A sense of awe and of wonder

I may never well define, For the thoughts that come in the shadows Never come in the chine. The o'd clock down in the parlor,

Like a sleepless mourner grieves, and the seconds drip in the sliener as the rain drips from the enves. And I think of the hands that signal The hours there in the gloom, and wonder what angel watchers Walt in the darkened room.

And I think of the smiling faces
That used to watch and wait,
Till the citch of the clock was answered By the c ick of the opening gate. They are not there now in the evening -

"Horais goz noon—nut there; Yet I know that they keep their vigil And walt for me somewhere. —James Whitcomb Riley. SPONGING A TIGER.

A Wonderful Tale of An Ignorant Commen'

From the I enden Times.

When Pezon, the lion tamer, was at Moscow with his menagerie, he had occasion to employ a moujik, a fine specimen of a Coscace, to clean out the cages of the wild beasts. The Coscack did not understand a word of French, and the terms of the contract were settled in dumb show. By way of instructing him in his new duties Peson went through a sort of pantomime with the broom, aponge and water bucket. The moujik watched him closely and appeared fully to understand the details of the lesson given.

fully to understand the details of the leason given.

Next morning, armed with a broom, a bucket and a sponga, he opened the first cage he came to and quietly stepped in, as he had seen his master step on a previous day into two cages of harmiess bruies, but this one happened to be tenanted by a splendid but untamed tiger that lay stretched on the floor fast asleep. At the noise made by opening and closing the door the creature raised its head and turned its green eyes full on the man, who, all unconscious of his danger, stood in the corner dipping his big sponge into the bucket.

At that mem unt Pezon came out of his caravan and was struck dumb by the terrible eight that met his gazs. What could he do to warn the man of his danger? A sound, a movement on his part might enound, a movement on his part might en-age the great beast and hasten his attack in the defenteless Cossack. So Pezon stood on the defenceless Cossach. So Pezon stood awaiting developments, ready to rush to the scene when the crisis came. The moujis, spouge in hand, coolly approached the tiger and made ready to rub him down with the stolidity of a military bootblook polishing his captain's boots. The sudden application of cold water to its hide evidently produced a very agreeable effect on the tiger, for it began to purr, stretched out its paws, rolled over on its back, and complacently effered every part of its body to the vigorous treatment of the moujis, who went on scrubbing with might and main.

All the while Pezon stood there with his eves wide open and as if mailed to the spot. When he had finished his job, the Cossack left the cage as quietly as he had entered it, and it required the most energetic and expressive gestures on the part of the lioniamer to prevent his repeating the experiment on a second wild beast.

Swept by the Tide of Popularity

To the topmost pinnacle of success, Hostet-ter's Stomach Bitters stands a shining proof of what genuine merit, backed by the living force of proven facts, can attain. The North and South American continents, Europe Australia, the West Indies, Guatemala and Australia, the West Indies, Guatemala and Mexico have all contributed wide patrouage and testimony of the most favorable kindbut unsolicited to swell the reputation of this sterling remedy. Among the maladies for which the most convincing public and professional testimony proves that it is a benign curative, are chills and fever, billous remittent, dumb ague and ague cake, dyspepsia, liver somplaint, nervousness, debility, kidney and bladder complaints. It mitigates the infirmities of age, hastens convalescence, has a tendency to prevent ill consequences from exposure and exhaustion. Persons of sedentary habits and laborious occupations will find it an ever useful tonic.

A Screp of Paper Saves Her Life. A screp of Paper Saves Her Lite.

It was just an ordinary screp of writing paper, but it saved her lite. She was in the last stages of consumption, told by physicians that she was incurable and could live only a short time: she weighed less than seventy pounds. On a piece of wrapping paper she read of Dr. King's New Discovery, and got a sample bottle; it helped her, she bought arge bottle; it helped her, she bought another and grew better fast, continued its use and is now strong, healthy, rosy, plump, weighing 140 pounds. Choking Catarrh.

Have you awakened from a disturbed sleep with the horrible savisations of an assays in clutching your throat and preseing the lifebreath from your tightened cheet? Have you noticed the languor and debility that succeed the effort to clear your throat and head of this catarrhai matter? What a depressing influence it exerts upon the mind, clouding the memory and filling the head with pains and atrange noises? How difficult is to rid the meanl passages, throat and lungs of this poisonous mineus all can testify who are affloted with caturh. How difficult to protect the system sgainst its further progress towards being sinst its further progress towards the lungs, liver and kidneys, all physicians will admit. It is a terrible disease, and crice out for relief and cure.

The remarkable curative powers, when all other remadles utterly fail, of Farrican's kapital. Cura, are attested by thousands who gratefully recommend it to fellow-sufferers. No statement is made regarding it that cannot be sustantiated by the most respectable and reliable references.

Each package contains one bottle of the Radical Cura, one box Catarral Solvery, and an larrows limitates, with treatise and directions, and is so d by all druggists for sl. Out.
