LANGASTER, DECREBER 15, 188 Their Hamillation.

The stepublican stomach is a good one if it can stand the imposition upon the party of such stuff as Quay and Wanamaker as the very best quality of its goods. We know that the Republican party, even in Republicanty of the standard standa Ivania, demeans and belittles self by putting such material at its There are good men in it whose is must burn with indignation and heir souls rise up in protest against the vation above them of these two men. To mark them out, because they appear shave been selected to sit astride the party. No one is mentioned as having any part or lot in Pennsylvania Republican leadership but Quay; and Wana-maker tramps along beside him, posted as his selection for Pennsylvania's mbinet position. We hear no Republican protest against such degradation of the state and of the cabinet office. Quay has mid it ; and the flock is silent. It is ab. colutely shocking to find such submission; to note that the respectable Republicans of Pennsylvania do not openiy and lently resent the selection of John Wanamaker for their cabinet place; and do not shudder at the patent fact that he is so selected only because he raised a great bag of money with which the mational Republican committee was able to buy enough votes to carry the election.

The election was carried. No matter how, it was carried ; and the agents who did it must have their reward. Quay steps to the fore as the party dictator, because the money he spent was expended successfully ; and Wanamaker stands up at the head of the Pennsylvania candidates for office, because he raised the money that was so successfully used by Quay.

There is the whole story, standing bare and gaunt in the public eye. His money collection is the sole basis of the claim of John Wanamaker to be taken into the president's cabinet ; and his successful spending of it is Quay's sole title to com-

Would any one deny this? Not one Everyone knows it. And the result is accepted as is the inevitable. The Pennsylvania Republicans sit down under it and wallow in their deep humiliation.

It is a sin and a shame that such services should be accorded such reward. The scate politician, such as Quay, will always win his reward. The successful business man, such as Wanamaker, has his certain reward. But we protest that the public sense should not be shocked by the prompt and undisguised bending of the knee to Mammon, as a proper agency in electing a president, which is exhibited in this incense offered to Quay and Wanamaker. Decency dends more concealment in offering them their reward. They should get their booty as they distributed their money-with their backs turned. If Pharisecs and highwaymen must be made the agents in political contests, it still is not decent to advertise to the world that it is their light fingers and light conscience that has won for them their wages.

That Doubtful Story.

The evidence of the capture of Stanley and Emin Bey by the Mahdi is impressive but by no means conclusive. It rests chiedy upon the statement of the Mahdi's the swhole of Europe a vast armed general Osman Digma supported by a camp and millions lavianed annually in Mayor Hewitt is a sample, who can hardly refrain from kicking reporters in his indignation at their impertinence. But that does not pay, because it is not a good thing to be out with the newspapers. Mr. Harrison takes the only position that will preserve his comfort and his time, in refusing to submit to an interview of any kind or for any purpose. What he has to say he can at any time communicate to the press ; and until he is ready to say it, it has no right to it.

About Their Decency. It is " pull Dick and pull devil" in New York state, as to who shal be its bass under the new administration. There happen to be two men who have selected themselves for cabinet place, instead of one as in Pennsylvania. The Union League of New York city has declared that it is very indecent for any body to impose himself, or to be imposed upon, the president elect for a place in his cabinet. This seems to be a shot at both the New York aspirants. It is a correct statement as to their conduct ; but the indecency of the effort to compel Harrison to make a particular selection for his cabinet is not likely to check the attempt. Decency is not a controlling element in Republican politics; they would not have been successful politics if it had been. So that the merry dance will go on; and the friends of Blaine, Platt, Miller and all the hungry horde, will labor and sweat to get in to the

THE compositor who set the Milwaukee eee in the sea was thinking perhaps of the excellent beer that is made in the city on the lake which is big enough to be a ses ;

THE report on the export of breadstuffs shows a total for the month of November of $7,709,621. Last year it was $9,503,831. There is a gain of nearly half a million in com and galus in oats, barley, commeal and rye, but the exports of wheat fall nearly s million and a half below November, 1887, and of wheat flour nearly two million below the exports of that month.

A REPORT just issued from the statistical bureau shows that our exports of mineral oils in November were slightly in advance of the figures of November, 1887, their total value reaching $4,259,284. The cotton exports smounted to $38,929,210 for the month an increase of $1.541,747 over November, 1857. Of this, $26 035 092 went to Great Britain, and $10,976,581 worth was shipped from New York.

FROM various signs it might be prophe sied without great fear of failure, that these United States of America will have more or less war on their hands before they are many years older. A dozen years ago the people and press treated the insults and offenses of foreign powers with careless indifference, but just now the alightest sign of a lack of national spirit would ruin the standing of any public man, and we talk of seizing Canada and disciplining Germany in Samoa much more cheerfully than we did of war with poor old Spain when Grant's administration had to deal with the Virginius difficulty. And yet the military strength of the nation cannot now be considered greater than it was at the time of that sharp quarrel, for then we had a veteran army, or rather two of them, one north and one south, and now a very small proportion of these old sol-diers are fit for active duty, and our troops would be raw recruits. Then we had the respectable remains of a navy, and our monitors were not greatly inferior to the iron clads that Europe had begun to build. Our milliary position appears to have been better at that time than it now is with letter that was sent to Emin Bey by the khedive of Egypt through Stanley. The possession of this letter is supposed to prove that one or the other has been captured, and the Mahdi c aims to have them both, but a much more convincing proof and one quite as readily obtainable, would be a letter from Emin or Stanley. The two Snyder cartridges sent with the captured letter as evidence add little to the proof. The whole bundle may have been taken from a messenger sent out;by Stanley to find Emin Bey. The incident looks like the opening chapter of a clever piot and it is hinted that the price asked for the surrender of the two important captives is the abandonment by England and Egypt of the stronghold of Suakim. Perhaps the Mahdi wants to find out the real value of these mysterious white men who have so boldly ventured to pierce to the heart of Africa; then if they are bis enough to buy Suskim he will promptly send an expedition to seize them. Otherwise he will not trouble himself with their comparatively insignificant operations. Gladstone learned to his sorrow the political importance of a popular hero, and the English government will doubtless remember his bitter experience in the Gordon matter and be eager to make almost any terms for the release of Stanley and Emin. It is a delicate business. Any intimation to the Mahdi of the anxiety of the British ministry may result in the capture or death of the explorers if they are living and free, and too great a display of indifference may cause their massacre if they are really captives. On the other hand the ministry can hardly afford to give up Suskim for any long time, because that famous Red Sea post divides and weakens the Moslem world, or that portion of it which hates England and leans to the Mahdi. There can be little doubt that She more free intercourse with Arabia areby given to the followers of the Mahdi, would greatly strengthen him, and it is significant of his growing influence that the sultan has several limes of inte refused emphatically to send Turkish troops to hold Egyptian outposts against him. The Sultan could not, he said, permit his soldiers to fight Mohammed ans. Bo things in Egypt look bad for England may way the cat jumps, and the Salisbury ministry seems bound to go to pieces on the same sort of rocks that brought Gladsome to grief and to the defense of Ire-

A Sensible Man.

If Harrison's sense is to be judged from as which he shows in defeating the adertaking of impertinent reporters to and out from him what he is thinking, we may put it down as being a very good article. The public man who knows how to properly deal with reporters, and who mather a rare man, and may be always t down as a very sensible fellow. The fority of men are pleased to be the obest of an attention which flatters their nity and they spend much time and fort in accommodating the reporter. Mr. w is probably the chief of this class, ad in the favorite of the interviewing fraby. His idea doubtless is that it is thing to keep in with the newsapers. There is another class of which magazine rifles and ingenious devices for wiping out human lives by the thousand in given seconds of time. There can be little doubt that a recurrence now of the Virginius incident would be followed by war to the knife no matter what nation happened to be the offender. The secre of this jaunty chip on the shoulder attitude may only be that we are experiencing a recoil from the deep horror and loathing of war that provailed after the long civil conflict. Then we were strong and we knew it, but we were so sick of fighting that we did not care who kicked us. Now we feel rested, and begin to find that we must bluster a little to establish that respect among others which we ourselves so profoundly feel for this "greatest nation
