Maria Warfel was elected weighmaster at the stone crusher at a compensation of $1.25 per day.

THEY ORDERED TOO MANY AWAY. The Mayor Directs That Policemen Who Know Citizens Be Put on Duty.

Some mention was made in last evening's paper of the manner in which the council enforced their orders on Sunday night in regard to preventing persons loading on the streets. It seems that the officers went a little too far and made themselves offensive to many prominent people. It is said that on North Queen gentlemen were ordered away from their own places of business, while at several places people were standing in on steps and people with whom they do business, away from the pavements, were compelled to leave or go inside by the police.

The mayor, when hearing of this, was not slow to inform the police about it. He thought they should use some discretion, and that they ought to be sufficiently well acquainted with citizens to know better. The affair has created considerable talk and it is likely that the officers will be more careful in the future.

The mayor directed that hereafter police officers be detailed for Saturday and Sunday evening duty who know the residents and business men of the main streets, to avoid complaints such as were made on Sunday night.

The Colored Voter. The colored voters of the Seventh ward, will meet this evening at No. 343 Middle street, to discuss the political situation. It will then be decided whether they will take part in next Saturday's primary, and if so, for whom all their votes will be cast. Arrangements will also be made to demand recognition from the present national administration.

A York Club at McCall's Ferry. A number of leading citizens of York have organized a fishing club, and purchased an island of fourteen acres in the Susquehanna at McCall's Ferry. The club has been named the Minqua. A constitution and by-laws have been adopted. Three members of a week have been set apart for club visits to the club. The place will be opened April 30th, when a banquet will be held.

Rev. Sayler's Funeral. The funeral of the Rev. W. H. H. Sayler will be held this afternoon. The attendance
