JOHN AND THE LAMB JOHN AND THE LEAST.
John I and is had a little lamb;
Its firece was waite as snow.
And when John went to sunday school,
The lamb was sure to go.

One 'ay John sheared the little lamb, Before the children's eyes; Watch filled their little hearts with f.ar And wonder and surprise.

Why did John Landie shear the lamb The fleece so highly prize ! O'er other people's eyes.

BLONDE BRAULT IN ITS WATERS.

A Lake of Matural Hoir Dye in the Paverce From the Virginia City Enterprise

Mono lake constitutes one of the greater natural deposits of hair dye in the known world. A white haired old Bodie man who went down to the lake this summer was so pleased with the bathing to be had there that he went in for aswim regularly every evening after finishing his day's work. He was down at the lake two weeks, and when was down at the lake two weeks, and when he got back to Bodie his friends bardly knew him. He left Bodie a white haired old man, and he came back a golden blonde and apparently a man of only middle ega. All who bathe in the waters of that lake become blondes, and if the bathing be persisted in for any length of time they get to be red headed. A man last spring rented the Levining ranch, on the north side of the lake. He had three strapping daughters. As soon as the water because warm enough. As soon as the water became warm enough the girls daily went bathing in the late, taking for their mermaid gambols a time when the "men fotks" were all out on the ranch at work. When they began taking their dips in the lake the girls were brown haired, but they soon found themselves becoming blondes. This so delighted them that they began bathing twice a day, and between times washed their heads in water from the lake.

from the lake

The old man had noticed the gradual change in the color of the halr of his daughters, and was much retonished thereat, but be had his suspicions and said nothing. He kept quiet till the hair of the girls became a flery red, and then he went to the old woman about it. When he got so had that he talked about killing a red-headed man who had once been his neighbor over in Unitornia his old woman told him it was only the water of the lake—that the transformation was caused by the girls bathing in the lake. from the lake bathing in the lake.

The cid man said it might be, but he was not satisfied. He ordered the old lady to bathe regularly every day with the girls, saying that if she became red headed he saying that if she became red headed he would think there was something in it. Boon the hair of the old woman was as red as that of her daughters. The old man still thought there was some trick about the business, so he tried the baths himself. Now the old man, the old woman, and all hands are a family of golden blonder.

They Talked of Other Things. From the San Francisco Chronicie "Yes," said he, "life is so lonely."

"It is lonely sometimes," she answered.
"Wouldn't it be sweet to have a little cotand rose bushes?"
"Oh, wouldn't it."
"And, when a fellow comes home tired from business, to have a nice little wife meet him at the door with a kies?"

And then the summer nights, the window open, the sunset just giving light enough in the cozy, and—you—I mean a wife, at the plane, singing in the gloaming. It would be lovely."

" I-think-it-would-be-nice, " At this point a careworn woman came around the corner with a pair of twins in a perambulator. A dead silence fell upon the summer air for a little. Then they changed the subject.

The Handsomest Lady in Lancaster Remarked to a irlend the other day that she new Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and angs was a superior remedy, as it stopped produgh instantly when others had no effect hatever. So to prove this and convince you its merit, any druggist will give you a Same Bottle Free. Large size 50c, and $1.00.
