The motion to appropriate $25 to the Shotgan oith was lost.

Wim. it. Given, eq., chairman of the press committee, in a neat speech showed the great benefit to the town that would come from the presence of prominent newspaper men, and asked for an appropriation, not to enteriain the acribes at a campaign dinner, but in a manner becoming their positions. The question was discussed at length, and finally resulted in granting the proposition.

The association then went into session, that H. Smith moved that the action of the general committee in the direction and management to contennial allairs be approved. Carried.

The general committee again went into making, and the association's recommendation, and the association's recommendation to appropriate $50 for fireworks, was believed as was also Mr. Wilson's, that all

BURLESOUS HARE BALL. The Funniest Came of the Season Played For

The Funniest Game of the Season Played For Charity.

The Washington, D.C., fund for the relief of the yellow fever sufferers is about $500 richer, and the fitteen bundred or more people, who attended the base ball game at Capital Park, in that city, on Thursday afternoon, between Thatcher, Primrose & West's minstrels and nine reporters have the consciousness not only of contributing to a worthy object, but of witnessing a most ridiculously funny and unique game of ridiculously funny and unique game of ball.

When Umpire Ed Marble, of the minstrels, called time at 4:15 o'clock nine minstrels, clad in uniforms more gorgeous and varied than the hues of the rainbow, emerged from the club house and marched in lock-step to the players' bench, W. H. West, in a cowboy's suit, with a big sombrero and long blonds locks waving in the breeze, leading the way, and "Billy" Hart, in ballet dancer's costume, bringing up the rear.

From this time until the fifth inning From this time until the fifth inning ended the game, the hilarity was uncessing, and the sides of the spectators at the conclusion of the game were as sore as the bodies of the players. George Primrose, dressed as "Touchstone" in a gaudy and tight fitting suit of crimson and blue, played centre field.

Hart, as the ballet dancer, with brown light of the player of tights and an innumerable number of short skirts, pirouetted around third base as gracefully as a premier danseuse, even if he did not accept all the chances that came his way. The minstrels were disposed to object to Umpire Marble's decisions, but he are the disposed to present the same has been placed a must be a local part of the same has been placed a must be a local part of the same has been placed as must be a local part of the same has been placed as must be a local part of the same placed as must be a local part of the same placed as must be a local part of the same placed as must be a local part of the same placed as must be a local part of the same placed as must be a local part of the same placed as the same placed were kept in awe by a horse pistol, a musket

Whyte pitched for the minutrels and also stole bases "with impunity," as sporting writers say, until a special policeman ran him in and put him in the lock up for larceny. Darkness ended the game after the fifth inning, the score being a tie.

From the Philadelphia Ledger.

The sense of the dignity of his high office has prevented the president from making speeches during the campsign, or doing sny other thing which to him seemed incompatible with his duty to the country. His conduct throughout the campaign has seen admirable, and has excited universal respect and admiration. Indeed, it is feit that it might well stand as a precedent to be rigorously followed by future presidents when candidate for re election. Mr. Cleveland evidently believes that he who serves his country best serves best not only his party, but his party's candidate. From the time that he was form the time that his renomination was first suggested to this time Mr. Cleveland has done no single thing which has an ijected him to the suspicions of fair minded men him to the suspicions of fair-minded men of acting from any other motive than that of faithfully serving his country's interests. In this we think he has been as shrewd as wise, as the American people, with their fine, acute intelligence, would promptly have discovered and resented a contrary course of conduct on the part of their chief

The Drop in the Value of Farms

From the Philadelphia Record.

The value of farms in Pennsylvania, notwithstanding ten years of labor in their improvement, decreased 7 per cent. in the ten years between 1870 and 1880. During that time the farmers enjoyed to the full all the advantage to be derived from protected manufacturing operations. The "home market" provided by the "diversified industry" we hear so much about brought domand right to the door of supply. How. demand right to the door of supply. How, then, is it possible to account for the decreased value of the farmers' lands? This question becomes more of a puzzle than ever when it is remembered that in the "free trade" years from 1850 to 1860 the value of farm lands in Pennsylvania increased 60 per cent.
