LANCASTER, NOVEMBER 3, 1888 But One Trial For Murder. supreme court of Pennsylvania has decided that one tried for murder, not convicted because the jury could agree, cannot be again tried for the onse. The court says: "There be room to doubt the wirdom of the tional provision in its present but there is no room for discussion its effect. The consequence is that ndant, charged with taking the of his fellow man, goes out of court out of reach of justice because of the te of law made after an honest, estaking effort to be right. The judgof entered upon the demurrer was at and is therefore now affirmed."

Just what the court means by speakof a " mistake made, in law " we do understand. If it means that the litutional provision is a mistake, we not agree with it. That provision is, giving it to us in electrotype form in the same that has been embodied in the from time immemorial almost, at d the same offense be twice put in jeopardy of life and limb."

Nor do we agree, as the court affirms, bat "there is no room for discussion as the effect" of this constitutional proion. Our understanding has been that It is generally construed to mean that no me shall be tried again for an offense of which he has been acquitted, the "twice a jeopardy" being awarded a judicial struction intended to suit the judicial des of the fitness of things.

This is a trick that judges have. They often decide laws not according to their otter but according to what they think bould be their intent; and they are not collections either to inquire what the intent of the law makers was; they are content to find what they think their nt should have been; and hence comes the judicial legislation of which we have much, and of which a very striking illustration is afforded in the interretation put ly the courts of Pennsylvania upon the rder statute, which declares that only "premeditated killing," such as by soning, lying in wait or such deliberate act, shall be murder in the first de-

This plain law our courts have so construed away as to hold to be rullty of the first degree of murder, anyse who kills another after he has had a noment of "cooling time," in which he might receive from a fit of passion even hough he did not. The undoubted pureath only the poisoner, assassin and the andoubtedly deliberate murderer, has been so changed by the courts as to hang hose who slay in anger, intoxication and ipon impulse. There is not likely to be any great harm ne by the present decision that one rial is all that can be given for murder. If a jury disagrees the presumption is that there is enough doubt in the case to estitle the prisoner to go free. The law rives every one accused the benefit of a nable doubt, and we know nothing hat should be more satisfactory eviance of the existence of such doubt than the failure of a jury to convict.

Sherman Has Talked Twice.

At Peru, Indiana, on Friday, John Sherman talked for his second and last time in support of Harrison and Morton. He had only spoken once before in the campaign, and seemed quite conscious of the fact that in this struggle he could not be active in support of his party without fatally naging his reputation for a long head and financial genius. He preferred to allow the plumed knight to prance unrivalled at the head of the party; and it is easy to imagine his satisfaction over he wreck of that gentleman's reputation and the disaster that threatens his man Harrison. This second speech of John Sherman was not remarkable, and was plainly nothing but a move to keep an oar in with the party so that he may still be considered a powerful politician. He simply reted the old and often answered criticlam of the administration for not buying more bonds with the surplus, and in-dulged in a rhapsody over the beauties of Republican administration of foreign affairs as illustrated by Grant.

He cautiously refrained from saying anything about those beauties as illustra-ted by Blaine, who would undoubtedly be the "uncrowned king" of a Harrison administration, managing both foreign and domestic affairs to suit the cities into classes. There has been himself. The kind of foreign policy he needed for comparison with that of Cleveland's administration could not be street case; but it his never been made pubfound this side of Grant's days when we still had, in the prime of life and vigor, the material of the most powerful veteran army in the world, and a navy equal to any; two things that command respect. Brilliantly successful at every point, this administration has by its record forced opponents to make the campaign hinge upon a single great issue. No one soberly doubts the ability or patriotfam of President Cieveland and his advicers, and the only shadow of an excuse any voter can have for opposing his rection is fear of the revision of the tariff. Calm, unprejudiced reflection must show this fear to be groundless.

The Prospect.

The New York Herald publishes to day reports from correspondents in every state in the Union, stating the present political attuation and prospect of Tuesday's resuit. The summary shows 182 Demooratic electoral votes to 130 Republican, with 89 classified as doubtful; the latter being Colorado 3, Iowa 13, Kansas 9, Nebraska 5, Nevada 8, New Jersey 9 and

New York 36. The 182 yotes conceded as certain to be for Cleveland, comprise Alabama, Arransas, California, Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Georgis, Indiana, Ken-Sucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, Missouri, the Carolinas, Tennessee, Texas and the Virginias. To the Republicans are concelled Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, ont, Rhode Island, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Illinois, Michigan, Minnesota and regon. Of these Massachusetts is not tain, nor is New Hampshire, Illinois or Minnesota'; though the strong probality is that Harrison will carry them. Ohio and Michigan should be classed ng the doubtful states with probability of their electoral going to the Democracy. Kanas is made doubtful by a Union

Labor ticket which is in the field and is likely to poll fifty thousand votes.

There is nothing cheerful in this view for the Republican party, which will have to carry New York to have a chance to win, while the Democratic ticket can spare New York and win.

In Despair.

The Republican extremity is illustrated by the way in which the party organs hang on to the Sackville letter, which has long since flashed in the pan. Like the gun that was taken out to kill the ployer. it but knocked its owner over. It gave the president a chance to please the Irish element in the proper discharge of his duty, and he did it and will get its vote. There is no doubt at all of this condition of things, but the New York Tribune, the Philadelphia Press, and the other Republican journals that are now engaged in following their leader, still put the Sackville correspondence in big type; and have now taken to very image of his lordship's "hand write." It shows, we say, how hard up the organs are for argument. They had this letter appointed to do their work. and when at fizzed and failed, they had nothing else to take its place; but they still keep the sign up; just as the disgusted real estate agent is apt to leave up the advertisement of public sale of his house, after the sale is over and has failed to bring a purchaser. He feels too mean togo to the trouble of taking it down. But speaking of electrotypes, we are going to have one of the Dudley letter which our Republican friends can contemplate with such satisfaction as they can command; being the letter of the treasurer of the national Republican committee, written but a few days ago to aid Harrison's election in Indiana, and abounding in abuse of Demoeratic "bummers," it ought to pleasant reading for the make Republican patriot. But we doubt whether he will much enjoy seeing it in a newspaper. It is not the place for it. He may think the letter admirable in the proper hands, and read sub rosa; but in the broad day light it is not so beautiful; seeing that it advises the use of means to carry the election, whose use and encouragement the law punishes; and Col. Dudley is threatened with a jail, Poon Mr. Blaine is getting tripped up every day in his statements. Mr. Wells shows the silliness of his last attempt to bluff off the well-known fact of enormous contributions to the Republican cause by Gould, Carnegie and others.

THE Chinese Times, an English paper published in Hong Kong, says that China is disposed to retaliste upon the United States for the passage of the exclusion act. Chins is really not at all injured by that measure, as she has been trying hard to keep her people at home, but she may be hurt in her dignity, and rumor says that just now that is a very tender point,

THERE are thirteen unlucky whaling vessels imprisoned in Arctic waters, a western extremity of Alaska. The Thetis is filting out at San Francisco for their relief, but there is little chance of her getting there in time to be of any service and more re liance is placed in the two steam whalers which had at last accounts bravely undertaken the rescue.

It may be idle to speculate, but every-body is disposed to be idle in that way just now. Some of the results of speculation are astonishing. It induces many noted for habitual caution to wager heavily on the election and it drives correspondents famed for reliability to statements that savor of romance. The Philadelphia Times recently presented an interesting assort-ment of speculative remarks on the result of the election which display a number of Democratic newspaper men in an attitude of profound dejection over the prospects of their party, while some Republican knights of the per were quite as despondent over their own party chances. The New York Times, that staid and reliable metropolitan journal, has a cheerful letter from a Boston correspondent who tells of a spiritless Republican campaign in Massachusetts, and predicts that their majority will be reduced very near the danger line. The same paper has cheer ful news from Illinois.

THE officers of the inter-municipal convention that drew up the abortive municipal act of 1887 have issued a call for the re convening of the convention on November 13, to try its hand again at getting up a law that will overcome the objection of the supreme court to the present or . Those objections have not been stated to the public; and we do not see why this convention should meet until the supreme court's reasons for rejecting the present bill have been published. It is possible that the reasons have been privately communicated to somebody, since the advertisement of the proposed meeting says that the court objects to the division of funny fooling about this decision. It was announced as made in the Lancaster Grant lie and this is the reason why no one knows.

Mrs. Kellogg died first from the infiguration of ege, and the husband, after kissing his dead companion, remarked that he would seen follow, and in a short time he too was dead.

A Beturn to Duty. This is always desirable, and the speedler it takes place the better. Doubly welcome is it in the case of those usually industrious little organs, the kidneys, which, when they go on a strike—so to speak—and drop work, seriously imperit health in more than one way. First and foremost, their inaction begets their disease, which is hydra-headed, including such dangerous maladies as Bright's disease and diabetes. Next, when inactive they fail to assist in removing from the blood impurities that beget rheumotism, gout and dropsy. Third, their inaction weakens the bladder. All this is preventable and remechable by the pleasent promoter of organic action, Hostetier's Stomach Bitters, at once a tonic and a regulater. This gently but effectually impels the kidneys to return to duty, and strengthens them and the bladder. Upon the bowels stomach and liver it thewese exerts a regulating and invigorating influence, and it strengthens the system, and averts and remedies malaria and rheumatism. This is always desirable, and the speedler it
