A Ch'esgo Workman Rensted Aiivs.

Louis Larsen, a workman for Crane Brothers, in Chicago, met with his death in a very unusual way on Wednesday. He crawled into an iron cylinder used for the piston of a hydraulic elevator for the purpose of cleaning it. He took with him a lighted candle and a bucket full of bensine, in a short time the cylinder was filled with inflammable gas. An explosion followed, and the man was enveloped in flames, which filled the entire cylinder. His fellow workmen were attracted to the spot by his cries but owing to his situation it was impossible to get at him to help him, and enough water could not be at one; secured to quench the flames. So his companions were forced to eathed help jessily about and listen to the burning man's cries till they were stilled A Ch'esgo Workman Rensted Alive. burning mau's cries till they were stilled in death.

The Handsomest Lady in Lancaster
