SARGASTER, MARCE, IS, 1800. Pennsylvania's lodestries.

ponsition made by Andrew before the Franklin institute, particularly the Pennsylvania, particularly the Pennsylvania rail-, will make a great impression upon people of the state and will help along day when its Legislature shall rethe citizens of the state to be placed her states in the matter of charges

What Mr. Carnegie said was not news e citizens of the state who have freight charges to pay and who suffered from the discrimimade against them by the ds that the state has created; and have thus imposed upon them simply me they were permitted to have the to do so. The injury to Pennsylante business men by Pennsylvania railad charges, has been related and deed time and again by the public mals of the state that are not under allroad influences; the number of which as however been comparatively few; and be editor is impelled to attack so many ngs and is so subject to the charge of artisan prejudice in his accusations. that he is apt to lose much of ale weight in assailing real wrongs. For this among other reasons the in-dictment made by Mr. Carnegie comes to the people with considerable freshness and with great force, trite as its theme; and the fact that he is in friendly relations with the Pennsylvania railroad company, whose course he biames, adds great strength to his statement; which is furthermore made in so candid a spirit and is so well sustained by facts as to intensify its impression.

Mr. Carnegie's interests are all in the Western part of the state; and here he naturally thinks that its futures greatest growth will be. But he sees how the tories of the East have been hampered by the discrimination of the railroads, which has worked in favor of Mr. Carnegio's Western interests, and now enles the Southern pig iron to undersell the Pennsylvania product in Pennsylvania's seeport. With raw materials in Pennsylvania as cheap as in Alabama, the stimulating Southern railroads' rates and the smothering Pennsylvania railroad rates combine together to enable the Southern iron to be carried hundred of iles to the sea, to be reloaded in ships and unloaded in Philadelphia, and at a less price than the iron made in the Susqueanna, Lehigh and Schuylkill Valleys, can be sold for at the same place. Was there ever a greater outrage perpetrated upon a community, by corporations it has chartered, and who do their business under the constant eye of its Legisla-

Our law-makers see the industries of Eastern Pennsylvania suffering, and they should know the cause as well as Andre v Carnegie; any business man will tell it to them. The interstate commerce act compels equal rates to be given to all those who ship goods through the state, and the Pennsylvania railroad is the most punctilious of all the railroads in observing this law. But, after the border is crossed, law ceases and fairness stops. It costs Lancaster very nearly as much as it does Pittsburg to carry a ton of freight his name and "a ropute to New York. There is no pretence of charging at a rate per ton per mile. All that can be got is asked for. Bituminous coal is carried to Philadelphia for export at a much lower rate than that charged for carrying it to the Philadelphia or even the Harrisburg consumer.

Mr. Carnegie points out the result. The industries in the East have not flourished equally with those in the West. The Penn. It steel works moves to Baltimore to get closer to the sea, where competition is free. And the Pennsylvania railroad pays a million of its profit upon the local iness, to keep up the Western roads, connecting with it, whose rates competition has put at a point below cost; and from these profits also accumulates millions of surplus and pays millions of divi-

It is well that our ratireads should prosper; but not well that they should prosper in this way. It is not well for them or the people. Their customers' interests are theirs. They need to cultivate local industries as the hens that lay them golden eggs. From the abundant prosperity of the state that no railroad smothering tax can extinguish, the great profit is drawn that enables the Pennsylvania railroad to sustain its feeble Western extremities. But it is a short sighted policy that leads to the discouragement of industries along its main road that would in their operation add to its business. The obvious policy for a railroad company is to give the lowest possible rates to places that it alone serves, so as not only to keep the monopoly of their business but to stimulate and increase it; but there probably never was a railroad that acted on this principle ; and no man will now plant a business in a locality served by but one railroad, unless he can make a tight contract with it as to the rates it will charge him. Otherwise he is certain that his competitions, in places that have railroad competition, will have a con-trolling advantage over him.

The railroad presidents complain of railroad paralleling. This is the favorite aplaint of President Roberts. The iroad gentlemen's agreement deses it. But these gentlemen who a tell so well when their toes are at ched, seem quite oblivious to the fact hat railroad competition is the only protection that railroad customers have rainst the injustice and oppression of ralizond charges. It is very true that see railroads to do the work that one can do are not necessary and that they add to the cost of carriage instead of mapening it. But that does not hurt All Druggists and Fancy Goods the customer; the railroad practice beog to dieregard cost and to think only of what it can get. If competing roads canof get the cost of their service it is bid er them and their bondholders, but not a bed for the business community as a coad monopoly that can draw all the and it wants to; and that it has often nonstrated to be all that there is

We trust that Mr. Carnegie's energetic cubus that sits upon the states' indusbe less its adjournment a fair law to supat the inter state law, and to give the industries of the state the same ce to live that the Congress has given to those outside the state that use its products, and carry their own across its soil to the sea.

The Clever Cresture. Referring to someone's suggestion of ex-Congressman Sowden as the Demo-eratic member of the civil service commission, the Philadelphia Record thinks "this would be a happy stroke. Mr. Sowden is about as much of a civil service reformer as he is a Democrat; but he is a clever creature, and we would be glad to see him get a place."

Mr. Sowden is not built for a civil service commissioner. His nature is too robust for the situation, which would better suit the effeminate Democracy that thought it had clubbed the life out of Sowden, but finds that it could not "clab worth a cent." Mr. Sowden may not always be right, but he is always square, and he is always able to smell out the original, Simon-pure, died in the wool, Democratic creature; so clever a creature is he; and he never needs a bell on the cow to find her He may have been a little rampant in the Democratic camp on the protection side, but that was better than dropping into free trade silliness, as some other "clever creatures" inclined to do. And we are a band of brothers.

THE real estate dealer of Montana does not propose to let Lower Californians have a monopoly of the "yaller" fever. He has caused it be announced throughout the land that placermines in the Sweet Grass bills are yielding the miners from $50 to $80 per day. For all time we may expect to find the pick and shovel brigade swaying between Lower California and Montana. The land speculator usually has a fat pocket-

COUNT MOTERCALE has at last succeeded in proving to the public beyond all possible doubt that he is a rascal of a strangely contemptible variety. He managed to work upon the sympathies of an American entleman to the extent of a ticket to Europe: then he managed to work upon the sympathies of the ticket agent of the steamship company to the extent of secur ing money for his ticket. He went away happy with his plunder, but his little transaction convinces everyone that he is guilty of all the rescality attributed to him, and the days of his glory are over. When he married a wealthy Pittaburg girl the papers were full of his lofty prizetples, and it was noised about as an exceptional case of a union not mercenary between American money and foreign titles. Fact is that the kind of nobleman likely to produce a case of the sort would have been too much of a gentleman to permit such notoriety. tercale was not that kind, and it is sad to think that he may try to sell champagne for a firm that has employed him. If he ould only be persuaded to visit one of our new states, or the Lower California mines, he might be formally presented with the freedom of a city and a suit of tar and eathers, or even favored with a ride upon a fence rail.

THE new British envoy to the United S. S. S. States is of very ancient name as well as modern fame, for according to Edmund Yates' cable letter to the Tribune the Pauncelotes possessed their characteristic motto, "Pensez Forte," think strong, six centuries at least before Julian Pauncefote was born at Munich, just sixty-one years ago. He was educated in Paris and Geneva, practiced law at home and went to Hong Kong as attorney general and drew up a civil service code, was knighted in 1872 and made chief justice of the Leeward Islands, gave them a civil code and returned to England to become legal assistant to the under secretary of state. He has seven honorable letters after clear headedness, calmness and tact."

THE GENUINE DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS.

Intemperance a Disease.

When the celebrated Dr. Rush declared that drunkenness was a disease, he councisted a truth which the experience and observation of medical men is every day confirming. The many apparently insane excesses of those who indulge in the use of spirituous liquors may thus be accounted for. I he true cause of conduct, which is taken for infatuation, is very frequently a diseased state of the Liver. No or gan in the human system when deranged, produces a more frightful catalogue of diseases, and if, instead of applying remedies to the manifestations of the disease, as is too often the came physicians would prescribe with a view to the original came, fewer deaths would result from diseases induced by a deranged state of the Liver. 1 am satisfied that Cancer is hereditary in my family My father died of it, a sister of my mother died of it, and my own sister died of it. My feelings may be imagined then, when the horrible disease made its appearance on my side. It was a malignant Cancer, cating inwardly in such a way that it could not be cut out. Munerous remedies were used for it, but the Cancer grew steadily worse until it seemed that I was doomed to follow the others of the family. I took Swift's Specific, which from the first day, forced out the poison and continued its use until I had taken several bottles, when I found myself well. I know that S. S. S. cured me.

PRILADELPRIA, Tuopday, March 18, 199. THE FIRST VIEW OF SPRING DRESSES AND WRAPS.

In various ways, by post and by newspapers, we have invited you to visit us to-day for the first view of our collection of Spring Dresses and Wraps.

They will be worth examination. Our own work-rooms and artists have contributed many commendable things, but the highest and newest notions are from Paris.

We have had keen, appreciative, but critical eyes, all through the ateliers of the French modistes, which have caught and brought, or think they have, the best Paris has produced this year.

The first view is a little late, but quite early enough. The late Easter defers interest in Spring Fashions.

We make no descriptions of things you are to see. They include costumes for house use, dinners, receptions, yachting, boating, athletics — Jackets, Wraps, Coats, Fichus.

The stuffs are Cloths, Silks, Lusters, Laces, Challis, Sateens, Ginghams. The wonderful things a French Dressmaker can do with a cotton cloth you may see here. Don't think these Paris Sateen gowns are cheap because they are cotton.

Shirts. our Colebrated see Shirt makes this an ideal place for Men's or Boys' Shirt buying. The right length of sleever, the right-fitting neek to be had here no matter whether you are tailor as short, alim or stout. The Dayton, $1.00; Cyclona, 75c; Evening Dress, $1.5 to $2.50. (Cyclona, 75c; Evening Dress, $1.50. (Cyclona, 75c; E cheap because they are cotton. Pounds avoirdupois count cotton cost as the bolls go from Alabama or South Carolina, pounds sterling-not a fewwhen the Frenchman has manipulated the completed stuff.

All across the Chestnut street ront second floor you will find the attractions to-day. This event takes cognizance of the baby, the girl, the woman. On the east side, Thirteenth street, are the Ladies' Costumes; on the Juniper street side are the Baby things, and spreading widely between are the Girls' Dresses-and Over Garments -the fashions for all ages of gentler humanity, and for infants without distinction.
