The Club and Its Dam. The Pittsburg gentlemen who flattered themselves with the hope that it was not the breaking of their dam that did the damage in the Conemaugh valley can hug this delusion no longer, since their own committee of investigation has found their dam broken and their lake empty. It turns out that there were a couple of civil engineers at the place at the time, engaged in some drainage work for the summer settlement that the Pittsburg club had established beside their artificial lake. One of them, Mr. John G. Parke, reports that he discovered early on Friday morning that the water was getting dangerously high and he endeavored with the force of laborers he had at hand to give vent to the water, but he was not able to keep it from rising. He then mounted his horse and sent word of the danger down the valley from a telegraph station. Messengers were also dispatched. Everyone in the valley he declares had warning by noon of the impending danger.

It is not easy to believe that there was such early and general warning given, in view of the nearly universal neglect with which it appears to have been treated, if received. Yet there are so many seemingly incredible things that happened to secure the great calamity, that it is possible even that the people were warned and fled not. It may be that there was a Providential paralysis upon them to obtain their sacrifice. But we prefer to believe that the people had no proper warning that the dam was about to give, and that the responsibility for their inaction upon the officials and the leaders of the people, who knew of the danger that constantly threatened the town and who should have been on the alert at such a time as this, to protect and warn the people. We hear of no action taken by them; but on the contrary they and their are among the victims. It seems a wonderful apathy and ignorance; and when we think of the permission which the great interests, threatened by this immense water reservoir, gave to its existence, we are appalled at the indifference and stupidity which it discloses.

As the story is gradually unfolded we find that this water was a reservoir, built by the State to feed the Pennsylvania canal, many years ago. It received this use; and never found another, until a few years ago, a club of Pittsburgers secured it and enlarged it to a lake of twelve square miles, establishing a summer resort for themselves on its banks. We hear that they raised the wall of the dam, to give them the greater expanse of water they desired for fishing and boating. The hecatombs of their valley, which are gathered in the Conemaugh valley, attest the deepness of their crime. There was no malignity in it. They would not have harmed a hair of the head of anyone of their victims to secure their pleasure upon this lake. They simply did not know. Their engineers did not know. The Cambria Iron company's officials did not know; nor the Pennsylvania railroad company's. Nobody knew that ought to have known; though it was a very simple thing that needed to have been found out, to save the thousands of lives and millions of property that have been sacrificed to gigantic ignorance.

They say it was the providence of God; and that it was unavoidable. And may be so; but it was then the providence of God, acting through the stupidity of men; for it takes little skill to enable an engineer, when he has all the data given, to calculate the pressure upon a dam, to tell whether it is safe and to know what the consequence will be of the discharge of the water upon a confined valley of calculable area. The neighborhood of this dam abounded in engineers and men learned in science and mechanical art. And was there every day a greater salute upon education than this result affords?

Barbarous Immigrants. The people and press of the country have exclaimed in righteous indignation at the miserable depravity of the men who were found mutilating the dead along the Conemaugh for the sake of the jewels on the bodies. And yet we had no right to expect anything but this from the barbarians we have permitted to come to us as immigrants from the southeastern edge of Europe. People from that end of the world are apt to have the vices of the Turk with very few of his virtues. When we remember the fearful Bulgarian atrocities and the horrors that have signaled the border wars of Turkey for many years, it is hardly surprising that these people, so long accustomed to the idea of robbery on their savage battle-fields, should try the same thing in this country. Fortunately the immigration from these regions has been comparatively insignificant in spite of all the talk about it. In 1888 all Hungary sent us only 2,187, and it must be remembered that from parts of that land immigration might be of a very desirable quality. No doubt many of the so-called Hungarians of our mining regions passed the immigration commissioners as Russians and came from the border states, where the people are eager to escape from the ever threatening Turkish war.

Our representatives abroad should be instructed and empowered to supervise immigration at its source as far as it may be possible to do so, for we certainly should discourage the low grade of humanity that has aroused lynch law at Johnstown. Deluges. The concentration of attention upon Johnstown's supreme horror, dwarfs the many and great losses by the flood that otherwise would fill the public mind. We are just hearing of the devastation of the upper Susquehanna region, and discovering that the great towns of Williamsport and Lock Haven have been under water, and that a state of things exists that would do credit to the flat regions of the Yellow River in China, where in December, 1887, a half million of people are said to have perished in its overflow. When we speak of floods and famines and such ills of humanity, we exclude the populous Chinese country, where they habitually prevail, from consideration. Our flood would be small in the comparison, if we made it; but it is the greatest we have ever suffered, or any of our stock; and we do not take Asiatic nations into consideration in grading the calamity.

When the day comes that our population is as dense as that of China, we trust that our engineering skill will have advanced sufficiently to save us from these dreadful perils of floods. What needs to be done is to provide safe outlet for the torrent. The Mississippi is our most troublesome stream; and what is needed there may be what is needed everywhere. Apparently the problem can only be solved by providing a depth to the bed of the river that will take its greatest water. We believe this was the plan by which Captain East proposed to stabilize the Mississippi. The plan heretofore used has been the raising of the banks; and the effect has been the raising of the channel. What is needed is the deepening of the channel; and the engineering skill that will accomplish this at reasonable cost, in both rock and mud river bottoms, will solve the problem.

The romantic history of Francis Evans as told by him in a Chicago paper equals any Indian story that the dime novel builders could devise. When a boy of twelve he was captured by a roving band of Comanches, and adopted by one of their chiefs he grew up a genuine Comanche buck. His captor was chief Santa Taker. He talks about their superb horsemanship, their fighting qualities and their laziness, gambling and cruelty, but admits that he was a good boy and his captor treated him well. How he left them shows Indian stolidity. "I fell in love with Howea-Hipeta, a pretty Comanche maiden, but could not teach her to speak English, though it was she who taught me to speak her own language. I left Howea-Hipeta with great regret, but when the government treaty made my remaining longer with the tribe a matter of my own choice I decided to return to my mother, whom I found at Burlington and who received me as one risen from the dead. I now often find myself talking Comanche in my sleep. It was a life of indolent ease that I had led among them. I was a stranger to the world of work and down on my Buffalo robe at night in my tepee, but still I was not content. I was a civilized child and longed for civilization."

The colored people of Richmond have been highly entertained by Rev. John Jasper, of "Sun do move" fame. Jasper says that he intended that seven storms would pass over the earth; that the lightning and thunder would be accompanied by wind, rain and hail, producing destruction in the land, and that on the last day of May would be the final winding up with thunder, lightning and a great fall of water, causing the waters in the rivers to overflow their banks, and ships and steamers would go down in the mighty deep, carrying with them hundreds of souls. He claims to have recounted this dream to his congregation some time before the recent storms and don't attempt to explain the unfulfilled conclusion referring to ships and steamers.

It will be interesting to note the sort of relief sent to the destitute people of Johnstown. A vast amount of money will be invested with more or less judgment by committees, and food and clothing in abundance will not doubt reach the sufferers very soon, but it is probable that few will think of sending the things that may be most needed. The doctors have given their warning of the danger from the great number of dead bodies, and correspondents have referred to the total lack of tobacco and suggest its need. Smoking may decrease the danger of pestilence and will help to cheer up the chilled and worn out men who are working among the ruins. Their task is hardly enough and should be made as easy as possible, that it may be done swiftly, for it is imperatively necessary for the health of the living that the dead should be gotten out of the ruins and buried.

THE LANCASTERS TAKE A TURN. And Win a Fine Game by Playing Fine Ball With Reading. The Lancaster ball club played a fine game in Reading against the Actives of that town yesterday. The attendance was small, but it included a number of the Lancaster admirers who had gone over to attend the picnic of the bricklayers and carpenters. John Szelzine, an old and familiar player, who is quite a favorite here, joined the Lancaster club yesterday and played a fine game, although he made the solitary error credited to his team. The full score was as follows:

Table with 2 columns: Reading and Lancaster. Rows show scores for various players like Carman, Szelzine, Beck, etc.

The York were completely surprised yesterday and their pit pitcher was knocked silly by the coon. The York club is playing here to-day and it will be difficult to tell who gets the game. Harrisburg is again ahead in the Middle States race. They will make their first appearance here on next Saturday. The championship games played yesterday were: Boston 10, Philadelphia 6; Chicago 2, Cleveland 1; Pittsburg 4, Indianapolis 0; Washington New York, 1; Kansas City 9, Brooklyn 6; Baltimore 7, Cincinnati 2; St. Louis 11, Columbus 7; Atlanta 10, Louisville 1; Hartford 5, Lowell 4; Newark 4, Boston 0; Worcester 10, New Haven 4; Jersey City 6, Wilkesburg 3; Harrisburg 12, Philadelphia Giants 7; Cuban Giants 14, York 0.

Up to the Pensioners. Commissioner Tanner, of the pension bureau, has instructed all pension agents to prepare and forward to him the names and addresses of pensioners in their respective districts who are drawing a pension of less than four dollars per month. As soon as practicable, after these lists have been received at the pension office, a notice will be sent to each of such pensioners, directing him to go before the proper medical board for re-examination and re-rating. This action is taken by the commissioner with a view to raising to $1 per month all ratings below that amount. The U. S. pension agent at Pittsburg has received this telegram from Pension Commissioner Tanner: "Make special any current ratings received from the towns in Pennsylvania rated by flood and pay at once on their receipt. Where certificates have been lost, I would send permit to examine new statements without presenting certificate to magistrate."

TRADE IN TOBACCO.

Features of the Local and Distant Markets the Past Week. There was not much doing in the local tobacco market the past week. The sales were about 300 cases, in small lots. The storm of last week did some damage to the growing tobacco, but not as much as at first supposed.

New York Market. From the U. S. Tobacco Journal. Considering the season the market has been quite active for the past week. Inquiry for the new leaf has become quite frequent, particularly so for the lower grades for export purposes. Several hundred cases of 85 Pennsylvania have changed hands, their destiny being no doubt a foreign market. But old seed is moving also at a lively rate. 500 cases of '87 Wisconsin were disposed of, 500 cases of '87 Pennsylvania broad leaf, some 400 cases of Onondaga, and about 150 cases New England tobacco. In the aggregate the sales of seed leaf for the week reached over 1,600 cases.

The demand for Sumatra continues likewise active. Manufacturers and jobbers seem to have considerable quantities of the old Sumatra will do yet for awhile, especially as it sells so much cheaper than the new. At the latest inspection which was held on the 20th inst.—one can hardly keep track of their number, as they occur now so frequently and at such short intervals—some parcels of known brands were bid in by American buyers at from 3.25 to 3.40 fl., or for $1.30 to $1.38 in American money. Add 75 cents duty and freight, and you have a very low price to buy those goods here. The largest quantity of the new Sumatra has arrived during the past week. It amounts to nearly 1,000 bags, and stock moved to the amount of 450 bags.

Havana is enjoying the steady favor of the trade. Sales about 1,200 bales. Very little to be seen at present. 1,100 cases. The Philadelphia Market. From the Tobacco Leaf. A decided improvement is noticeable in the demand for all great leaf cuttings for cigars. Old is in good demand, while the '88 crop now and then finds buyers, subject to approval when new samples are drawn. It is interesting to note the extent of the business, but this is owing to the difficulty of not finding the stock needed in every leaf house, causing buyers to make more calls than they would otherwise. The past week's business foots up satisfactorily and has the ring of encouragement. Sumatra moves steadily at full quotations.

Receipts for the week—69 cases Connecticut, 367 cases Pennsylvania, 24 cases Ohio, 38 cases Little Dutch, 494 cases Wisconsin, 68 cases York state, 127 bales Sumatra, 341 bales Havana and 250 bales Virginia and Western leaf tobacco.

Sales prove to be: 31 cases Connecticut, 465 cases Pennsylvania, 21 cases Ohio, 31 Little Dutch, 386 cases Wisconsin, 67 cases York state, 109 bales Sumatra, 271 cases Havana, and 15 bales of Western leaf tobacco in transit direct to manufacturers.

HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA. IT COSTS LESS. On the question of real economy, Hood's Sarsaparilla is so far ahead of other preparations as to place them entirely out of the race as competitors. Here are facts in regard to this popular medicine, easily susceptible of conclusive proof.

1. Hood's Sarsaparilla costs the Manufacturer more than any other competing preparation, because it is more highly concentrated and contains more real medicinal value. 2. It costs the Retail Druggist More, for the same reason—as can easily be learned by inquiry. Hence the desire of some retailers to sell their own preparation at the same price, and for which they get the same price, thus making more money. But

3. It costs the Consumer Less than any other medicine, because of its greater curative strength and the quantity in each bottle, and because it is the only preparation of which can truly be said, "100 Cents is Worth It." That the people appreciate this is shown by the fact that Hood's Sarsaparilla has the largest sale of any sarsaparilla or blood purifier. It possesses peculiar merit and effects wonderful cures.

A POINT FOR YOU. When you buy your spring medicine you want the best. Ask for Hood's Sarsaparilla, and insist upon having it. Do not let any argument or persuasion influence you to buy what you do not want. Be sure to get the ideal spring medicine.

HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA. Sold by all druggists. $1; six for $5. Prepared only by C. L. HOOD & CO., Lowell, Mass. 100 DORCHESTER SQUARE, BOSTON.

PHILADELPHIA, Tuesday, June 4, 1889. Within the limits of our City Delivery system we will collect, pack and forward contributions for the relief of sufferers in Johnstown and vicinity. Send postal card request to call.

Shantung Pongee. The dustless kind. You know how the Heathen Chinese crams dirt into the common run of Pongees? He doesn't do it to the Shantung. Pure silk, and clean. $5 the piece of about 20 yards. West transept.

The White Goods stock. Mammoth as to size; royal as to styles and qualities. Prices prostrate. For years that has been our way with White Goods. More than ever our way now. A closer grip on the markets; as keen an eye for the things you ought to have. We catch the first dawning of a new thought in any of these lovely creations; we help some of the thoughts to dawn.

Just now Hemstitching is ahead in Hamburgs. It's the newest wrinkle. The drift is toward hemstitching on everything and to less of that wonderful stitch, stitching that has loaded filmy fabrics with so much loveliness.

The heavily embroidered Flouncings are not one whit less elegant than of old, but the Hemstitch Juggernaut lets us crush prices like this.

About thirty patterns of our choicest, regular stock 45-inch Flouncings. Southwest of centre.

As much of a sensation in Printed Mohair prices as in any of the Dress Goods. Lovely stuffs for the hot months, and a third or more of the last-week prices dropped. 37 1/2 c up. Southwest of centre.

That 28c Albatross would be a marvel at 37 1/2 c. We are on the last third of the big lot. White, ivory, cream, the very colors most of you'd choose, are plenty. The color line bulged in just the right spots. 40 inches wide; $2.24 for an ordinary dress pattern of as graceful and sprightly an all-wool stuff as anybody need care for.

One Bedroom Suite. Two Parlor Suites. We held them up yesterday to show what we are doing in Furniture. The pulse of the store shows in them. Here they are again:

The Bedroom Suite—A choice of two styles of finish, imitation mahogany an antique oak, eight pieces, including Bedstead, Dresser, Rocker, two chairs, Table, Washstand and Brass Towel Rack Attachment. $25.

The Parlor Suites—two sorts, $60 and $75. Worth double as the market goes. Mahogany finish, tapestry covering and plush trimming. Third floor, four elevators.

An odd lot of Men's Fancy Duck Vests go to $1.25 from $2.50; another double-armed lot of Men's Fancy Flannel Vests go to $1.50 from $3. All the time there are little knots of last survivors going the same way. We don't spare a word for one in a hundred of them.

Parasol prices cut in two below and above the middle—oftenest below. The very best goods we have. With every curl and twirl and prettiness perfect. $5 to $12. Some have been $25. Chestnut street side, west of Main Aisle.

A Chestnut street window full of Outing Hats. They make you hungry for a romp or a stroll in the forests or fields or by the waters.

Nothing cooler than Linen for the Summer bed. Full bleached Linen Sheets, $8 to $12 a pair.

10-4 French Sheeting, 65c to $1.10; Flemish, 75c to $1.10. All the Hemstitched Sheets are gone except the $4.70 a pair kind.

Time to begin thinking again of the Printed Linen Lawns. They come as near to putting a chill on a hot day as any stuff you'll find. 22 and 30c. Southwest of centre.

First $6, then $5, now $3—Women's Kid Shoes! They were worth $6. Market street front, west of Main Aisle. John Wanamaker. Attorneys. LUTHER S. KAUFFMAN, ATTORNEY-AT-LAW. Second Floor Eschman Law Building, No. 43 North Duke Street. my28-ly
