

MIDSUMMER DRINKS.

COOL PALATE TICKLERS FOR NEW YORKERS' HOT THROATS.

A Great Variety of Fluid Refreshments for the Heated Throat—At the Drug Store Fountain—A Crowd of Thirty Women.

New York probably beats the world for the variety and quality of its fluid refreshments, both for warm and cold weather, but more especially in summer.

The drug store fountain, with its gurgling and bubbling established feature of the thirst supply trade of this city, and from humble beginnings as a dispenser of soda water and mild essences.

Without waiting for an answer, he adds, "Oh, not enough strychnine to hurt," he adds, in reply to your surprised look, "Just enough to brace the nerves. It's soothing."

But if you want to see a crowd of hot women drink, step into a row of bottles, where they pour in fatigued by shopping and chasing the head.

A crowd of women struggling for something to quench their thirst in an inextinguishable light.

Dr. Henry Maudsley, in London, in his address before the recent meeting of the Anthropological association in this city, distinguished between the occasional or accidental criminal, who presents nothing characteristic.

And to descend to the lowest thing that a gentleman, we should remember that his minor manners must be attended to; he does not swear or smoke in the dining room.

Suppose that the average man is inclined to step from the quiet street, a few minutes, and mount the four or five flights of stairs leading to the main operating room of the Western Union company's Boston office.

The stranger is apt to think that electricity is going to be used in the future, to wonder how on earth an operative distinguishes the click of his instrument in the general tumult.

WHEN PEOPLE MEET.

THE SALUTATIONS COMMONLY EMPLOYED BY DIFFERENT NATIONS.

Gentlemen and Fair Lady—On the Continent—Men Embracing One Another, Malays, Chinese, Japanese—The Moorish Way—The Military Salute.

In walking down a busy thoroughfare an observer cannot help remarking the different manners in which the various travelers, pedestrians or otherwise greet one another.

The peasants of Spain, in the country, greet one another as they pass a salute, a portion of the bread they always carry with them.

And when you meet a man of a different nation, you find that he greets you in a different way.

It is not a question of politeness, but of habit, and the habit of a nation is a matter of course.

And when you meet a man of a different nation, you find that he greets you in a different way.

It is not a question of politeness, but of habit, and the habit of a nation is a matter of course.

And when you meet a man of a different nation, you find that he greets you in a different way.

It is not a question of politeness, but of habit, and the habit of a nation is a matter of course.

And when you meet a man of a different nation, you find that he greets you in a different way.

It is not a question of politeness, but of habit, and the habit of a nation is a matter of course.

EYES MADE OF CRYSTAL.

What a New York Dealer Says Concerning Artificial Optics.

"It is all wrong to say a 'bulky eye with glass eyes,'" said a Maiden Lane manufacturer and importer who is something of an expert in the matter.

"Why is it all wrong?" "Well, there may be bulky eyes, but there is no such thing as a glass eye."

"What would you call this?" we asked, at the same time holding up an artificial human eye.

"We import most of our eyes from France," said the manufacturer, "and the eyes are made of crystal, and are not of glass."

"Of course there is. As I understand it, crystal eyes cannot be colored into shape. Just how they are colored and what the nature of the eye is, I have no idea."

"The latest wrinkle in manners is this: To sleep on a bed and have the bed made up and down by a servant."

"The houses of Abyssinia," said the manufacturer, "are built of mud, and are mostly built of wood."

FRANCES HODGSON BURNETT.

How She Works—Her First Stories—What She Recollects.

New York, July 6.—It is conceded that at the present time there is an immensely large number of persons earning their livelihood solely by the exercise of their literary faculties and capacity.

"I would call that a crystal eye, because it is made out of crystal, and not of glass."

"If you were to see a girl of a certain living with her mother, sister and brothers on a farm near Enns, Tenn., she gathered wild grapes and made a little colored girl to take them into the town and sell them."

"There are many of us people, sometimes, I think, as many as nine of ten, who seem to think it no crime to cheat a bank."

"The physician and the Cook," said the manufacturer, "are considered the two most useful professions in the world."

"Manager of a Theatrical Company—That man who just passed is the most valuable man that I ever took out of a town of the size of New York."

"The houses of Abyssinia," said the manufacturer, "are built of mud, and are mostly built of wood."

Uses of the Irish Messenger.

The Prison Messenger is a peculiar character. He is attached to every police court in the city.

"It was at the Institute of Technology, a few days before the close of the term. One of the professors had been troubled by hearing some of the students indulging in algebraic geometry."

"A Tale from the North," said the manufacturer, "is a story of a girl of a certain living with her mother, sister and brothers on a farm near Enns, Tenn."

"A Tale from the North," said the manufacturer, "is a story of a girl of a certain living with her mother, sister and brothers on a farm near Enns, Tenn."

"The Opening of the Campaign," said the manufacturer, "is a story of a girl of a certain living with her mother, sister and brothers on a farm near Enns, Tenn."

"The Opening of the Campaign," said the manufacturer, "is a story of a girl of a certain living with her mother, sister and brothers on a farm near Enns, Tenn."

"The Opening of the Campaign," said the manufacturer, "is a story of a girl of a certain living with her mother, sister and brothers on a farm near Enns, Tenn."

"The Opening of the Campaign," said the manufacturer, "is a story of a girl of a certain living with her mother, sister and brothers on a farm near Enns, Tenn."

STANDARD CHEWING TOBACCO.

DO YOU CHEW?

THE BEST THE FINZERS' OLD HONESTY!

THE CHALFONTE'S Ocean End of North Front Street, ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.

THE HOWARD COTTAGE, Ocean End of North Front Street, ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.

THE STOCKTON HOTEL, Cape May, N. J.

THE HOTEL NORMANDIE, Formerly Hotel Oakland, ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.

THE MANSION, Largest and Most Convenient House in Atlantic City, N. J.

MT. GRETTA PARK, FOR RECREATION AND PLEASURE.

THE LANCASTER DAILY INTELLIGENCER.

ADVERTISEMENTS.

Advertisement for THE MANSION, a large and convenient house in Atlantic City.

Advertisement for THE STOCKTON HOTEL, located in Cape May, New Jersey.

Advertisement for THE HOTEL NORMANDIE, formerly Hotel Oakland, in Atlantic City.

Advertisement for THE MANSION, a large and convenient house in Atlantic City.

Advertisement for MT. GRETTA PARK, for recreation and pleasure.

Advertisement for THE MANSION, a large and convenient house in Atlantic City.

Advertisement for CHINA HALL, offering Mason Fruit Jars in all sizes.