reverel years past a gang of burglars both doing a great deal of hold work is city, and it seems almost impossible to their operations. Many houses have bosse has been visited two or times. The burglars pay parare attention to private residences, from their mode of operations they to be after money more than anything. They seem to be experts in their tend know exactly the best modes of ring houses. Their favorite time for misting their orimes is early in the large, when the city is quietest. It has their crimes is early in the straing, when the city is quietest. It has been been about time since the houses of it.

If thertin and W. Z. Sener, in the western art of the city, were entered by one of the set during of burglars. Early this morn-g so less than five houses in the northern art of the city were visited and at four of entrances were effected. The thieves some remarkably elever work, but eded in getting very little for their se place that is supposed to have been sed first this morning is the Barayian e, a saloon on North Queen street, New, which was formerly the North and is kept by Philip Dansinger. Here they first attempted to enter the rear be door and although they left a number of large marks they could not open it. They then went to the kitchen door, and by s of the same instruments succeeded breaking the latch and prying it open bey passed through the dining room into entry in the front of the house. The foor leading from the entry to the barroom was soon pried open, and the latch was roken off. From a drawer behind the ounter about 75 cents in pennies was a olen. The bottles containing drinkables were set out on the bar, and one, which contained the best whisky in the house, was carried out into the kitchet and left standing on the table. Around the barroom flor matches, that had been ighted by the thieves, to enable them to money in his room upstairs, but the thieves did not go up to see about it.

They left the building after going through the barroom, where they in all probability took a number of drinks to get their trage up. A noise made by the thiever ming one of the down stairs doors was plainly beard by the family. That was bout 4 o'clock and they supposed it was be found what was wrong.

From Mr. Dessinger's the thieves likely 194 North Duke street. They bored a numr of boles in a shutter, and tried to lift the all catch at the bottom. Finding they ald not open the shutter in that way they ed a jimmy. They also pried the door, could not get in. Next door to Mr. The thieves went to his house next. They siked in the alley from Dake street, autting the gate [and locking it inside. I first went to the rear and entered a er kitcher, through a window, which merely pushed up. From this room they made their way into the house by prying open the door, the lock of which they broke to pieces. They went all gh the lower part of the house but made by them and she arose from bed. She went out of her room door and sa she looked down stairs she saw a man hastoning through the entry towards the back of where he ressed out, Mrs. Wirth nise him. He were a black cap, which he had pulled down over his eyes. Mr. Wirth secured a light and examined the emises, but the thieves had fled. There se more than one man at Mr. Wirth's hn Westwood lives on Christian street, next door to Peter Wirth's saloon, which is ediately in the rear of the house occuoled by George W. Wirth. Mr. Westwood at one of the windows of his house on the cond story when he saw two men jump from Wirth's yard over into his. The house of Dr. Levergood, which is No. 27 East James street, at the corner of Chris ien, and about half a square from Witth's p. was also entered. There is no doubt that the burglars were the same that were at the other places. They called on the doctor between 4 and 5 o'clock. They prawled over the high fence along the side of his house and unlocked the door leading from the side porch into the dining room. The key was in the lock inside and this they tarned from the outside by means of pinc-ers. They did not tarry in that room, but beemed an xious to get up stairs. The door between the dining room and the entry was closed and locked, but the thieves probably broke that open by forcing their bodies against it, as the latch was badly wrecked. they made, such a noise in doing his that Mrs. Levergood was awakened. Over her room door there is a transom, and through this she saw a light burning rightly. She was frightened, but arose adjoining that occupied by herself and She slammed the door shut tween the two, and the noise thus sade probably frightened the thieves who only left. The doctor did not believe first that the house had been entered. When he made an examination down sire and discovered the state of affairs he no longer a doubter. The thieves seemed to be after valuables and is undoubtedly was their intention to enter the doctor's sleeping room. That settlemen was unfortunate in having a ratch stolen from him several years ago, and about a year ago was presented with a Fellows. The thieves may have been after this, but the doctor found it all right this morning. Down stairs in the dialog room was a large closet containing all kinds of edibles, chinaware, a, but none of these were touched. The was also rane exec, but nothing at lea ter as can be found. There is nothing missing, as the burglars were probably frightened off before they had accomplished Hext door to Dr. Levergood is the home

Money was what the thieves were after and all they got for their work was some small change. The Econom desired was priced change. The money drawer was pried where it was left. One bottle of bitters is missing and the thieves may have taken some whisky, but Mr. Bender has no means of knowing whether they did or not. Beveral evercosis were within reach of the robbers. They did not take them, probably fearing that the wearing or disposing of them would lead to their arrest. The theit was committed by some one familiar with the premises. Suspicion points to a cirtain party, and an arrest may be made.

CLOTHING. MARTIN BRO'S,

No man can be truly

happy in a badly-fitting shirt, no matter how grod material it's made of. When we say Shirts Shirts we speak a language familiar. We look after the smallest detail of St and make and finish, to have the best. Go into nine stores and ask for a Shirt to fit at neck and breast, and if you're a little man you'll get it with sleeves too long; or if you're a big man you'll get it with sleeves too short. Come here and we pursue a different notion by having three lengths of sleeves to every size collar. We il hardly miss in fitting right off, in either the "Dayton" or "Cyclone" any sized man or boy. This common sense idea in Shirt fitting has brought us a large Shirt Unlaundered the "Dayton," $1 00. The "Cy-clone," and our reliable &c Shirt are the best in fit, in linen and muslin, best workmen can put together. Heavy weight and light weight Overc aregoing side by side. Let us show you how perfectly we can please you in these or in suits, ready-made or measure.
