ADDRESS, THE INTELLIGENCER, Lancaster, Pa

LANCASTER, PA., June 11, 1889.

The Twin Governors. The governor of Connecticut follows he governor of New York in vetoing bill passed by the Legislature establishng the Australian system of voting; and it is remarkable that the governor of Connecticut starts out in his veto message, as did the governor of New York, with a vehement declaration of his de-sire to secure fair elections. He had even called the attention of the Legislature at the opening of the session to the need of legislation upon the subject,

But he doubts, as does the New York governor, the benefit of the Australian tem ; yet he cannot state wherein the tem will fail in its promised results. Both of these governors simply doubt; and against their doubt is the fact of the success of the plan wherever it has been tried : and the further fact that if their doubt is justified in the failure of the system, it will be an easy matter to handon it.

These governors are of different poli-ties and their common attitude towards this system of voting shows that it is not popular with the practical politician. And the reason may be found in the fact that it is designed to do away with this creature. The purpose is to secure the casting of a ballot, without letting the working politician know what it is; this aim being secured by requiring the voter to use an unmarked ballot, which he receives from the election officers after he has parted company with his political patron to go to a private booth in which to prepare his ballot. If the man who has the money to buy the vote cannot see that it is delivered, the obvious suggestion is that it will not pay to buy it, and there will ensue a disastrous depreciation in the value of the services of the "blocks of five" managers. The Connecticut people are very much exercised over Governor Bulkeley's veto of the bill and a great effort will be made to pass it over his veto. Meanwhile Bulkeley who has just been elected by the Legislature, although he polled less votes than his Democratic opponent, is being handled without gloves by the newspapers.

We Bow Them Out.

The Pittsburgers who embraced the Johnstown situation with so much ardor and who have dropped it with so much precipitation, are a bumptious lot of folks, much inclined to the entertainment of an exalted opinion of themselves. We judge this from the talk of Chairman McCreery, of the relief committee, who told a reporter that in their conference with the governor they had "used strong language," told him that they "were through," that "he must take bold of the matter at once, and we would have stopped all operatious Satway and left it all in his hands, if he t asked for time and a confer which we finally gave him."

That is pretty good, for a citizen to a overnor, and the chairman of a committee of a town that raised two or three hundred thousand dollars to the custodian of the contribution of over two millions from the country at large. The fact is that these Pittsburg gentlemen, who are big fish in their own puddle and who bounded into this Johnstown business under the idea that it was their special care, have had to face the fact that Pittsburg is but a small element in the relief party, and as they have not been able to command the situation they drop out in a parexysm of wounded pride, after one of their number who had been set up as dictator had speedily failed to fill the bill.

We do not suppose that these Pittsburg people can ever be persuaded that the country views with much contentment their retirement to the shades of their private life, to which it returns them with thanks for their amiability, admiration for their agility, and a poor idea of their engineering ability. They know how to make iron and glass and things that require blowing and heating and like expenditure of human labor, but they failed to grasp the idea of the dorkey engine as a remover of wrecks; and they go out of Johnstown as the donkey engine comes in.

We Want No Clans.

It behooves the Clau-na-Gael to take some action very quickly to show that it does not countenance assassination and, according to Luke Dillon, fifteen thousand members of the order are now at work on the Cronin mystery to vindicate their good name. Of course there is more poetry than accuracy about this statement of Dillon's, and he rather lessens the force of his own protests by admitting that the feeling against any member who was accused or suspected of being a British spy would be so strong that it might result in his death.

This was in his testimony, and a few moments before he had dramatically declared that the close intimacy between Alexander Sullivan and the spy Le Caron had caused the betrayal of men sent on missions to England. If the struggles of the factions of the Clanna-Gael led to such murderous intrigues and murderous cumity it will be very hard for the fifteen thousand to vindicate the good name of their society. Dillon may protest sincerely that there is nothing in the constitution of the clan that conflicts with the duty of its members to their adopted country and its laws, but he cannot avoid the plain fact that it is a disturbing element in the community, making restless and dangerous citizens of men who might otherwise lead tranquil and orderly

We wonder how long our country would be suffered to grow strong in peace, if all the people should organize in class according to European descent for the encourgement of foreign political sgitators.

The Prohibition Election.

The prohibition election takes place n one week, and we hope to see the ocratic voters generally show gh interest in the result to cast their allots. We have heretofore said, very scidedly, that there should be no hesstice is the Democratic mind in voting fundamental Democratic antipathy to sumptuary laws.

It ought not to be beceasary for us at this late date in the history of the party and of the country to defend this Democratic position; and it is hardly necessition. sary, either, to point out to the intelli-gent and unprejudiced Democratic mind that the prohibition of the making and sale of liquor carries with it logically, though it will not effectually, a prohibition of its use; and that such prohibition is the most observious form of supportancy legislabnoxious form of sumptuary legisla-

Our opposition to this amendment is based upon the two grounds, that it will be ineffective and that it is undemocratic; either of which alone suffices to condemn it. We have the deepest compassion for the intelligence which sup-poses that the prohibition of the sale and manufacture of liques in and manufacture of liquor in the state will stop its free use; and the greatest disgust for the lack of fairness in the man who contends that the prohibition of the making and sale of liquor is defensible, because it is not a prohibition of its use. It will not stop its use, but it is intended to do so, or therr is no reason in it. And there is no reason in it; nor a proper appreciation of Democratic principle by any Democrat who votes for it; and this we say though we know that many sensible Democrats in the lower end of the county intend to vote for it. We believe that they are letting their feelings and prejudices run away with their reason; and with the greatest respect for them individually, we enter our protest against what we believe to be their plain departure from the paths of their party.

THE INTELLIGENCER is the first paper to adopt the suggestion of Chief Signal Officer Greely that the weather reports issued daily from Washington should be styled 'weather forecasts' and not "indications," as heretofore. This is a small matter, but we aim to be right, even in trifles. The weather bureau receives the "indications," and from them forms the "forecasts," which are published throughout the country. They are not the hints given by nature, but guesses based upon those hints.

According to the New York World, articles of incorporation were filed on Monday at Springfield, Illinois, creating the great American Execution company of the United States, "It is organized under the general corporation act of Illinois and announces its paid-up capital at $25,000. Its declared purpose is to execute persons who are sentenced to death.' The incorporators are Stephen Lawson, M. E. Clear and Jacob A. E. Iffert, of Chicago. The company intends to establish agencies in each state capital, and will conduct a general retail and wholesale execution business at fixed schedule rates. It will employ only the most expert hang-men, at a fixed yearly salary, and will make contracts with the sheriffs of counties in states where condemned murderers are executed by the county officials. Mr. Clear said: 'We do not intend to earn any dividends. If we can simply maintain the integrity of our capital we shall be satisfied, and shall gladly charge off to the loss account the interest thereon. No, our motives are purely philan-thropic. To do good is our reli-You see, it's like this: We are all believers in capital punishment. We read our Bibles carefully and believe that whose sheddeth man's blood by man shall his blood be shed or words to that effect. To be hanged, sir, by our company's expert executioners will be a luxury. You must have read-of course you did-the horrible accounts of the bungling strangulations of the Bald-Knobbers. That was shocking enough to suggest some practical reform, don't you think so?" Of course this is quite beyond belief, but this levity is one of many indications that the death penalty is getting played out.

CLINTON HALL, in Astor Place, New York, is to be torn down to make room for the Mercantile Library. So perishes an old landmark of historic fame, for the Astor Place riots of 1849, must always rank among the interesting though unimportant incidents of history. That twenty-three people should be killed and as many vounded in a quarrel between two actors is so foreign to modern notions of American coolness that it must always excite curious interest. It would be hard to find in the history of France a parallel example of headlong and unreasonable mob fury. With all their savage and blind deeds the French had at least the excuse of long brutalizing misrule, but these Americans simply they have a vicient reason over simply flew into a violent passion over son Tells How He Killed Her. For over a month Cleveland, Ohio, has been excited over the disappearance of a little girl named Maggie Thompson. She was not quite 9 years old, was bright and was not quite 9 years old, was bright and attractive, and wealthy people who lived in the neighborhood of her parents' home made up a reward for her recovery. Everything possible was done by the police and newspapers to restore her to her family. As telegraphed Sunday night her mutilated remains were found under the house of Henry Lueth, a German cabinetmaker on Merchant avenue. Lueth lives less than 200 feet from the Thompson family. He and his wife and son were placed under arrest at 3 o'clock on Monday morning. Harrassed and confused by the sharp questions of the officers, who slowly but surely tions of the officers, who slowly but surely were entangling him in a net of his own contradictions, young Otto Lueth, the son, finally broke down and confessed that he contradictions, young Otto Lueth, the son, finally broke down and confessed that he had committed the horrible crime.

He said that on the day of the murder Maggie Thompson passed his house at about noon on her way from school, and asked him for a button to put on a "button string." He enticed the little girl into the house and upstairs. He placed her on the bed, and killed her with a hammer or hatchet. He left the body on the bed until the following Wednesday, when he carried it to the cellar, where it was found. When asked what motive he had for the murder he said that he had had a couple of drinks of liquor and must have been crazy. In answer to questions he finally admitted that he had attempted to assault the girl, but was unsuccessful.

Otto Louth, the self-confessed murderer of Maggie Thompson, says that he is lift years of age, but he looks older. He is tall and slender, with dark eyes and brown hair. His head is peculiarly shaped and his forehead is very low. At the time of the city at work, and the mother was in a hospita'.

Action Postponed. The general synod of the Reformed Church in America resumed its session in Catskill, New York, on Monday. The question of organic union with the Re-formed Church in the United States (Gerformed Church in the United States (Ger-man) was, by recommendation of a com-mittee, postponed for final action until next year. The prayers for use in the Sabbath school and the family recommended by the committee on liturgy to be added to the liturgy of the church, were adopted and recommended to the classes for their ap-

Agricultural Report for Jane.

The June returns of the department of agriculture show a slight increase in winter wheat area seeded, but the breadth harvested may be possibly a million acress more than in the last crop, largely from Kansas and California. The seeded and harvest area in Kansas will this year be nearly identical, and the large breadth in California which is cut for wheat in years of low yield will in part be harvested for grain this season. The question of areas will be tested later as thoroughly as possible by a partial local census at various points.

The condition of winter wheat still remains comparatively high, though it has fallen three points during the last month, and averages 93 for the country.

The following state averages are given:
New York, 96; Pennsylvania, 95; Maryland, 98; Virginia, 97; Georgia, 95; Texas, 88; Kentucky, 86; Ohio, 88; Michigan, 90; Indiana, 90; Illinois, 92; Missouri, 98; Kansas, 98; California, 98.

The area of spring wheat has apparently increased about 3 per cent. The preliminary estimates show a loss of three percent, in Wisconsin, and one in Minnesota; and a gain of one in Iowa, three in Nebraska and seven in Dakota, with increase in the mountain region. Further investigation may disclose the changes of the year more exactly.

The condition of spring wheat is high, gation may disclose the changes of the year more exactly.

The condition of spring wheat is high, except in Dakota, where it has suffered from drought. Averages are as follows: Wisconsin 99, Minnesota 93, Dakota 88, Nebraska 99, Iowa 99. Condition is gener-ally high in the mountain districts. The average is nearly 95 for the entire spring wheat breadth.

An increase of two to three per cent, in wheat breadth.

An increase of two to three per cent. in the area of oats is reported, while condition is seven points below the normal standard of a full crop.

The area of barley is about the same as last year, and its average of condition 95. Rye has made no perceptible advance in area and its general average of condition is Unwillingly Vaccinated.

Thomas Sheridan, of Newburg, N. Y., is a plaintiff in a suit against the Inman Line for $25,000. Sheridan was a passenger in the City of New York from Liverpool to New York in April, this year, and while on board was compelled to submit to vaccination. He strongly protested, and claimed that he had been vaccinated before. Notwithstanding this, the steamer's officers compelled him to have it done then and there. It was accordingly done. Now he claims that the virus was impure and that it had been impregnating his sys-Unwillingly Vaccinated. Now he claims that the virus was impure and that it had been impregnating his system and caused absesses all over his body, rendering him helpless and in fact it is possible that he may die. Physicians say that if he should recover he will never again be a healthy man. The suit will probably bring the human Line into the supreme court of Orange county. They are likely to secure a change of venue if possible, so that it can be tried in New York or in the United States court.

Democrats Take the Office A decision handed down by the New Jersey supreme court, on Monday, decides that the Jersey City charter act is uncon-stitutional. The effect of this decision will be to oust all the old officials, and turn the city government over to the Democrats.

HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA.

That Tired Feeling is experienced by almost everybody at this ser on, and many people resort to Hood's Sarsapa rilla to drive away the languor and exhaustion. The blood, laden with impurities which have been accumulating for months, moves slug-gishly through the veins, the mind fails to think quickly and the body is still slower to respond. Hood's Sarsaparilla is just what is needed. It purifies, vitalizes and enriches the blood, makes the head clear, creates an appe-tite, overcomes that tired feeling, tones the tite, overcomes that tired feeling, tones the nervous system, and imparts health and vigor HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA

"My appetite was poor. I could not sleep, had headache a great deal, pains in my back, my bowels did not move regularly. Hood's Sarsaparilla in a short time did me so much good that I feel tike a new man. My pains and aches are relieved, my appetite improved. I say to others who need a good medicine, try Hood's Sursapartila and see." George F. JACKSON, Roxbury Station, Conn.

For years I was sick every spring, but last year took Hood's Sarsaparilla and have not seen a sick day since." G. W. SLOAN, Millon, "I take Hood's Sarsaparilla"as a spring tonic and I recommend it to all who have that mis-erable tired feeling." C. PARMELEE, Bridge Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.
