LANCASTER, SEPTEMBER 26, 1858,

Columbia's Day. The sun shines upon the Columbia cenmial, and the elequence of Brosius has Stting setting under a cloudless sky. at is the weather that suits it best, for cannot follow back very comfortably one's mind, to the origin of creation d the establishment of civilization h the water running down one's back. is is necessary on all centennial occasions the orator to go back pretty and pick up things as he es up the long avenue of time, or he vista of years or , something of that met. Mr. Brosius did justice to his ocpasion, as he usually does, and gave Colabla a first-class oration, with quite as meh information as they were en-alled to expect. We do not know well warranted he was in charging a bottle of Madeira with government away from Columbia, and we fear that his authority is somewhat tion that he says Columbia's ancient advocate was. But the Columbia of today can afford to smile upon the evanessince it has enough in its present size and condition to make it content and happy. It has taken on a new growth of late and is a strong and healthy child. Maybe in its maturity it will lap and pass Lancaster; there is no foretelling the spread of population, but Lancaster can never be jealous of it, for all its out reaching must be toward her border; and as Lancaster is spreading westward, some day the two towns may run together and coalesce.

Conscientions Old Age. The Republican Press has been much exercised for some weeks past over a $10, 000 check which Mr. Cleveland was declared to have given to the national comnittee. No affirmation or denial of the statement has been secured from the White House, and our Republican friends are given permission to believe or disbelieve the story, just as they happen to feel about it. Some of them not only believe it, but think it a very heinous offense in the president; and our scrupulous Winnebago chief is reported to have declared, from his seclusion under the shadow of Donegal church, that this deed alone should suffice to defeat the president's re-election. To such Republicans as incline to think it of so great moment, the truth of the tale should be a matter of great interest, especially when they live under the shadow of a church and are old and consequently conscientious. There may not be many suggests, but it the great majority doubt it is content to take the tale on the beat majority and not be seen and not be seen and not be seen and any compunctions clara willing exclaiming the president on slight but not; because he is a Democrat and if he a rigiprove the story against Cleveland, are oven danger of spoiling altogether its political effect. The new and improved edition which these people give out, is that the president did not give the check at all, but that one Bangs, an old friend of the president from Rochester, New York who got a fat contract in dredging Charleston harbor, gave it. This tale it will be seen, sets our horrifled Winnebago at ease about the particular depravity which led Mr. Cleveland to give ten thousand of his own money toward his election. It is true that a new offense is charged against the president; and upon this we await the Winnebago's deliverance. It may be that he will think the president unworthy of election, because Mr. Bangs contributed the ten thousand; or he may consider him not to be responsible for Bangs. Perchance the story may be amended to show a contract between Cleveland and Bangs whereby Bangs should dredge Charleston harbor and divide profits with the president, or at least pay his political assessments.

The 1't do it, he is bad enough anyway.

Since Simon Cameron, who is an ex pert upon political plunder, has taken particular charge of this section of the Republican artillery, we shall await with interest and submissiveness his final determination as to the particular quality of the ammunition served out to him. We have not ourselves been disposed to think that it mattered much whether the president had or had not given ten thousand dollars to the campaign fund. Our idea has been that he has the same freedom in this regard as any other citizen. It may be that the old Winnebago will be able to knock us out in the election with this charge. But he will greatly disgust his son Don.

And we do not have any idea that he really thinks what he is declared to have said. The old man is not yet senile.

Smuggling From Canada. Thomas Lee, of Philadelphia, is a redhot high tariff man who has been making a good deal of noise over the protection of American labor and the dangers of the Milis bill. He is one of the signers of a call for a business men's meeting to speak out for the Republican cause, and unfortunately for his party, he must be chief defendant in the charge of smuggling, just brought against his firm by the custom house officers. They recently received an invoice of wool from Canada and in the centre of three of the bales were found three pairs of Canadian

It appears very strange that Mr. Lee should run the risk of a long imprisonment, heavy fine and lasting disgrace for the sake of the few dollars that he would have made on these blankets, and it may turn out that some employe of his is ble for the crime, but the incident oints the wisdom of the Mills bill. We do not yet know the full scope of the Relican tariff bill, but it has been said authority that a chief differ-between it and the Demotic plan is the levying of a heavy duty on wool and in general a less liberal treatment of Canadian products. This Philadelphia incident should draw attention to the fact that duties on Canadian products are to a great extent premiums on amuggling. It is comparatively easy to guard against smuggling from countries beyond the sea, but we can not pretend to watch perfectly three thousand odd miles of border. If Canada did not have a tariff of her own to protect from smugglers at her sea coast, she would be a grand highway for the passage of goods into the United States around our tariff fence. As it is, that is the chief route of smugglers, and the fact has often been urged as a reason for the annexation of the dominion. Fortunately many protected articles are so bulky that they can not so easily be passed across the border in secret.

They Want to Hang Some One.

The negro who was convicted of the murder of Farmer Sharpless and who has been appointed several times to hang, he s again been respited, for the very good reason that two other men have been indicted for the deed. The attorney general is said to have suggested to the board that they could not hang the negro while the other fellows were indicted, and could not release him, pending their trial, lest it might prejudice their case. There may be force in this; but it strikes us that there is more force in the suggestion that a man should not be kept under sentence of death if he is innocent ; and that it is the duty of the board of pardons to determine whether the negro Johnson is innocent; and not that of the Chester county jury that will sit on the case of the men now accused. One Chester county jury has found the negro guilty; and the verdicts of Chester county juries should not have such effect upon the board of pardons as to keep it from discharging its duty independently of them. It is the duty of the board to say from its own investigation of the facts, whether Johnson is guilty or innocent; and if he is innocent it should discharge him. His innocence does not prove the other men, now accused, to be guilty. The two cases have no connection whatever. The accused must be proved guilty. No man should be hanged because some other man is acquitted; and the fact that the board of pardons acts as though it thought that this was justice, shows how demoralized our criminal practice is. Johnson was convicted of this murder because somebody did it and it seemed probable that he was the man. In other words he was not proved guilty beyond a reasonable doubt, as the law requires. He would have been released long ago by an intelligent pardon board. It seems simply silly to hold him to see whether some one else will not be put under the noose in his place.

THE sequittal of Stage Manager Fals, in the recent sensational trial in Philadelphia, appears to have been solely due to the op-portune confession of the man who really took the money that he was accused o stealing. The incident is impressive of the fallibility of human judgment, and the un-certainty of circumstantial evidence. The probability that there many cases of this kind where the guilty do not con fees, is at rengthened by the following inclpent of the trial. When Fals left the court a shabby-genteel looking man, with a pale face and goutlemanly manners, stopped him and congratulated him on his acquittrial, not out of curiosity, but genuine sympathy. The stranger showed by papers which he drew from his pocket that he was connected with a well-known New York family. He then told how his career had been ruined ten years ago by a con viction in Brooklyn on circumstantial evi dence similar to that produced against Fais. He was innocent, and after his release from jail shame drove him to drink, and he is now little more than a friendles drunkard. It would be hard to exaggerate the difficulties that lie in the way of the man who has served a term in jall and wishes to recover the respect of his triends. In fact the task is almost beyond human strength, and the stain is almost indelible

"ST. PAUL ABROAD," is the startling heading of London dispatches of the New York Heraid. Sadly enough it does not mean that the great apostle is at work, but that American railroads are interesting the eye to business without a doubt and is de termined to become the ru log sensation of the hour. She has just achieved the publication of extensive interviews in all the New York papers, the World giving her a column, and if liberal advertising can make a literary lioness she certainly is one. When asked which of her characters she liked the best she conningly named two in novels not yet published, and doubtless people will easer to read her work so that they may see just what manner of man or woman Amelia Rives admires. She told the reporters how she wrote that same "Brother to Dragons" which is chiefly responsible for her literary prominence "I wrote that story in two evenings, sitting up in bed-wrote it because I liked to write, and because I had the story in my mind. With the writing of it that was the end of it, but one day a very nice Boston boy, of whom we were all very fond, was visiting at the house, and found that story in the library. When I came in he said to me, "Do you know I have found the joiliest story here? I wonder who wrote it?' I told him that I had written it What, do you mean you copied it or compiled it from something?' he saked. 'No, I mean I wrote it myself.' And then with that nothing would do but he must take it back to Boston when he went. He has told me since how he took it into the office of the Atlantic Monthly, and blushed clear up to his ears when he left it with the editor's assistant 'For a friend who wrote it.' In a little while, about a week, I fancy, he had a note from Mr. Aldrich to come and see him, and not till then did Mr. Aldrich know that it was not a man who wrote the story."

A Child Carried off by an Eagle.

The baby of a farmer, William Beattle, who lives on the banks of the Cimmaro river, near Wichita, Kansas, was carried off by an eagle last Saturday. Beattle went to work in the morning, leaving in his dugout his two children, one 5 years old and a baby aged 2 months.

About noon Beattle returned home and found his girl in tears. She said she had taken the baby into the yard, and left it there while she went into the house. In a few minutes she heard a cry, and in looking out saw the baby "flying away," as she expressed it.

The father knew at once that an eagle had visited his home, and summoned his reigh bors to the wooded banks of the river, for bors to the wooded banks of the river, for which the eagle had made. In about an hour the sound of a shot summoned the searchers together. One of the men had found the eagle, and was fighting with it. He had emptied his gun at the big bird, and broken a wing, and was using his gun as a club when re enforcements arrived. The eagle fluttered into the bush, and then the father saw his infant dead, the body horribly lacerated.

Weston Pardoned and Showers to Hang. At a special meeting of the board of pardone in Harrisburg on Tuesday the most important action taken was the pardon of Milton Weston, the Chicago millionaire.
Weston was tried and convicted in June,
1884, in Allegheny county for voluntary manulaughter. In July, 1886, he was sentenced to five years in the Western pent-tentiary. The case had its origin in a dispute between Milton Weston and Obadiah Hay-maker for the possession of a piece of land situated near Murraysville, in Westmore-land county, which culminated on the 26th of November, 1883, in a personal encounter of the forces representing the opposing in-terests. As a result of this encounter Obadiah Haymaker was killed. It is not alleged that Weston inflicted the wounds which caused his death, but he was con-victed of voluntary manulaughter, as being present, aiding and abetting one Bowser and others, then in his employ, in their sots.

A number of other cases were acted upon, and among others the application for elemency of William Showers, who murdered his two grandchildren in Lebanon county, was refused.

The Evangelical Lutheran synod of Ess Pennsylvania, in session in Philadelphir, on Tuesday, reappointed Rev. W. H. Dunbar, president of the board of trustees for the orphane' home at Loysville. Rev. D. Conrad, to whom the report of Philadelphia Sabbath association was referred, made his report. In it he said:

WHEREAS political associations have been organized in many of the states of the Union, in nearly all of which the Christian Sabbath is recognized and protected by law, for the openly avowed purpose of repealing all Sabbath laws, and thereby robbing it of its sacred character and transforming it into a secular holiday, devoted to amusement, sports, labor or business; therefore

Resolved, That we look with no ordinary concern and apprehension upon the efforts of the organizations known as "Personal Liberty Leagues," composed mainly of misguided foreign-born citizens, to break down the Christian Sabbath by securing the resol of the laws which project it from the repeal of the laws which protect it from desecration by the liquor traffic and other demoralizing pursuits and indulgences. At the afternoon session Rev. Dr. Hay's resolution indorsing the Law and Order The ordination of G. G. M. Brown, D. S.

Bunco Men Secure $10,000. John J. Lemon, an aged and respected citizen of Allegheny, was swindled out of $10,000 on Tuesday by two bunco men. The slo,000 on Tuesday by two buncomen. The old gentleman was entited into a house on Pearl street and induced to play a game in which it was alleged he had won $10,000. To get this, ho wever, it would be necessary to produce a like amount. The victim fell into the trap at once, and went to the Third National bank, where he drew out the money. Returning, he placed it on the table. He then took another chance and was informed that he had lost the $20,000. This dazed him for a moment, but he quick. was informed that he had lost the $20,000. This dazed him for a moment, but he quickly recovered, and drawing a revolver, comanded his money. One of the swindlers knecked the pistol out of his hands and the two ran out, locking the door after them. By the time Lemon had succeeded in forcing the door open both men by a Gisappeared.

The police were notified.

The police were notified, but so far they have not been apprehended. Mr. Lemon is 70 years of sge and quite wealthy. This is the second time within six months that the sand game has been successfully worked in that city for large amounts.

WATCH REPAIRING. WATCH REPAIRING

A Watch is the most delicate and intricate piece of mechanism made by man, and the one that receives the least attention. Your steam that receives the least attention. Your steam engine, your wagon receives more. It is an established fact that there are more Watches ruined by the average Watch Mepairer than by the Watch Carrier.

We have a Watch in our possession made by the undersigned; this, coupled with an EX-PERIENCE OF EIGHTEEN YEARS AT THE BENCH, enables us to turn out work of the Highest Grade at reasonable prices and with satisfaction to our customers.

Would respectfully invite a trial,
