

Daily Intelligencer. Grand Army of the Republic is unconstitutional. He has heretofore disapproved a bill which confided to the Gettysburg Memorial Association the selection of commissioners to take charge of the expenditures of a state appropriation for monumental purposes; and this orphan school bill falls under the like objection; and we consider it a very sound one. It is charged that Governor Beaver in vetoing the bill, will be animated more by friendship for the school contractors, than by devotion to the constitution; and his record as a man and a governor, does not enable us to say that this is an unjust aspersion. We have but a poor opinion of Governor Beaver's general independence and intelligence; but if he had done more of such work as he promises to do in this proposed veto, we would have a much higher estimate of him. He just does enough to make us to suspect that if he was possibly his own master he would be a better governor.

THE LANCASTER, PA., MAY 20, 1889.

The famous bonanza farm of North Dakota has often been used by alarmists as an illustration of what might be threatening in the way of land monopoly. Buying reapers and other machinery by the hundred, and all kinds of seeds and supplies at wholesale rates, the managers of this farm have an additional advantage over the small farmer in selling their vast product, by shipment over tracks that run right up to their barns. They are able to employ the very best experts in the direction of their work, and to command that practical application of science which so many dreamers have vainly thought to accomplish by means of agricultural colleges. With these advantages it was to be feared that these farms, with their tens of thousands of acres, and armies of men, would prove irresistible competitors of the small farmer, and rob the nation of what must always be its mainstay, the class that owns and works and lives upon the land from generation to generation. The success of these farms appeared certain, but now it is very doubtful, and indeed it would seem a prophecy of little daring to declare that they are certainly doomed to failure. The small farmer can stand crop failures, because he can always make a living from his farm. It may be a very poor living, with very hard work, but he is holding fast to all that he has gained in the struggle with nature, and is always ready to take the best advantage of more favorable seasons when they come at last. He values his land for something else besides the value it may yield him; it is a part of his home, and with due pride in it he gives it far more labor and attention than any laborer or foreman of a bonanza farm may apply to that purely business enterprise.

A few years of poor crops would undoubtedly cause the abandonment of the great establishment, but the same area of small farms would be kept in cultivation in good times and bad, and except in swarming Eastern lands the people who work their farms are never reduced to the dire extremity of abandoning their homesteads. At least this can only happen in the times of famine that are rare events in modern days. The great Dakota farms have a blue time ahead just at present. On one Dalrymple farm fifty-five hundred acres of wheat will have to be reseeded, and the remaining five-hundred acres do not promise well. On another of these estates four thousand acres have been reseeded, and the loss is estimated by the great farmers at thirty per cent. If these lands were worked by small farmers they would each have gardens and stock, with a few acres of some other crop than Dakota's famed wheat, and so they would be able to stick to the land and defy the weather. In the long run the small farmer has nothing to fear from the giant speculator in farming.

The Allegheny Battle. The matter of interest to-day in Pennsylvania politics is the signal defeat of the Quay forces by the Magee faction in Allegheny county. This is entirely a Republican quarrel, but is of interest to Democrats as well as Republicans. It shows that the federal spoils are likely to weaken rather than to strengthen the Republican party in Pennsylvania, and that they will not enable Quay to control it. They sufficed to subject the Legislature to his will, but in the wider field of the state their influence is far less effective. The postmaster at Pittsburg was secured by Quay; and afterwards the Republican vote of the city repudiated him. It is not a comfortable showing for his continued domination, nor does it promise well to the party in the state, which exhibits two factions strong enough to contest its control. Lancaster county stands with Allegheny in the quarrel and Philadelphia is likely to stand with them. The disturbance inevitable over the distribution of federal patronage will be water on the mill of the outsiders; and in the gubernatorial contest of next year it is quite as probable that the side that is weakest will be strongest, and the party that is now in will be out. There is no such Republican majority in the state as will enable it to safely enjoy an internal conflict, and one of the sort that is now advertised will make Democratic success certain.

Consequently we look upon it with equanimity. And there is nothing in the merit of the Republican dispute to give either side public sympathy. It is nothing but a contest for control to serve selfish ends, a contest which Magee has any patriotic purpose in fighting Quay, or Quay in seeking to down Magee. They are simply rival leaders, with Quay on top by the fortune of the war. Magee's methods and aims are thoroughly dishonest and even more so than Quay's. There is a bottom to the latter's political depravity, but none has yet been discovered in Magee's, who stops at no prostitution for profit. Quay has turned him down, because of his general and particular rascality; and when this pot can call this kettle black, it must be black indeed.

The falling out of the rogues will be, as usual, of great public benefit. It is nothing but a contest for control to serve selfish ends, a contest which Magee has any patriotic purpose in fighting Quay, or Quay in seeking to down Magee. They are simply rival leaders, with Quay on top by the fortune of the war. Magee's methods and aims are thoroughly dishonest and even more so than Quay's. Outsiders in Government. Governor Beaver, it is said, contemplates vetoing the bill providing for a commission to take charge of the soldiers' orphan schools, upon the ground that the provision for the selection of some of the commissioners of the Grand Army of the Republic is unconstitutional. He has heretofore disapproved a bill which confided to the Gettysburg Memorial Association the selection of commissioners to take charge of the expenditures of a state appropriation for monumental purposes; and this orphan school bill falls under the like objection; and we consider it a very sound one. It is charged that Governor Beaver in vetoing the bill, will be animated more by friendship for the school contractors, than by devotion to the constitution; and his record as a man and a governor, does not enable us to say that this is an unjust aspersion. We have but a poor opinion of Governor Beaver's general independence and intelligence; but if he had done more of such work as he promises to do in this proposed veto, we would have a much higher estimate of him. He just does enough to make us to suspect that if he was possibly his own master he would be a better governor.

There is nothing more disgusting in the frequent exhibition of the legislative lack of conception than the proper theory of government, than this disposition to throw upon Tom, Dick and Harry, rank outsiders in the state government, duties which naturally repose in the delegated officers of the people, appointed in the form of the government and duly chosen. There is another body of the kind, in the revenue commission, ordered to devise a proper measure of state taxation. The Grangers are given a hand in selecting these officers. No great harm will be done, because no egg is likely to come from the hatching, but it ought to be clear to the general assembly that it is its business to make the tax laws, and its duty to inform itself, so that it may make them. To be sure, the proposed commission is appointed to prepare a bill for their consideration and to furnish their information. But the proper committees of the assembly ought to seek this information directly and make their own bill accordingly. They do not advertise their wisdom by showing the duty on a commission of outsiders, appointed by outsiders and confessing their inability to handle the subject or even to name the men who can.

TAXATION without representation was the ticklish business old Bismarck meddled with on Saturday. He referred to the rashness of the Reichstag in admitting Alsatis as members, and said: "We did not fight the French in order to have ourselves incultured with fourteen Frenchmen."

The Philadelphia Record tells of a farmer who slipped upon a banana skin on the streets of Lancaster, and wanted to complain to the mayor because nearly all of his three dozen eggs were broken. It is a pity that the victims of the banana skin get nothing but ridicule or great sympathy for their misfortune. Perhaps if a larger reward were offered for the detection of a rascal in the act of dropping banana skins on the pavement, it might stop the outrage, but public sentiment ought to be strong enough to control so trifling a matter that threatens results anything but trifling. Legs as well as eggs have been broken by this miserable carelessness in dropping things that might just as easily be thrown where they could do no harm.

The New York Herald has a cable interview with Max O'Reil. The witty Frenchman does not believe in Boulanger, who is in his estimate merely the tool of other schemers. He thinks that in the approaching crisis the Communists may triumph for a time and then follow a new Caesar, but not Boulanger. He pins his faith to the Comte de Paris. He says that the peasantry of France desire the meaning of war too well to desire a conflict with Germany and that the real danger lies in the excitable character of the young German emperor. O'Reil claims that his country is stronger and better prepared for war than is supposed, and lays particular stress upon her artillery and her financial resources. General Sheridan thought, however, that the value of artillery was greatly overestimated by foreign military men. Speaking of his book, "Jonathan and His Continent," O'Reil declared that he had no reason to complain of the sales, which amount to $2,000,000 in volume at $1.00 each. He expects to visit us again in January, '90, and will go West and write another book. He is going to travel in Europe this summer, passing most of his time in Germany, where one would think he would not be welcome.

The Philadelphia papers are almost unanimous in condemnation of Mayor Filler for his removal of Dr. White from Blockley hospital because that venerable gentleman refused to obey his illegal commands in the matter of appointments. The Ledger says: "Upon the record as it stands—it remains that a faithful and competent, most attentive and unselfishly devoted public officer, who had endeavored to uphold the law has been turned out of office by the executive head of the city government, whose first duty and most important obligation is to enforce the law."

Dr. White is a retired physician of great wealth and reputation, and though he really suffers nothing by the removal from office, the insulting and arbitrary manner of it was an outrage. The Filler-White incident reads like a page of history from the dark ages when might was right and learning without respect.

CONSIDERING all the valuable advice that the newspapers of this country give to the legislatures of this country, it is astonishing that this country isn't governed better than it is. —Sawyer's Journal. Considering the valuable advice that the newspapers give the politicians, it is not surprising that they are prosperous, even when their product is very poor.

At present the college student is working hard for base ball, rowing, athletic sports and, incidentally, for his diploma.

PERSONAL. JAMES RUSSELL LOWELL has sailed for Europe. It is said he will marry an English woman of rank. Miss FANNY DAVENPORT and Mr. Melbourne McDowell, her leading man in "La Tosca," were married in New York on Sunday.

PRESIDENT HARRISON is contemplating a general proclamation pardoning soldiers of the regular army who have deserted from the service. EDWARD B. LEFFLER, assistant professor of physics at Harvard, died of pneumonia at Beverly, Massachusetts, on Saturday, aged 34 years. Mr. GLADSTONE has received addresses of sympathy signed by the governors, senators, representatives and other state officials of Minnesota and Wisconsin. Dr. J. Z. HOFFMAN, a nephew and student of Doctor J. L. Ziegler, M. D., was recently elected demonstrator of anatomy in the Garfield University, Wichita, Kansas. The doctor is a native of Maywood, a graduate of Lebanon Valley college and of the medical department of the University of Pennsylvania and is well equipped for the position.

Scotch Gingham. We don't wait till the season deadens to ease the prices off a bit. Whenever we can let them or any other prices down a notch, away they go. 40c Gingham at 30c 50c Gingham at 37 1/2c As fine, rich, and altogether choice goods as you'll come across. Stripes, plaids, and solid colors in light blue, light pink, light gray, steel blue, old rose, sepiant, navy, cardinal, brown, cream.

It's a great Gingham year. Everybody's wanting Gingham. But those trade turns that are all the time coming about every now and again bring the best of things to us at unexpected rates. You share the gain.

Real Shanghai Printed Silk, 27 inches wide, at 50c. 75c. $1. and $1.25. At such prices they are the sort that slip out of reach if you stop to think long. Northeast of centre. All the thin Black Dress Stuffs—Crepe de Chine, Silk Twisted Grenadine, Open Mesh Grenadine, Satin Stripes and the like. Just the weaves that fit the weather.

The assortment of Freres Koechlin's best Satens at 18c (you've lately paid 37 1/2c) has been largely reinforced. More than 100 new styles. The shades you want, and patterns as neat and delicate as we ever had in such goods. That other Saten wonder (25c qualities for 12 1/2c) is a fit fellow for the Koechlin lot. It doesn't need half an eye to see where the Saten trade of the town will be done while these two sorts hold out.

They say Gray Cashmere is scarce. Is it? Look at these shelves. Plenty at 50c, plenty at 65c, plenty at 75c and $1. You won't find us short of any Dress Stuff the popular fancy leans toward. Near centre of the store. 25c All-wool Challis are the sensational ones, but there are lively goings on among the 37 1/2c, 50c, and 60c kinds. Southwest and southeast of centre.

A new lot of All-wool French Printed Flannels. Just out of the Custom House. 65c. Every choice kind of Silk-Mixed Flannels for outing wear. Northeast of centre. That new idea in Hamburgs—hemstitching. You wonder why it was so long a coming. Deep Flouncings not a week in the store, $1 to $6.75. Southwest of centre.

Here's a Huck Towel 20x40 inches. Full of substance and in every way worth 20c. The price is 15c. Another, extra heavy, 22x42 inches, is 20c. That tells the Towel story as well as the whole column could—all but kinds. You take them for granted. 2,000 yards 70-inch Cream Damask Table Linen at 60c. We have thought it good value at 70c; 500 have you. 3,500 yards Double Damask, bleached, 72 inches. Good enough for anybody's best, 90c. You know how the French Linen Sheets are for good honest wear. They are none the better for being hemstitched—handsomer, and not a cent to pay for the extra work.

2 1/2 x 2 3/4 yds, $4.70 a pair. 2 1/2 x 3 1/4 yds, $5.00 a pair. Southwest of centre. Printed Linen Lawn is as cool a stuff as you'll get; 24 inches wide, 22 and 30c; white, 24 inches, 20 to 40c. Southwest of centre. Stop where you will in the Muslim Underwear Store, prices all lean one way. Drawers: Fine Muslin, with up-and-down and horizontal plaids, elastic ruffle and neat lace edge; style entirely new, 30 cents. Cambric, excellent quality, with plaids, and plaided ruffle of lawn, edged with Val. lace, 30 cents.

Night Gown: Muslin, with two rows of insertion and neat edge; B. Our own make. Skirt: Muslin, with cambric ruffle, edged with Hamburg embroidery, 6c. "Tellas" are making the Corset talk just now. Second floor, first gallery, Juniper street side. 1,000 imported samples Decorated China Pitchers, Cake Plates, Butter Dishes, and the like. 15c to $2.50. Regular selling price about double. Second floor, Juniper street side.

John Wanamaker. It speaks for itself in what a lady said of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup the other day. A single bottle has cured a child of whooping cough. We've an excellent $1.25 French Plain Toe Congress Shoe for Men's wear—24 pairs here to-day. The "U. S. A." Shoe; nicely finished and strongly made; solid leather soles and heels. It can't be matched at $1.50 at any store in the city of Lancaster. Ladies' "Rea Shoes" will be here, sure, on Saturday, 15th. Call and see them, $1.50. SHAUB & BURNS, 14 NORTH QUEEN ST., LANCASTER, PA. #20-1y4dW

Boots and Shoes. D. P. Stackhouse, 28 and 30 EAST KING STREET, LANCASTER, PA. #20-1y4dW. YOUTHS' SHOES. Three good makes of which to tell a shoe story to-day—more to speak of at another time. Here's a Youth's Shoe at $1.00 to start with; buttoned or lace; have seamless uppers, calf grain tops, genuine kid facings, good linings, strong counters and solid leather heels and soles. The uppers are higher cut than ordinary makes—a feature very desirable where short pantaloons are worn. Looks well and wears well. Our $1.25 line of Youths' Shoes comes from one of the most reliable manufacturers in America. The make, shape, finish and material is absolutely the best attainable at the price asserted. That's a strong assertion, isn't it? We stand responsible, however, for every word of it. That goes a good ways, too, if you know us.
