

The Daily Intelligencer.

LANCASTER, OCTOBER 17, 1888.

Peer Cooper.

We print elsewhere the circular letter of the chairman of the Republican state committee, being moved to do so by his present distress; and we do so to show that Mr. Cooper is so poorly supported as he seems to be by the rich Republicans of this great county of Lancaster.

On the long list of the finance committee of the Republican state committee, which Mr. Cooper prints among with his circular, and which we assume to contain the names of all who have contributed handsomely to the state committee's funds, we find the names of but three gentlemen of Lancaster county; namely, Francis Shrover, Thomas Baumgardner and Clement Grubb.

The plan of it is that its Republicans are not willing to spend their money for Harrison and Morton; it may be because they are not used to doing anything of the kind, having been wont to rely with placidity and satisfaction upon the contributions of the United States officials; which are now non est; or it may be that the Lancaster farmers do not quite see the beauty of a high tariff, and are willing to see its enthusiastic admirers pay for it.

Cooper complains and we all see that Republican money is scarce in Pennsylvania. Mr. Quay has gone over to New York and has taken with him all the big contributions that naturally belonged to Cooper, on the plea that New York needed it and Pennsylvania is safe.

ped to pay any price the bondholders may ask if for their bonds. It will readily be seen that if the bondholders were advised that the treasury department must have their bonds, they might put their price up to any figure. The government even now, in buying bonds, is forcing the price up on itself. The other day it was asked $130 for the 4 per cent.; and when the secretary bought none, and it was intimated that he intended to stop buying them, the price fell several points. Mr. Blaine might like to see the government redeeming its bonds at the price of two dollars for one, but it is not likely that the Western farmers would think that wise. In truth, Mr. Blaine seems to have chosen his field badly for his argument, since voters who are wont to pay high interest for their money, are not likely to appreciate an attack upon the treasury department based upon its unwillingness to redeem four per cent. bonds before they are due, at over 30 per cent. premium. It is a wonder that he did not suggest the loan of the surplus to the prairie farmers at three per cent. interest. Such a policy would be likely to be popular in a country plastered over with farm mortgages bearing seven, eight or even ten and twelve per cent. interest.

18 September cotton valued at $8,814,672 was exported from this country and nearly all of it went to Europe. Great Britain took $5,636,991 worth. Of the total New York harbor shipped 77,914 bales, valued at $3,895,038 and New Orleans 41,915 bales, or $2,021,975 worth. The exports of cotton for September were some five millions less in value than in September of 1887. Mineral oils were exported in the month to the amount of $3,574,710, which was $138,470 less than a year ago. The shipments from New York had a value of $2,758,599 and from Philadelphia $1,021,074. These figures are from the report, just issued, of Charles A. Lohrke, Registrar, of Custom House, of the treasury bureau of statistics.

A DISPATCH from London announcing the signing of a mail contract between the Imperial government and the Canadian Pacific railway company is accompanied by comment that will not greatly please the Canadians. By this contract the great monopoly gets an annual payment for carrying mails amounting to $300,000. The London dispatch says that it "is felt strongly in official commercial circles that if Canada intends to become the British route to the East she must make sacrifices to initiate an adequate service. It is pointed out that Australia, a country with a population of 4,000,000, annually pays for purely coast service $1,075,000, while Canada pays only a fractional amount." So in order that the monopoly may have control of a $300,000 mail service and the traffic with India that does not go by way of the Red Sea she must submit to more taxation.

A GEOLOGIST has come back from an expedition to the Yukon river, with such glowing accounts of the precious metals there abounding that the rush to that region is sure to be greatly increased next spring. The Yukon rises away up in the northern corner of British America and flows through some six hundred miles of British territory before entering Alaska to complete the remaining 1,700 miles of its length. This river is navigable for about two thousand miles and geologist McConnell reports that in ledges of rock along its bank rich gold ore may be seen plainly. While the crowds of miners already in the country are making from $20 to $50 a day washing gold from the sand of the river, no doubt many a life will be thrown away in the scramble for wealth on the Yukon, and underlined by the severity of the climate, which only during two months of work, that great wilderness next summer in search of treasures yet unknown. The country where precious metals must abound is usually the very roughest and most forbidding, and it must be remembered that the temperate climate of the coast does not extend far inland. In the gold belt the winter has been reported intense, and until the details of Mr. McConnell's report are known, the extravagant accounts of the abundance of gold must be taken with a grain of salt.

THE NEW ORLEANS Picayune suggests that the striking of Blaine on the front line is drawing much of the fire that might do execution if aimed at Harrison, the candidate and the Republican party. There is truth enough in this to make it appear a serious warning, but not enough to be really alarming. Blaine is not a mere skirmisher, but the real fighting leader of his party. To him and not to Harrison was given the aggressive leadership, and while the general utterances of courteous commonplaces and the planned knight goes prancing around, breaking lances on the issues of the campaign, it would be impossible to make Harrison as prominent as Blaine, except because he realizes that there is nothing more to be said on his side of the case and keeps quiet, while Blaine, to our infinite joy, will continue to open his mouth and put his foot in it every time.

PERSONAL. THE REV. DR. JOSEPH PARKER, of London, says: "Always allowing for exceptions, the pulpit is the paid slave of respectability." PENDING. HARRISON, the high-caste Hindu woman who has been soliciting funds in this country for the establishment of a school in India for widows, has returned to her native country with $50,000. She obtained more money in San Francisco than anywhere else.

WILLIAM D. KELSO, well and favorably known throughout the southeastern part of the state, and one of the most prominent citizens of York, died on Tuesday, from 1855 to 1879 he was one of the most extensive tobacco manufacturers in the North. Subsequently he engaged in banking business, but of late years had practically retired from active business pursuits.

LORD MACVILLIE, the eccentric and wealthy nobleman who has just died without heir, left a will bequeathing the personal property to his seven maids of honor. It is surmised that deeply indebted to some maid of honor to whom he did not wish to call special attention, he hid upon the plan of the will, and all his riches, the family seat and entailed estates to the village West, the British minister at Washington, who is now Lord Sackville.

From Richmond, Va., I sell a great deal of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup and that it is the best satisfaction than any other Cough Syrup. I WASH. H. MCKEY, Druggist. Once upon a midnight dreary, when I was with pain, a friend said, upon my bed half slumbered, it came me, I needed this, such a soothing cure.

Vox Populi. The voice of an intelligent people does not speak in vain. It is the voice of the people, and their patronage confers what their voice proclaims. There is no gnat in the eye of a man who is not in the eye of the people. Facts attested by the evidence of a million eyes and a million voices, prove that it is correct. No article for the teeth has such a wide popularity, and assuredly none exerts such a benevolent influence upon them, rendering, as it does, their structure more solid, and exterminating the seeds of decay.
