The noise was heard by the family, and assistance was at once given to her. She was revived in a few minutes, but the right side of her head, but no bones were broken. On Sunday she was feeling somewhat better, but she gradually grew worse until death came to her relief this morning.

Mrs. Keys was born in Maryland in the vicinity of Conowingo. She was the mother of the late Thomas Keys, who died about two years ago and with whom she made her home for the past thirty-three years. Her son John Keys was living in Maryland when last heard from. She had thirteen grandchildren and a great-grandchild. The funeral will be held on Thursday at Balbriggan. Death of Frank Hradky. Frank Hradky, son of George H. Hradky, the well known baker, died on Monday evening at the home of his father, at No. 519 West Lemon street. Deceased was 32 years of age and for many years has been employed at his father's bakery. He was driving the wagon up the street Friday, when he was taken with trouble of the heart, which compelled him to stop work and finally caused his death. He was a member of the Lancaster Mower club and had a large circle of friends and acquaintances.

The interment will be made at Harborside, Thursday morning. The family of the deceased moved from that city to Lancaster six years ago, and he was as well known in the capital city as here. He was a member of the Citizens fire company of that city.

Disturbance at the Household. William Schneider, whose wife keeps a grocery at Mary and West King streets, got drunk yesterday and raised a disturbance at home. He threatened to kill his wife and family, who fled in terror from him. While his wife ran out of the house he stole $22 belonging to her, which was in the safe. Mr. Schneider finally went to Alderman Hersh's office and made complaint against her husband, charging him with assault of the peace and drunken and disorderly conduct. Officer Hersh arrested the man and took him to the station house. This morning he was removed to jail.

To Exhibit the Battle of Gettysburg. The managers of the Lancaster county fair, to be held at McCreary's park from September 17 to September 22, have made arrangements with W. K. Trimble, agent for the great original cyclorama painting of the battle of Gettysburg, to have that splendid work of art exhibited at the park grounds during the week of the fair. This painting is 200 feet in length and 10 feet high, painted in oil and exhibited under a mammoth tent, 40 feet high and 90 feet in diameter. It is viewed from a raised platform, and has all the vivid reality of the actual battle scene.

A Father Starting Proposition. A capitalist, who has a large amount of shrewd business habits has made a proposition to the directors of the Farmer's Southern market, that if they will add another story to the structure he will lease it for five years at an annual rental of $5,000. His object is to fit it up as an opera house and theatre. The proposition will be laid before the stockholders. It is a great pity it was not made two or three weeks ago, before the roof was put on.

The Mayor's Court. The only offender before the mayor this morning was Henry Speer, a old offender who was arrested by Officer Gorman Monday afternoon. He begged the mayor hard to leave him off, as he claimed it was his first offense before him. The mayor said that although it was the first time he had been before him, he knew him of old, and as he was rather shabby from the effects of his drunk he would give him a short time to sober up. Ten days was his sentence.

Broke an Axle. As one of the Pennsylvania railroad freight wagons was crossing the street railway at the corner of North Queen and Lemon streets, Monday afternoon about 5 o'clock, one of the front wheels caught upon the railroad track, and the front axle was broken square off, making it necessary to reepl the freight. The street railway at this corner is in very bad condition.

A KICKING MUSTANG.

He Refuses to Work in a Wagon and Draws Crows Everywhere.

A great excitement was caused in different streets in the eastern part of the town yesterday afternoon. Edward Sanders and several friends hitched up a mustang pony, which came from the West, beside a mule in a rather heavy wagon and undertook to drive them. The pony would not have it that way, and as soon as the mule would start he would kick in every direction and his heels were in the air more than on the ground while he was fastened to the wagon. He would kick himself once every time he was hitched and would often get to the mule's side of the tongue and kick him very badly. The pony was one of the most stubborn ever seen in this city and although everything was done to make him go he would move but a few feet until he began kicking. He kicked twice and of a sudden he appeared on the right side of the mule for more than an hour attracting the largest crowds of people. The pony kicked himself loose from the wagon a dozen times in a half square, and before he finished he was badly injured in kicking against an iron piece that was on the wagon tongue, he cut very ugly gashes in his hind legs, which bled profusely. The men who had the pony in charge were very persevering, and as fast as he would kick himself out of his place to the wagon they would put him back. Many persons who saw the way in which the horse was handled thought that his treatment was rougher than it should have been, and several spoke of bringing suit against the driver. The pony was finally induced to go up Church street and home with the wagon to him.

His Efforts Appreciated. The account of the growing speech at Litzitz of Prothonotary John W. Metzger, which was printed in the INTELLIGENCER last evening, excited much talk among the Republican politicians, all of whom freely conceded that it transformed Metzger from a local to a national power in politics. We are informed that General Harrison, on learning of the great effort, promptly forwarded the Colocato statement a solid portrait of himself, which will be presented to him formally in the near future.

Deputy Recorder Charles F. Eberman, with much heat, denies that he was with the Columbia bridge cohort. He says he was at home watching "Coppersiders." When not engaged in his patriotic task he was working for a vacant official's seat. He was the only one of the soldiers mentioned who took of use at the remarks of the eloquent orator.

Death of Robert Herr. Robert Herr, aged about 80 years, died at the residence of his son-in-law, William Weitzel, 531 West Lemon street, Monday evening. He took a chill a few days ago and owing to his advanced age he failed to rally from it. Mr. Herr was a native of York county, a moulder by trade, and worked at his trade until old age incapacitated him for labor. He leaves a wife (who is totally blind), and the following named children: Robert, who lives in Camden, N. J.; William and Mahlen in Philadelphia; Lizzie in York county, and George in Lancaster. Two daughters, Mrs. William Weitzel and Miss Anna Herr, live in this city.

Mr. Herr was an assistant wagonmaster during the war of the rebellion. His funeral will take place Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Interment at Woodward Hill.

Thrown from a Wagon. This morning about half-past eleven o'clock as Levi Hallock, colored, was driving J. R. Martin & Co's business team on Christian street near Grant, one of the wheels struck a heavy piece of timber that was lying on the west side of the narrow street, scattering the horse and causing him to shy quickly to the east side. Hallock lost his seat and was thrown headlong to the ground, his forehead striking against the curbstone in front of J. L. Wisler's reweaving room. The wagon also passed over Hallock's arm, bruising it badly, but breaking no bones. The gash in his forehead just above the right eye is a deep one, some two inches in length. Hallock was carried into Wisler's office and Dr. Metzger summoned to attend him. He was afterwards taken to his home on Middle street near Rockland.

They Had a Street Fight. Monday evening a party of nine became engaged in a fight at West King and Prince streets. A crowd was drawn to the place. It seems that George Brown and Thomas Hatten had some words, and George Carr interfered in behalf of Hatten. Carr and Brown became engaged in a fight, and after they became separated Brown was walking away, when he says Carr came up behind and struck him. The result of the row was that Constable Gundaker has prosecuted both Brown and Carr before Alderman McConomy, charging them with engaging in an affray. Brown also prosecuted Carr for assault and battery. The former furnished bail for a hearing last evening and the latter did likewise to-day.

After Another Man's Wife. Lewis H. Whitaker has brought a civil suit in the prothonotary's office for $5,000 damages against Charles Gorman. The plaintiff is a merchant doing business at Berksport, in Adams county. He says that his business has taken him away from home a great deal during the past three years. In his absence the defendant succeeded in alienating the affections of his wife, whom he seduced. The pair had been guilty of improper conduct at different times and places, and accused had often boasted of it. This state of affairs led plaintiff and his wife to separate on July 12, 1888, and the former says he sustained damages to the amount of $5,000. A certificate was issued, and Deputy Sheriff Armstrong started after Gorman this morning.

Destruction of the Greybill Mill. Mr. H. F. Greybill, whose mill was destroyed by fire some two weeks ago, called at the prothonotary's office to have a certificate made in the article published. It was stated that the insurance was $11,000, whereas the insurance on the mill and saw mill was only $4,800 and on the stock $3,000, $7,800 in all, the total loss being $10,000. The mill was reported to be doing only a "flood trade." Mr. Greybill says he can show that he shipped twenty-five hundred barrels of flour to the Philadelphia market since January 1st, 1888, and a good deal to Lancaster, Reading, Pottsville and the coal regions.

Police Cases. Monday morning William Proctor, on complaint of Herman Strauss, was arrested for malicious mischief, the allegation being that he used profane language and threw stones at Strauss. Proctor was held for a hearing before Alderman Pinkerton.

Roger Michael, arrested for drunken and disorderly conduct on East King street, was locked up for a hearing before Alderman Deaver.

Paul His Bill. S. A. Moore, one of the windiers, who with John J. Busch and several others, yesterday afternoon received sufficient money to pay the claim held against him by Mr. Slade, of the Franklin house, Columbia. He settled in a manner satisfactory to every one, and he was discharged from prison after which he left town very indignantly.

West West. Richard McGowan, of East Orange street, started on a Northern trip this afternoon at 2 o'clock. He goes from here to Chicago, and thence to Minneapolis and Duluth, and will be gone several weeks.

HOW THEY WERE DELIVERED!

The Manner in Which Leeches Preyed Upon Italians—Their Testimony.

New York, July 31.—The congressional committee on the immigration question, a resolution was adopted constituting two members as a quorum, and providing for the appointment of a sub-committee of two or three members to take testimony at other cities. All the powers of the full committee shall be given to the sub-committee. Francis Belmont testified that he came here from Salis, Italy, last May in a tramp steamer; 1,500 other Italians were on the same steamer. He was induced to come here like previous witnesses. Agents in Italy told him he could make money fast here. He paid 154 francs for his passage ticket, and left a wife and daughter in Italy. He had not worked since his arrival. He received help from the immigration society. Thirty-five men came with him from his native place, where they were kept in a room, the witness appeared to think like the rest of the Italian witnesses that the committee was specially appointed to right all their wrongs and get them work and high wages. This is the reason they appear to be unwilling to work for less than six francs a day, and to work only for a few days. The witness said he paid Agent Dorelli about 10 francs in March last as earnest money in the office of the immigration society at Naples. All of the 35 paid thirty francs each and he had his companions get a letter to the colonization society at Naples. People connected with the latter society told them that they would get plenty of work and money in America. He borrowed 200 francs in Italy and obligated him to pay 25 francs Feb. 1 next; after that he is charged 25 per cent. interest. Giuseppe Menotti, another Italian, gave similar testimony.

TWO FLECKY SISTERS. They are Confronted by Two Burglars in Their Room and Make Short Shift of Them.

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., July 31.—Two maiden ladies, Maria and Vireta Reeves, living near Davisville, just above here, last night shot and killed one burglar and mortally wounded and captured another. The encounter happened about midnight. One of the sisters saw a man in her room, seized a revolver and fired. The other sister was awakened, seized a weapon, and sprang on the other burglar as he was trying to escape through a window.

He was too late, as he fell to the ground with a bullet through his groin. Both burglars were strangers in this section, but are supposed to be old timers. The two maiden ladies are being lionized by the neighbors.

They are generally supposed to keep a large sum of money in the house.

Mr. Kingler paid the note and the bank withdrawing the complaint. There was no evidence that Mr. Kingler forged the endorsement. On the contrary Mrs. Kingler acknowledged that she wrote her father's name on the back of the note, without felonious intent.
