SALVAGE FOR STRAY LOGS. A Question Whether Owners of Islands

From the Columbia Herald. Among the heaviest losers by the great sed of June 1, 1889, were the lumber, and mill men of the Susquehanna river region. Not less than six million dollars worth of logs and lumber were floated away from their owners on the high water of that memorable flood. By far the greater part of this loss falls upon the lumbermen in and around Williamsport. These lum-bermen are all members of an in-corporated company known as the "West Branch Lumberman's Exchange," and this corporation, by original ownership, assignment, transfer, etc., have acquired the absolute ownership of all logs and lumber which recently escaped into the Susquehanna. This Exchange is now taking active steps to recover and save their property. Great quantities of this property has been caught along the river banks and lodged on the islands in Lan-property has been caught along the river banks and lodged on the islands in Lancaster county. It is probable that there will be much disappointment among those who have caught logs with reference to the compensation allowed them by law.

There is a general opinion that they will able to recover at the rate of fifty cents per log. This is an error. It is tow-sithat the act of the county of the compensation of fifty cents per log for each saw log caught below the town of Northumberland, but this price only applies where the owners of the logs have voluntarily floated the logs in the river. The law was passed to prevent the driving of logs below Williamsport and was never intended to cover the case of logs which had been taken out of the booms by high floods.

The rate of compensation allowed to those who "catch, take up and secure logs and lumber floating down the Susquehanna river" is above the Columbia bridge fifty cents per thousand feet board measure, and below the bridge seventy-five cents per thousand feet board measure. With reference to the logs and lumber lodged on the islands and along the banks, it does not appear that the laws of Pennsylvania fix any compensation to the owner of the land, where he does not actually catch the

A public sale of all the logs that escaped

A committee from the West Branch Lumberman's Exchange has already visited along the river in our county and it is believed that a speedy settlement of all claims on an equitable basis will be made. The World's Tobacco Yield.

The World's Tobacco Yield.

From the Louisville Courier-Journal.

The world's annual output of tobacco is increasing; perhaps more rapidly than that of either wheat or corn.

Kentucky is the greatest factor in the tobacco market and her product steadily grows. That of Virginia does likewise, and several of the Northern states are cultivating it successfully. Cuba has long been famous for her cigar wrappers, and in many parts of the island the planters are abandoning sugar and turning their attention to tobacco, finding the latter much more profitable. Even Germany is endeavoring to raise it.

But the greatest efforts to extend the entitivation of tobacco are being made in the East Indies. Both the soil and the elimate of the great islands near the Asiatic coast are admirably adapted to the weed, and it has long been successfully grown there, but not until recently have attempts been made to produce it on such a large scale. Both the butch and the English are heavily interested, and the industry is not conducted by small farmers as here in Kentucky, but by great companies on immense plantations, working a thousand or more coolies and Malays.

The most prosperous of the companies are located in Batavia and Sumatra, and their tobacco is frequently shipped to American markets. The last issue of the London Financial News quotes the stock of five of these corporations as follows: 360, 451, 836, 429, and 610. They have advanced about 90 points each in the last three months, and are among the most highly prized shares on the London Exchange.

The World's Machines. According to a recent publication of the statistics bureau at Berlin four-fifths of the statistics bureau at Berlin four-fifths of the steam machinery in the world has been constructed within the last twenty-five years. France has 49,500 boilers, 7,000 locomotives and 1,700 ship boilers; Austro-Hungary, 12,000 boilers and 2,400 locomotives. In the United States the steam machinery, exclusive of locomotives, has 7,500,000 horse power; in England, 7,000,000; in Germany, 4,500,000; in France, 3,000,000; in Austro-Hungary, 1,500,000. There are some 105,000 locomotives, with 3,000,000 horse power, in the world. All the steam machinery in the world possesses 46,000,000 horse power. The one-horse steam machinery in the world possesses 46,000,000 horse power. The one-horse power of a machine operated by steam is equivalent to the strength of three ordinary horses, and the strength of an ordinary horse is equivalent to the combined strength of seven men. From all this the statistical bureau at Berlin draws the conclusion that the steam machinery of the world does the work of 1,000,000,000 men, or twice the working population of men, or twice the working population of the globe.
