HOFFMEIER'S.

I hold him great who, for love's sake, Can give with generous, careest will? Yet he who takes for love's event sake,

I bow before the noble mind.
That freely some gre it wrong forgives.
Yet nobler is the one forgiven.
Was been that burden well and lives.

It may be hard to gain, and still To beep a lowly, standfast heart; Yet he who loses has to fill A harder and a truer part,

Giorious it is to wear the crows Of a deserved and pure success; He who knows how to fall has won A crows whose lustre is not less.

Great may be be who can command And rule with just and tender sway; Tet is diviner wisdom taught Better by him who can obey.

B'essed are they who die for Sed And earn the martyr's erown of light; Yet he who lives for God may be A greater conqueror in His sight. —Adelaide Proste
