He may not be aware of He may imagine that he has had bad and hard times and general calam. from his first introduction to the foot and he may even regret that he over given a chance at life, but that all because he cannot see things in r proper light. Perhaps, if he had born with a silver spoon in his h, he would have morally choked mail to death with it.

Perhaps an all wise Providence knows as what troubles and disasters he re-mined to bring out visibly some faint and mable trace of character within him. o are all more or less in the dark about accelves, and if you can't see anything actioular to be thankful for it is safe to thanks at any rate on general princi-t. It don't cost anything and it will anke you feel good, even if you're not . You can at least be thankful that r friends are not as miserable as you and if you have no friends, why you in be thankful that nobody will feel ly on your account. Cheer up and rive thanks, whoever you are and whereyou are, " for a merry heart goes all the day, and a sad one tires in a mile."

The Colored Brother.

It seems that Isaiah V. Williamson es not intend to exclude colored people the benefit of his educational abeme; which is to be free for all, Chiness or Hottentot not excepted. As we we observed, it is a matter entirely for Mr. Williamson to decide, and his aca is not a fair subject of criticism. He has a lawful right to leave his acnulation of property to any one or my people whom it pleases him to bene-and the people who are left out in the cold have no business to complain. en Girard gave preference to the ays born within the limits of the old ity of Philadelphia ; and Mr. Williammay prefer Pennsylvanians, white ad black, or white or black ; and noody has a right to complain.

But they will nevertheless. People the are not invited to a feast are apt to complain ; and frequently when they are people who have no right to expect invi-tations. It has been particularly fashionable with our fellow citizens of Republiin faith to growl when the colored mother is slighted; and their newspaper and never miss an opportunity to int that the colored man should come in a share of the plums shaken other people's trees; but their ith fails them when he wants someng from their garden and reaches

That Tickling In your throat arises from catarrh, and as ca-tarrh is a constitutional disease the ordinary cough medicines all fail to hit the spot. What you need is a constitutional remedy like Hood's Sarsspatifi's, which, by building up the general health and expelling the scrofolous taint which is the cause of catarrh and con sumption, has restored to perfect health many persons on whom these diseases seem to have a firm ho'd. d fruit in their preserve. Notably the colored brother does not get at offices in abundance when Republin hands are doing the distributing.

It is somewhat wearying to note the persistence with which the Republican sgan declares that the colored man ought to have a share of every-thing, and the regularity with which he gots nothing when they have a chance to give. And we did think that when lately is became necessary for the organs to call adly for the exclusion of the Chinese, to maye the vote of the Pacific coast, they could let up in the fervency of their deborn free and equal, all men should have an equal share in all the blessings that this land bestows, with an inheritance in all its offices and in all the benefactions which its abundant millionaires, dying, have behind them for a monument.

It used to be held that a man's duty to his family required him to leave them his ate, or the greater portion of it; and this is the common opinion still; aithough the law does not so restrict him and it is cubtful whether it is always a wise discosition. But the new idea that he may justly leave his property for be benefit of the white race to the sciusion of the African or Chinese, is too softly silly to be patiently listened oo. It is the utterance of rank hypocriny ; a declaration made in tune with a party shibboleth that calls for colored quality to catch colored votes, and meaning nothing when brought to the test of andowing the colored brother with any political reward more substantial than a lobbering smile.

The Movement in the Army. The movement in the West for Demo cratic secession from the G. A. R., is rowing, and promises accomplishment. If the Democrats in the association believe that it is really partisan, however professedly it is otherwise, self-respect and good sense require them to withdraw from it. The outside Demoeracy, having no special knowledge on the subject, have no other counsel give save that their political ciates should promptly withdraw com the association if their political with puts them to any disadvantage in It has been observed that the nasitted to wander into Democratic hands, nowever distinguished, but that the have is annually consigned to some oba ex-commanders of high degree aprently being scarce.

It seems to be conceded that the Grand Army is largely Republican in its comition ; and the natural consequence that it is partisan in its conduct in exng election times. The leaders are dificians, and the organization becomes ir instrument.

BOOKS AND AUTHORS. Mrs. Humphrey Ward has snother novel nearly ready to succeed "Robert Elsmere." ON THE SENSES, INSTINCTS AND IN-TELLIGENCE OF ANIMALS, WITH SPE-TELLIGENCE OF ANIMALS, WITH SPE-CIAL REFERENCE TO INSECTS. By Sir John Lubbock, Bart. Illustrated, D. Ap-pleton & Co., New York. To all who care for what John Borroughs called " another world down here," this book will be found more absorbing and far more strange than any fiction. We are all familiar with the fact that in many animals and insects the organs of vision, smell and hearing are much more perfectly developed than they are even in savage man. Sir John Lub-bock goes into the details of the arrange-ment and relative power of these organs in insecis, and many a reader will learn with astonishment that grasshoppers and crickets carry ears on their legs and that a guat hears with a clus-ter of hairs, while the common fly tastes with a bunch of the same on the end of its need. The hints of other senses unknown on the Carpet floor. Second floor, Market strest.

their iegs and that a gnat hears with a clui-ter of hairs, while the common ily tastes with a bunch of the same or the end of its nesse. The bints of other senses unknown to man are not neglected, and the author's mame is a guarantee that nothing has been sacrificed in his effort to popularize science. By the way, the December Popular Science Monthly has an article by the eminent Dr. Jastrow on the deceptive character of the evidence of the senses. The Queen of Bediam is the title of a new army hovel by Capitaln Charles King. THE Actors MAKE-UP BOOK, by N. Heimer, published by Harold Rootback, New York, is designed for the use of the theatrical profession, but young people who may be thinking of private thesuricals will find a good deal of interest in this little pamphiet. There are directions as to how a lean face may be made to appear chubby and a young face old or the reverse. There is special treatment on the use of artificial wigs and beards, and the many little arts and touches mate necessary by the charac-ter and conditions. Miny an sanateur will be geatly relieved to learn how to take care of himself when duly frescoed for the stage. There are some appalling pictures of actors and actresses in process of make up, the change in the features being so great that until the final touch of the wig is added they seem unnatural. From the same pub-lisher we have two neat little books. "The fouries for strain," a Christmas en-tertainment for young people, is arranged for presentation with simple music. "The Gypeies Fouries only three characters besides a chorus and the "gypsies." Elsie Leelle is the name of the bright ittle girl who has been personating "Little Lord Fauntieroy" in the dramatization of that masterpiece of juvenile fiction. She went to call upon the authoress not long ago and the Rochester Herald thus de-scribes the interview : "Are you tired of acting Fauntieroy. most other stores do. "And how do you spend your time when you are not at the theatre?" "Oh, I read a great deal. I have just been reading some of your books." And the little girl talked on for a few minutes, showing the greatest interest in characters that have figured in some of Mrs. Burnett's most delightful stories, until the lady said, in a tone of kindly warning : "You must not read too much, Elsie ; you should play, and you should be out at doors enjoying the sunshine and the firsh air."
