Tis whispered when the lowing trains Mayo reached the pasture bars, Its whispered in the scented lane, Beneath the silent stars.

And when 'ils early, too.

Where wanton cophyra riay,
The simple contence, "Renry, please,
Do take your arm away !"

Who never to herself has eatd,
"Aha! my bang looks dainy?"
Whose heart has not within her burned,
As she her eyes on others turned.
And saw that theirs looked orany?

The people of Elberon, N. J., noticed on Wednesday afternoon a well dressed men driving furiously down Ocean avenue, closely pursued by a young and handsomely stilred woman in a buggy. The flying whiches and their occupants were closely ly stitred woman in a buggy. The flying vehicles and their occupants were closely watched until they disappeared in clouds of dust beyond Eiberon. The cocupants of other vehicles say they saw the woman overtake the man, and, hauling her buggy close beside the wagon of the fugitive, she began to lash him over the head and body with a long carriage whip.

She called him Purcell and accused him of bringing her from Chicage to Long Branch; only to cast her off. Both horses sprang into a gallop at the crack of the whip, and, as they ran almost elde by side, the castigation continued.

A well-known sporting man was seen as he came from the races, and on being told of the affair and receiving a description of the man and woman, said he knew both. The man called Purcell is from St. Louis, he said. More than a month ago he brought there with him the pretty daughter of a once wealthy planter of Arkansas. Lately he left her.
