stage in this way. In order to fill my outline of the robbery, I require a man likely to be in the forest idling, I require a man of education, I re-quire a man superior to considerations of morality. The three requisites all center in Tentaillon's boarders. They are painters: therefore they are continually lounging in the forest. They are painters; therefore they are not unlikely to have some smatter-ing of education. Lastly, because they are painters, they are probably immoral. And this I prove in two ways. First, painting i an art which merely addresses the eye; does not in any particular exercise the moral sense. And second, painting, in common with all the other arts, implies the dangerous quality of imagination. A man of imagina-tion is never moral; he outsoars literal demarcations and reviews life under too many chifting lights to rest content with the invidious distinctions of the law."

"But you always say-at least, so I understood you"-said madame, "that these lads display no imagination whatever,"

My dear, they displayed imagination, and of a very fantastic order, too," returned the doctor, "when they embraced their beggarly Besides-and this is an argu Profession. ment exactly suited to your intellectual level -many of them are English and American. Where else should we expect to find a thief! And now you had better get your coffee. Because we have lost a treasure, there is no reason for starving. For my part, I shall break my fast with white wine. I feel un-accountably heated and thirsty today. I can only attribute it to the shock of the dis-And yet, you will bear me out, I supported the emotion nobly." The doctor had now talked himself back into an admirable humor; and as he sat in the arbor and slowly imbibed a large allowance of white wine and picked a little bread and cheese with no very impotuous appetite, if athird of his meditations ran upon the missing treasure, the other two-thirds were more pleasingly buried in the retrospect of his detective skill.

About 11 Casimir arrived. He had caught an early train to Fontainebleau and driven over to save time, and now his cab was stabled at Tentaillon's, and he remarked, studying his watch, that he could spare an hour and a half. He was much the man of busi-
