Manufacturers' Views: We ask our readers to-day a candid perusal of the letter written by Mr. Arthur T. Lyman, a manufacturer and formerly a prominent Republican.

Manual Training in Schools: The able paper which was read by Superintendent R. K. Buehrle, of this city, before the national educators in session in California, and which was printed in the INTELLIGENCER on Thursday, will attract wide attention among those who study the problems of the age, and who, in particular, are interested in the progress of true education.

It is a strong philosophical essay that deals with educational tendencies which all thoughtful people recognize, but which few have the courage or ability to discuss in the manner which Lancaster's superintendent has chosen.

Minnesota: Look out for something to drop in Minnesota this fall. In 1884 the Prohibition vote was 4,684; in 1886 it was 9,000, and well-informed politicians now say that it may rise to 30,000 in November.

This change has been brought about by the repeal of the tariff reform. In the Fifth congressional district convention held before the Chicago convention and after that at St. Louis, this resolution was passed: "We insist upon a material and judicious reduction of the tariff, especially where it bears heavily upon the producing and agricultural interests, and demand that Congress shall cease trifling with this most important subject."

Two other congressional conventions in the state adopted resolutions of similar import. The plain lesson of this is that the free whisky Republican platform is not to be endorsed by the northwestern Republicans this year.

Fusion in Michigan: The Democrats and Greenbackers of Michigan have united in a fusion ticket whereby the Democrats take the nominations for governor, lieutenant governor, secretary of state and state treasurer, and the Greenbackers secure the auditor general, land commissioner and attorney general.

The fusion nominee for governor is Mr. Wellington R. Burt, who is reputed to be of large wealth and identified with the lumber interests of the Saginaw valley. He has been quoted as against the free lumber feature of the Mills bill, but his speech of acceptance endorses the St. Louis platform in its entirety.

The fusion nominees are men of state reputation and of great personal strength. In the election of four years ago in Michigan, Blaine polled 192,689 votes, the Cleveland (Fusion) ticket 186,361, and St. John, the Prohibitionist, 18,403. It will be seen therefore that Blaine's plurality was only 3,308. Since that time the growth of the spirit of revenue reform in the Northwest has been very great.

The united action of the Democrats and Greenbackers this year will make it difficult for the Republicans to hold the state.

The Duty on Tobacco: We print a few of the opinions of tobacco men on the restoration in the Mills bill of the old duty on the leaf, which is so anxiously cultivated in this vicinity. The consensus of opinion is that it is a good thing, and we think it will be so appreciated by the tobacco growers of this country.

The Mills bill was framed to meet the wants of only Democratic constituencies. One of the arguments that would have been used to some advantage on the stump in this county has now fallen from our opponent's hands, and they will have to hunt elsewhere for material for condemnation of this measure for tariff reform.

Representative Sowden ought to be well satisfied with the result of his tilt with the president, for although he did not succeed in convincing the House that Allentown ought to have a public building, despite the presidential veto, he came near enough to that consummation to show that his arguments have been effective with his fellow members.

The number of votes necessary to pass the bill over the presidential veto was 102, and Mr. Sowden secured 141 votes for his measure to St. Augustin. It is a pretty fair indication that a number of Democrats considered that the president had made an error of judgment in refusing Allentown a public building.

A young married woman that was swept over Niagara Falls on Thursday. Unknown to her husband, she was reaching with another man. Not often does retribution follow so fast upon wrong-doing.

Hon. Stephen Neil, of Lebanon, Indiana, one of the staunchest Republicans of the state, has declared for Cleveland. An Indiana Republican's conversion is just now more serious than a Pennsylvania Democrat's fall.

William Ayres & Sons, manufacturers of woollens—chiefly blankets—in Philadelphia, do an extensive business and employ from 1,200 to 1,500 men. Mr. William Ayres and Mr. Louis Ayres are heartily and unqualifiedly in favor of free wool.

"In the first place," said Mr. Louis Ayres, "we shall be able to make cheaper goods. That will increase consumption. A large consumption will necessitate more labor. If you have to employ a large quantity of goods, calling for more labor, you benefit the workman in two ways. First, you give him more work, and, secondly, you even chance of better wages, because you know the greater the demand for a thing the higher will be its price in the market. But both the manufacturer and the operative will be benefited. To illustrate: Supposing we are selling a certain line of goods at 50 cents per yard, and then we reduce the price to 40 cents, we are selling our goods at 20 per cent. less than we were selling them at for fifteen years ago. Now, at the reduced rate, we are selling not twice, but five times, as many as we were doing; and we don't make as much per article as we did with the higher price, yet in the aggregate we make more, because you understand, that with quantity the cost of production is less—that is, the proportionate cost for a large production is less than for a small quantity of the same goods."

"Now," he regarded articles that would be really affected by the passage of the Mills measure, such as knit goods, gentlemen's and ladies' underwear, flannels, blankets, coats, pantaloons—many necessities. Supporting the 10 cents a pound taken off wool—some grades are taxed higher—amounts to 25 per cent. less, nearly the whole of it will go to the consumer, for competition will settle that point mightily quickly. His pay is thereby enhanced 25 per cent. in the purchase of wool, at least, as it applies to these articles. I maintain that business in some branches, under the situation of free raw material, will increase tenfold. Under these circumstances how can anybody say the laborer is to be injured?"

The Philadelphia Press could not find strong enough words to express its disgust over Joseph Barbere, the Confederate colonel whom Pension Agent Davis, in Philadelphia, appointed chief clerk of his department. It created so fierce an opposition to him that Barbere was compelled to resign. Now Joseph has become a Republican and the Press chronicles him "a man of high discriminating intelligence" and "a gallant colonel." This is what follows the croaking of the pregnant hinges of the knee.

The Maine Republican state convention on June 13, 1884, declared that "we are unalterably opposed to the abolition or reduction of the internal revenue tax on liquors, and demand that all possible reduction of taxation shall be made on necessities, and not on luxuries." This seems to be Blaine's present position, but it is not that of his party.

PERSONAL: Mr. J. Howard Wert, principal of the boys' high school in Harrisburg, is a poet whose works, well known in Dauphin county and vicinity, are now to have a wider circulation in a book of nearly 200 pages entitled "Poems of Camp and Hearth." The book displays a goodly share of the divine effluvia and the poems are upon subjects that have a modern interest. Copies may be secured from the author in Harrisburg.

HARRY A. GARFIELD and James R. Garfield have formed a partnership under the name of Garfield & Garfield, and opened an office in Cleveland, Ohio.

THE REV. JOHN G. WIEBLE, D. D., for many years pastor of the German Reformed Church in Philadelphia, died on Wednesday, aged 71 years.

CHAIRMAN CALVIN BRICE is by no means an amateur politician. He was active in politics in Ohio during the period when the Democratic party of that state was organized under plans formulated by Samuel J. Tilden. It was this perfecting of organization, made by the late John G. Thompson, Calvin S. Brice and others, which enabled the Democrats to come within 100 votes of the coveted office of carrying Ohio at the October election in 1876.

A BAND OF YOUNG THIEVES: They Arrange a Plan to Rob a National Bank. On Thursday three boys, not over 12 years old, were arrested near the Exposition buildings, in Cincinnati, where they had been observed attempting to pick pockets from strangers. Late last evening they confessed, and by their own statements showed that they were members of a regularly organized band of young thieves. The gang was composed of Bundy Wainwright, Walter Harris, Willie Madders and other prisoners. Their ages range from 12 to 18. Dixon, one of the prisoners, stated that the gang had been picking pockets and tapping tills all over the city. Several days ago they made a round and tapped the till of the drug store at Freeman avenue and Baymiller streets. From there they went to Freeman, near Oakley street, where they tapped the till of a grocery store. They then went to the saloon at the corner of Richmond and Baymiller streets and relieved the till of its contents. From here they worked northward, the next place being the saloon at Freeman avenue and Liberty streets. Here they succeeded in getting several dollars in change. The gang, according to the prisoners' statements, even went so far as to organize a raid on the Second National bank, at 14th and Main streets. It was arranged that three of the gang should visit the bank about closing time, and while two of them started a sham fight, the third was to climb the iron railing or get through a door and grab a sack of money. The boys visited the place twice, but each time a blizzard happened to be in the neighborhood. After this attempt, Wainwright,
