the Marysville (Cal) Appent,

From the Marysville (Cal) Append. District Attorney Forbes relates some very emusing incidents stiending the trial of the people vs. Dusial Form, at Browns-ville, resembly. Fore was charged with meating water from a ditch. The most interesting feature was at the close of the segments, during which, to the evident delight of Justice Sparks, the jurcers and spectators, Forbes and Attorney Murphy probed each other with personalities that were bighty interesting. They had pre-pered their instructions, each one being very widely different from the other. In submitting them Justice Sparks took up taces of Attorney Murphy, and, stor clear-ing his throat, dramatically addressed the said i said : "Them's my sentiments, gentlemen of the jury, and I want you to bring in a verdict secondingly, as they are law." Tarnng to the table he picked up the district attorney's instructions, and with a gesture and a tome that would be a credit to a ball player, he threw the paper to the jury, saying : "Them's not my sentiments, but you can take them for what they are worth. But they are no good."

"Them's not my continents, but you on take them for what they are worth. But they are no good." The people's storney remonstrated with the court, but the re nonstrance was of no swall and came near causing him to be found in contempt. After the jury had deliberated for a few moments, they returned with a verdici of "guility," in accordance with the district attorney's instructions. The justice stood aghest. "What!" yelle he, "dare to go agin my sentiments? Well, this verdici is set saide, and the prisoner is discharged." With this proceeding, the case, after six days consumed in selecting a jury, the trial came to a very sudden end. The action is a purely local one, and has created much feeling, owing to the sentiment over the matter being so evenly divided. The water right is claimed by both parties, and it is probable that the matter will not end where it M.
