Enermous Increase in Consumption of Beer Whisky Pailing Off. Colonel Switzler, the chief of the buren of statistics, does not look upon the increase in the consumption of mait liquors in this the advocates of that form of stimulant. He rays that the assumption that the beer drinking nations are more temperate than those which consume spirituous liquors is erroneous. England is the greatest beer drinking country, yet drunkenness is as prevalent there as in almost any country on the globe. on the globe,

The consumption of mait liquors has progressed with enormous strides in this country in the past forty years, and the results ought to go far to prove or disprove the theory that beer drinking countries do not nourish drunkards. In 1840 there were only 23,000,000 galions of mait liquors consumed here, amounting to 136 galions per capits. The hard liquors drunk the same year averaged two and a haif galions per capits, and the wine a little over a quart.

In 1850 the proportion and the consumption per capita had not greatly changed, but in 1860 the great advance in the consumption of beer began. One hundred and one million gallons were consumed in the United States that year, against about ninety million gallons of hard liquors and eleven million gallons of wine. The per capita consumption of mait liquors was $22 100—exactly equal to the consumption of both hard liquor and wines.

of both hard liquor and wines.

In 1870 the consumption of malt liquor had more than doubled in gross amount and nearly doubled per capita. The amount per capita was 5.21 gallons, while hard liquors and wines together only reached 2.4 gallons. The advance has gone on with accelerating repldity from year to year ever since. Wines have attained a little, but hard floures have almost steadily fallen off. The figures for the fiscal year 1887 just published show that 717,748,854 gallons of mait liquor were consumed in the United States or purport the year, against 642 967,720 States curing the year, against 642 967,720 for the year before. Nearly all of it is produced in this country, only 2 300,000 gallons being imported in 1887. The per capita now reaches 11 98 gallons, an increase of now reaches 11 is gallons, an increase of nearly a gallon over 1886, and nearly eight times what it was in 1860. The consump-tion of wines increased last year from 25,-700,827 gailons to 32 619 290 gailons, but it 700,827 gailons to 32,619,219 gailons, but it only react on 54,100 of a gallon per capits.

Distilled spirits consumed 71,064,733 gallons, but this was less than in 1886 and its sthan in 1860, when the population was only balf as large. The consumption of beer 10 1850 was confined almost exclusively to th German new comers, but its use has rapidly spread until it takes in nearly all drinking Americans, and American beer has almost altogether taken the place of Medford rum and Kentucky whisky. The consumption of beer among women is said to be rep-idly on the locresse, but there are no sta-tistics upon the subject.

Fraudulent Advertising There are all kinds of advertising schemes at present, but one of the greatest frauds is the man who goes around securing the cards of business men which he agrees to put in fancy letters in a gaudy frame and hang them up where they will remain forever. There have been a dezen of men of this kind in Lancaster within a year. They have put up these frames all over town and they have been torn cown or broken aln ort green n as the schemers left. People who never think of using the newspapers r other legitimate ways for advertising go into these scheines and in most cases are robbed. A man with a frame and glib

The doctor stopped at a house in Church street, leaving the boy in the buggy. The horse frightened at a passing deg cart and ran into Lime street. At the corner of Millin the buggy struck against a large stone and was upset. The boy was thrown out and badly bruised. The horse regained his feet and started off, and was only caught after he had gone a considerable distance. The buggy was protty well

WATCH REPAIRING.

WATCH REPAIRING

A Watch is the most delicate and intricate piece of mechanism made by man, and the one that receives the least attention. Your steam engine, your wagon receives more.
It is an established fact that there are more watches ruined by the average watch he pairer than by the Watch Carrier.
We have a Watch in our possession made by the undersigned; this, coupled with an EXPERIENCE OF EIGHTEES YEARS AT THE BENCH, enables us to turn out work of Highest Grade at reasonable prices and sa isfaction to our customers. Would respectfully invite a trial,
