Goodendorf's Leg Unnecessary. Joseph Goodendorf, the man who was so bedly hurt by a falling piano at William Bale's hotel, yesterday afternoon, was taken to his home on Lime street, near the Littiz turopike, immediately sfterwards. He was there attended by Dr. M. L. Herr. Although the bones are badly crushed and broken, the physician thinks there is suffi cient periosteum, or bone covering, left t produce a new bone. Every effort will be made to save the leg, although it may be very difficult. The injured man displaysa great deal of "gri"," notwithstanding his terrible injury. After the excitement and confusion at unding the accident to Goodendorf had passed away, Mr. Balz had the plane placed in the second story without an accident of any kind. It was believed by many that the instrument would be broken to piece by the terrible fall, but, strange to say, the only damage to it was the cracking of the lid and a slight bruise to one corner. The plano is now in Mr. Balz's tor in simost as good condition as it was balore the socident. Summer Leisure.
