THE TOURNAMENT ENDS. RESULT OF THE SECOND DAY'S CONTESTS BE-

Rain Prevents Many Attending the Races-The Full Programme For the Day Is Given, Despite the Showers.

TWEEN WHEELNEN AT THE PARK.

Friday was the second day of the bicycle tournament at McGrann's park. The weather was threatening all day and for a time it was believed that the races would not come off. The rain held up pretty well, however, although there was a light sprinkling at times, and every event n the programme came off as advertised. The track was somewhat heavier than on the first day, but it was by no means in bad condition. The races were first class in every respect, and the people who saw them were delighted. The audience was not as large as Thursday on account of the Among the wheelmen present, in addition to those of the first day, were A. B. Rich, the fast rider of New York; Frank M. Dampman, of Honeybrook, Chester county, who rode to Lancaster from home on his wheel yesterday, and Wallis Merrihew, of Wilmington. John A. Wells, of Philadelphia, filled the posi-tion of referee in a highly satisfactory

The racing began promptly at 3 o'clock and the first contest called was the halfmile hands off for three prizes: First, typewriter; second, oxydized silver ring; third, bicycle saddle. W. W. Taxis, of Philadelphia; Z. Loffland, Wilmington; J. W. Schoefer, New York and B. F. Mc Daniel, Wilmington, were the starters. Soon after the pistol had been fired Taxis pushed ahead and won without much trouble in 1:35, with Loffland second, and

Next came the two mile club handicap. The entries were D. H. Miller, Alvin Reist Jacob F. Griel and John S. Musser, Lan-caster, and George F. Kahler, Millersville. The prizes were: First, gold medal: second, bicycle suit; third, fishing rod and reel. The programme stated that Miller would start at the scratch, giving Kahler 100 yards, Reist 130 and the others 180. Miller refused to go in the race and the others started, Ki bler giving the others the starts as above. Reist and Griel fought for first place for time, but it was believed that Kahler would get there, which by did at the mile and a half, keeping ahead. There was a splendid race between Griel and Reist for second place and the latter was the better at the lose by a length. Musser fell out at the end of a mile. Time, 6:221.

The one mile club safety was the next event with the following prizes: First, bicycle suit; second, star saddle, D. H. Miller, D. R. Rose and Edward R. Griel started. Rose forged ahead at the start, but was passed by Miller at the quarter pole. They had a pretty race and was close until the home stretch was reached. Then, to the surprise of everybody, Griel who had been behind a short distance, took a spurt and went to the front with a rush, staying there. Rose was second and Miller third.

The next event was the three mile club team race, and it was one of the best of the meeting. The prize was a bronze statue. In the race the position of each rider is taken at the end of each half mile when the points are scored. Lancaster had a team entered consisting of Kahler, Reist and Miller, but they did not start. The Penn club of Reading was to have put in Wilhelm, Kilmer and Mosser, Kilmer was the only one to put in an appearance and he dropped out after going once around. The st was between the teams of the War ren Athletic club of Wilmington, and the Berkeley Athletic team of New York. The former was composed of Frank M. Dampman, B. F. McDaniel and Z. Loffland, and the latter of A. B. Rich, J. M. Schoefer and W. F. Class. The contest was a very pretty one and the men were bunched much o the time. Rich was ahead the greater part and his team won, scoring 89 points to 71 for Wilmington and 2 for Reading. Time, 9.45]. During the race Class who was going at a high rate of speed, tried to turn out of the way from a dog near the judges' stand. He took a header and was thrown heavily to the ground. He was badly bruised but resumed the race quickly amid great applause and was in at the finish.

The one-mile tandem race was the fifth event. The prizes were: First, two silver-headed canes; second, two oxydized silver match safes, Rose and J. Rudy started for Lancaster and J. W. Schoefer and W. F. Class for New York. The Lancaster men ahead for some time, but near the half they were very close. New York then went ahead and won. McDaniel and Dampman started for Wilmington, but withdrew after going around once. Time 3:011.

The sixth race was one of the best and most exciting of the day. It was the one mile contest for the state championship. The prizes were: First, handsome gold medal; second, goldheaded umbrella; third, oxydized stamp The starters were Alvin Reist, and D. H. Miller, Lancaster; George F. Kahler, Millersville ; W. I. Wilhelm, Reading ; W. W. Taxis, Philadelphia ; and John J. Mc Laughlin, Columbia. Reist went off with a rush, but was only able to maintain lead to the first half-mile. Then Wilhelm came to the front and he and Taxis had a beautiful race to the close. They were almost together all the way down the home stretch, but the Reading man won by a length. Kahler was third. The time was 2:587, the best of the meeting.

The next race was a one mile safety, consolation, and the prize was a silver flask. McDaniel, of Wilmington, and Allgaier, of Reading, were the only starters. It was close for a time with Allgaier in the lead and his opponent dogging him. On the home stretch McDaniel, who seemed to have been playing with his opponent, took a sudden burst of speed and won easily. Time 3:161.

The eighth race, a two mile open, was another dandy. The prizes were: First, oxydized silver hair brush; second, bicycle shoes; third, bieycle saddle. There were a number of good men in the race as follows: S. Wallis Merrihew, Wilmington; Samuel Mosser, Reading; George M. Gregg, Wilmington; B. F. McDaniel, Wilmington; George F. Kahler, Millersville; W. W. Taxis, Philadelphia; Z. Loffland, Wilmington; W. F. Class, New York; A. B. Rich, New York. At the start Kahler took the lead, but only held it to the threequarter, when Merribew relieved him of the position; he was soon passed by Taxis and all were well bunched for some distance. When the tape was crossed for the third time Merrihew was in the lead and he was there yet until after the turn had been passed on the home stretch. great spurt Rich came up and took the race by a very close call. Taxis was second and Merrihew third. Time 6:10.

The last race of the day was a one mile ordinary consolation for a fine hand satchel as a prize. Sam Breneman, of Laneaster, and M. Kilmer, of Reading, started. Breneman had grown somewhat rusty for want of practice on the wheel, but he showed up well until on the home stretch when Kilmer passed him easily and won by some distance. Time, 3:38. Although the meeting was not the financial success they should have been, owing to postponement and bad weather, the racing was excellent, and the patrons of the sport were well satisfied with the efforts of the home club to please.

M'QUADE ACQUITTED.

Judge Fursman Brought Tears to the

"Arthur, look up; you are an honest man. You have been proven an honest man. Here beside your babies look up into the sweet light of Heaven and into the face of man. No matter what the verdict, you have no cause for shame. I believe it, I know it. In the name of my dear Maker, I believe it."

I believe it."

These were the words of Judge Fursman's peroration in the defense of McQuade, the accused ex-alderman of New York, and they concluded a picture of suffering and sorrow so tender and so touching that the heart melted before it as wax before the flame. The felon's shame, the anguish of state prison, the heartbreak of the wife, the awful disgrace of little children had been his theme, and his liquid tongue had poured out a stream of irresistable pathos. Sobs filled the court room, Jury and speciators wept and were not shamed. McQuade, sitting in the torture chair, hi prattling and unsuspecting infant in his ap and his weeping wife and daughter at his side, had buried his flaming face in his hands and was crying convulsively. Even the tried attorneys, used alike to oratory and suffering, paid tearful tribute to the sympathy which makes the whole world kind.

After Judge Fursman's speech, District Attorney Fellows presented the people's side of the case. Judge Daniels delivered what was recognized as an able and impartial charge, and the case went to the jury for a final determination. It took them just four minutes to find McQuade not guilty.

TWO YOUNG PEDESTRIANS.

Boys Who Walked to Harrisburg for Fun and What They Saw. Henry C. Brubaker, an INTELLIGENCER carrier, and Garrison McCaskey, son of Capt. McCaskey, two bright boys of this city, started on a tramp to Harrisburg on Wednesday. They left here at 3:15 in the morning and had made ten miles before the sun was up. They stopped along the road and were in Harrisburg in nine hours. They remained there all of Thursday and vesterday started to walk home. They came by way of Marietta on the tow-path and arrived in Lancaster at nine o'clock last evening.

On their way up the boys stopped at the house of Jacob N. Brubaker, near Mt. Joy, where they were entertained. During their short stay there Mr. Brubaker showed them several curiosities. One of these was an old Swiss Bible made in 1517. Its dimensions are 15x10 inches and it is 6 inches thick. The covers are of wood and rawhide with brass tips and are varnished. It is printed in Swiss. The Bible was presented to Mr. Brubaker, by David Hershey in 1871. Mr. Brubaker also has an old 24-hour clock, which is supposed to have been brought from Germany It stands very high and bears the date 1777. Some years ago it was sold for one cent and Mr. Brubaker afterward paid $25 for

The young pedestrians found much to interest them along the tow path, where there are yet thousands of logs. The canal is rapidly being repaired and will soon be in good trim again.

Dr. Blatr's Funeral. The funeral of Dr. A. R. Blair, of York a native of Strasburg, this county, took place in York on Thursday evening. The services at the house were conducted by Rev. H. E. Niles, D. D., of the First Presbyterian church : Rev. E. W. Shields. the Moravian church, and Rev. W. H. Rice, of New York. The religious exercises at the grave were conducted by Rev A. Chilton Powell, of Grace Protestant Episcopal church, Baltimore, and Rev. Dr.

The pall-bearers were Drs. W. S. Roland M. Lochman, S. J. Rouse, I. C. Gable, M. J. McKinnon, Jacob Kinnon, Jacob Hay, B. F. Spangler and J. B. Kain. The home of the deceased was filled with friends, and the floral tributes were many and beautiful. Among those present were William Blair, of High Point, Md.; his brother-in-law, Colonel Walter S. Franklin, of Baltimore, and Walter M. Frank lin, of Lancaster.

SWIFT JUSTICE. How a Plucky Peddler Served Rascally

Neighbors. Last Tuesday night, a peddler from Montreal arrived in the village of St Cuthbert, 40 miles distant from that city, and went to a friend's house. Finding all the family absent except a 15-year-old daughter, he sent her to a neighbor's house daughter, he sent her to a neighbor's house to get a companion to stay with her until morning. The neighbor refused to allow one of the children to go with her. During the night the girl was aroused by two masked men, who knocked at the door and demanded her money. She went to the peddler, who handed her his pocketbook to give to the robbers. The latter said this was not enough, and the girl again went to the peddler. He said he would attend to the matter himself and taking a revolver form the peddler. He said he would attend to me matter himself, and, taking a revolver from his valise, he went to the window and shot both robbers dead. The girl ran to the neighbor's house and told what had happened, whereupon the woman exclaimed that "it was her husband and son who had been killed, as they were the men who in tended to rob the peddler." The Tucquaners Here. The Tucquan club broke camp yesterday afternoon and the members returned to Lancaster on the 6:45 train last evening. During the day there was considerable rain which, no doubt, bastened the departure of the club from their favorite resort. The club had considerable rainy weather and the muddy water stopped their luck at base fishing. They have never had a better time than this year, however.

A Small Strike. This morning five hod carriers at work for Drachbar Brothers, on Williamson & Foster's new building, struck because they were reprimanded for not doing their work right. Two of them afterward came back, but the others sulked. Men were then taken over from the trust building and put on the job.

He Spoke Two Days. P. D. Haywood contributes to the Philadelphia Press two columns and a half about "The Old Philadelphia Bar." Among the interesting matter is this paragraph: Judges in those days must have had patience. In cases of small mportance lawyers made addresses eight nours in length, and the writer remembers a case where Reah Frazer, of the Lancaste bar, addressed a jury for two days, when a verdict was given for $11.50, the price of sundry pairs of chickens alleged to have been feloniously taken.

A Band Reorganized.

The old Liberty band was reorganized last evening. It now has 16 pieces and the officers are: President, William Rehm: vice president, R. C. Dorwart; secretary, D. K. Dreppard; treasurer, J. W. Deitrich; W. Deitrich; conductor, Prof. H. C. Ricksecker; trustees, H. Wenditz, John A. Sprenger, Phares Hambright.

To Encamp at Ephrata.

Company A, Silver Springs Rifles, Philadelphia, have made arrangements to encamp at Ephrata for a week, beginning They will be under command of Captain John S. French, of General E. D. Baker post, Grand Army of the Republic.

THE LATE JOHN ANDREW BAER

HE LEAVES THIS CITY THE LAST TIME TO VISIT THE CENTENNIAL.

A More Accurate Account of His Caree Than That Published By the New York Journals - A Graduate of Yale.

Mr. W. U. Hensel, of the firm of Brown & Hensel, who had been retained by Reuben A. Baer and C. R. Baer to look after their interest in their brother's estate in New York, returned from that city Fri-day night, where he and Mr. C. Rine Baer had spent several days of this week on that business. Both gentlemen expressed sur-prise that what had been kept a private matter up to this time had found publication in more or less sensational manner in the newspapers of the large cities. In the main the account of the life, death and estate of the late John A. Baer (otherwise known as "Lemuel" or "Leonard Coe") which appeared exclusively in the INTEL-LIGENCER of Friday evening, has been found upon inquiry to be correct. In some respects, however, the metropolitan re-porters strained a point to give a sensaional flavor to their accounts.

The late John Andrew Baer was well known in this city as a son of the well known John Baer, deceased, of the Volks-freund, book store and "Baer's Almanac." He was a graduate of Yale college and had studied considerably in medicine and other branches of scientific knowledge; and was for a time instructor in a ladies' school in Philadelphia. He was never a member of the firm of John Baer's Sons and never had such difference or disagreement with his brothers as has been reported in the New York newspapers. When here he made his home with them and upon his last visit, 1875-1876, he had rooms at the house of his brother, C. Rine Baer, on North Duke street. He was somewhat eccentric in his habits, reticent in his disposition and was wont to carry about with him a number of little packages, such as were found in great profusion about his room after his death.

In 1876 he left Lancaster to visit the entennial, and his failure to return for months excited no wonder nor apprehension for his safety, as he was accustomed o absent himself for long periods. Occasionally letters were received from him, but for a number of years his whereabouts were utterly unknown. His brothers did not, however, believe him to be dead, and they always expected his return to Lancaster to spend his last days among the associations of his youth and of his family.

The first intelligence of his death came rom the friend of his later years, Dr. John A. Haller, to whom he confided in his last days his name, family relations and con-

For reasons satisfactory to himself be had about twelve years ago taken up his room and residence at the New England hotel, a cheap and unpretentious, but entirely respectable hotel on the Bowery, in one of the busiest and most central quarters of the great metropolis. He called himself Dr. Coe, and kept his own counsel. He lived among people who did the same, and as he paid his lodgings with scrupulous fidelity every week, harmed and owed nobody, where and what he ate and where and how he spent his time affected nobody and excited no surprise in a city of a million souls where scarcely a man's own right hand knows what his left doeth.

During this period he lived economy. He had the faculty of acquisitiveness developed to a remarkable degree Every piece of clothing, box, paper, wrapper, string, bottle, newspaper or article of hatever kind that ever came into his possession stayed there; and his morrey carried about with him, noting from month to month of what it consisted and to what amounted.

When he fell sick he confided to Haller. chance acquaintance of the hotel, his real ame and his money, and executed a will of which he made him executor. This man was faithful to his trust : he attended him in his last illness; counted the money of large denomination, amounting to $24,500. and deposited it in a trust company; and when his friend died he notified hi brothers of all the facts of the case.

Mr. Baer and Mr. Hensel have since the death and funeral made three trips to New York, and after frequent consultations and negotiations with Dr. Haller and counsel, agreed upon a perfectly satisfactory settlement of the estate, as a result of which the bulk of the fortune was this week transferred to the heirs to it. The amount of it was about the aggregate of the share which he received in his father's mother's and brother's estates; and though from time to time to it was slightly swelled or decreased by investments and speculavery nearly in its integrity.

The New Holland Railroad. There is no longer any doubt of the completion of the railroad to New Holland. The entire $100,000 necessary for its construction has been subscribed. The Clarion says: This assures the building of the road, and that too without any long delay, as the right of way has already been secured from a large proportion of the land owners whose properties are crossed, and bonds of indemnity given to the others. The survey is also completed, Engineer Slaymaker having been at work again several days this week at the western end, where three other routes were surveyed, differing a little from the one previously reported, as the company is désirous to have the best route that can be secured. We may look, therefore, for the work of grading to begin soon.

st. Stephen's Church Anniversary. The fifteenth anniversary of the organization of St. Stephen's Lutheran church, and the fourteenth anniversary of the lay ing of the corner-stone of the church will be celebrated to-morrow. There will be appropriate exercises morning and evening and special music on both occasions. In addition to music by the regular choir there will be selections rendered by members of the other church choirs of the city.

AN INTERVIEW WITH DR. NEVIN. He Talks About Church and State in

The New York Star has an interview with the Rev. Dr. R. J. Nevin, who was recently visiting his old home at Cærnarvon, the residence of the late Dr. J. W. Nevin, near this city. The Star says: For twenty years Dr. Nevin has had charge of a Protestant flock in the Eternal City, where he has seen the pope's temporal power change, until the question of removing the holy see from Rome is frequently discussed, and Italy itself, after revolution and anarchy, is again taking its place among the nations of the earth as a peaceful and prosperous country. He is a tall, well-formed man, with keen, dark eyes, a high, intellectual forehead, and a full beard.

"A mistake has arisen," he said, by way of explanation, "in regard to my full beard.

"A mistake has arisen," he said, by way of explanation, "in regard to my work in Rome. I am not a missionary in the sense of carrying on a work of proselyting. I am simply in charge of an established Episcopal church there, and we do not even have an Italian service. The congregation is made up of English and American people, tourists and residents of Rome, and our congregation is always a large one. The only work we are doing outside the regular church work is our hospital. We took over a number of trained nurses from Bellevue hospital of this city, from England and some from France. They were much needed and have done a great deal of good. We have recently purchased a villa and fitted it up as a hospital, and that is in a prosperous condition. Our nurses go all over Italy, and a peculiar fact is that the American nurses are the most successful and skillful, as a class, of all we have."

"Dr. Nevin, do you look for a transfer of the holy see to some other point than Rome?"

"I do not. The pope will never leave Rome until he can find some place where he is assured of greater temporal power than he has there. In the present political condition of Europe, I don't see where he can find such a place. If he goes into France, he must conform to the laws, as he would in America. In Italy he has greater powers than that. Inside the Vatican he is can find such a place. If he goes into France, he must conform to the laws, as he would in America. In Italy he has greater powers than that. Inside the Vatican he is absolute. An Italian policeman dare not cross the threshold, even were he in pursuit of an escaping murderer. The pope has that much of temporal power left, and he is too great a diplomat to give that up. Then the College of Cardinals would never consent to a removal. The college is Italian. That is, the Italian cardinals are in the ascendency and will maintain their hold. There is no chance of any other than an Italian being a successor to the pope. I saw somewhere a mention in a newspaper of the possibility of an American successor to the pope. It is the veriest nonsense. An American cardinal has no political influence, and would be met with the combined opposition of the Italian members of the college, if not of the others. Year after year sees church and state grow further apart in all countries. It is the tendency of the pope has gone with the general disassociation of political and religious institutions. In the celebration of the memory of Giordano Bruno some weeks ago, the pope saw the greatest blow to the power of the church in his time. Twenty thousand students alone took part in that testimonial to the memory of one regarded as an enemy and heretic by the church. In that celebration the pope realized the end of the temporal power of the church in Italy. But where can he go? In the college the German cardinals are unalterably opposed to the French, as a se the Spaniards to the Austrians. Yet unalterably opposed to the French, as are the Spaniards to the Austrians. Yet through all this the Italian cardinals are a through all this the Italian cardinals are a unit. They hold the balance of power and rule the college. Were the holy see re moved they might not hold the ascendancy. It is safe to say that the pope will not leave Rome, and that his successor will be from among the Italian cardinals.

"The tendency of Italy at present," Dr. Nevin continued, "is toward prosperity and stability. I do not anticipate any change in the government during Humbert's time, and should changes come they will be forward rather than backward. Humbert is regarded Humbert is by this people with confidence. He is giv-ing a conservative, peaceful and hon-est reign. Italian finances are the best indication of this. Her credit from being almost gone steadily has come up until her bonds sell at par, and her institutions are all in a fairly prosperous condition with a brighter outlook for the future."

SENATOR STEHMAN'S FUNERAL.

Those Who Conducted the Services and a List of Pall-Bearers The funeral of Senator John M. Stehman took place this afternoon from his residence at Rohrerstown, and it was one of the largest ever seen in that section of the county. At noon strangers began arriving in the village, and by two o'clock the main street of the village and the cross-roads eading to the village were full of vehicles. The remains of the senator were exposed to view from early this morning and hundreds of his neighbors and friends took a last look at the features of the man they delighted to honor. Religious services were held at the house at 1:30 o'clock and were conducted by Rev. Eli Hershey. At 2:30 o'clock the remains were taken to the Bethel church, where services were conducted by Revs. E. H. Long, Hottenstein and John Brubaker. This church was too small to accommodate the large crowd and services were also held in the Lutheran and Reformed church near by These services were conducted by Revs. Stein and Lowery.

At the conclusion of the exercises, the body was viewed by manywho had arrived too late to see it at the house, and when all had seen it the funeral cortege proceeded to the Rohrerstown cemetery where interment was made.

The carriers were Wm. Jones, John Bowen, John Hall, Joseph Fouse, Adam Liese and Henry Newcomer. The pall-bearers were John R. Bitner, J. Hay Brown, George K. Reed, Congressman Brosius, John D. Skiles, Lewis S. Hartman, John I Hartman, Andrew M. Frantz, Lancaster; Representative W. S. Smith, Conoy; Dr. E. O. Lyte, Millersville; Senator A. H. Mylin, Senator John E. Revburn, Philadelphia; P. J. Moore, of the Windsor hotel, Philadelphia; Senator John Grady, Philadelphia; Senator A. D. Harlan, Chester, and Dr. P. J. Roebuck,

A Change in the Internal Revenue Office. Mr. J. H. B. Wagner, who for over four years has so acceptably filled the office of cashier at the internal revenue office in this city, has resigned that position in order to give his exclusive attention to important business interests. Mr. Pierce Lesher, a former deputy in the office under Collectors Mactionigle and Hensel, and now teller in the Conestoga National bank, has been appointed by Collector Hensel to fill the vacancy caused by Mr. Wagner's resignation; and the change will take effect on August 1st. Mr. Wagner has been a faithful and popular official and few men could be found to succeed him so satisfactorily as Mr. Lesher.

That State Fair Mortgage.

Secretary D. W. Subsequently the receiver gave the secretary $25,000 on a five years' mortgage, which could not be paid because the fair was not a suscess. Mr. Seiler the fair was not a success. Mr. Seiler says the exhibition of the state fair will not be abandoned.

Burke's circus and trained animal show pitched their tents in McGrann's park this morning, where they are giving an exhibition this afternoon and will have another to-night. The trained horses with a band preceding them were led through the streets this forenoon.

NOT FEARING ARREST. CHAMPION SULLIVAN AND HIS CROWD NOW

IN NEW YORK CITY. The Stugger to Go to Boston-Mitchell In Canada to Escape a Detective Whom He Ill-Treated.

NEW YORK, July 20.-John L. Sullivan slept late this morning, and a miscellaneous host of callers were turned away from the Vanderbilt hotel, where the champion is at present stopping with his brother Mike. It is more than likely that the party will start some time to-day for Boston. A big crowd began to form as entrance to the office of the Hilastrated News in hope of catching a glimpse of the slugger. Charlie Johnson said this morning that he did not think the stake money now in Al. Cridge's hands would be called for until after Sullivan returned from the Hub. "We have plenty of money," he said, "and are in no hurry." The Sullivan party do not fear or anticipate arrest and are taking no precautions. The latest reliable news concerning Charley Mitchell is that he is in Canada with Pony Moore waiting for a chance to slip away for good from avenger Norris, the Mississippi detective, whom he euchred.

Sullivan Goes Around Laucaster. Among the passengers on the Chicago Limited of the Pennsylvania railroad, which passed east around this city yesterday afternoon, was John L. Sullivan, the champion prize fighter, who was with two friends. Had the people of this city known this no doubt hundreds of them would have been out standing along the railroad track on McGovern's farm awaiting to catch a glimpse of the great slugger. John arrived in New York perfectly sober, and was soon surrounded by hundreds of friends. He says that the stories about his drinking are lies, and he is now going to try and make money. He will visit Boston to see his parents to-day.

THE WAYNE STATION WRECK.

Thirteen Cars Off the Track—A Columbia The wreck at Wayne station, on the Pennsylvania railroad, which was mentioned yesterday in the INTELLIGENCER, was to a Philadelphia and Columbia through freight, which left the former place at 6:30 in the morning. Thir-teen coal cars were demolished, the track was torn up for a distance of about 100 yards and traffic on the road was stopped for several hours. The train was going at the rate of nearly 30 miles an hour when the accident occurred, and the engine and five cars broke loose from the wrecked train and ran to St. David's station, about a mile below Wayne, before they could be brought to a standstill. The cause of the accident could not be ascertained, but the point where it occurred is considered one of the worst along the line of the road. E. Columbia, was injured. He jumped on a car when he saw the other cars ahead of him about being wrecked, and was thrown down an embankment. When picked up he was in an unconscious condition, but his injuries are not thought to be of a se-

The east-bound track was repaired between I and 2 o'clock this afternoon, and, in the meantime, passengers on east and west bound trains were required to walk around the wreck to take the cars. All trains were late reaching Lancaster from the east yesterday after ten o'clock. The west-bound passenger and the eastbound freight tracks were cleared at a o'clock to-night, when work was stopped by the heavy rain. One workman was slightly injured by being struck by a broken coupling. The loss by the wreck will be quite heavy.

BOTH ON ONE TRACK.

An Experiment That Has Been Frequently Tried, but Always Falled. There was almost a very serious accident yesterday afternoon on the Mt. Joy branch of the Pennsylvania railroad, which is a single track. Lancaster Accommodation leaves here daily for Harrisburg at 2:50 and Philadelphia Accommodation, eastward, reaches here at 3:55 from Harrisburg. They usually pass at Mt. Joy. The western bound trains were late yesterday and by some mistake the two above named met on the same track, between Landisville and Dillerville. The western bound train had just swung around a curve when the two engineers saw what was wrong. They quickly applied the air brakes and reversed the engines.

Both were stopped, but it was only with n a short distance of each other. The peo ple in both trains were jerked about by the sudden stopping, but when they found what the cause of it all was and the narrow escape they had made from a terrible death there was great excitement. Men from both trains jumped out upon the track and crowded about the engines. The fireman of one of the trains jumped from his engine to save his life, but that was not necessary, as the coolness of the engineer saved all.

Death of an Old Boat Bullder.

rom the Harrisburg Patriot, July 20. Mr. William J. Beatty, an old and highly espected resident of South Harrisburg. died on Wednesday evening, in his 85th year. He was born in New York city, but in early manhood came to this city, and was engaged as a boat builder with Till & Main, whose establishment was on Mulberry street, just east of Pennsylvania canal. Subsequently he carried on the same business at Marietta, Lancaster county. In 1871 he returned to Harrisburg, and has resided here ever since. He leaves a family of six children. The funeral services will be held at his late residence, No. 710 Race street, this evening, and the remains will be interred at Marietta tomorrow.

Supposed Lancaster Man Shot A telegram received by Chief of Police Smeltz from Townville, near Titusville, Pa., says that James McCuen, of Lancaster, was shot at that place last night. The chief as yet has been unable to find out any person by that name who resided in Lancaster. He and an INTELLIGENCER reporter visited a number of persons, whose names were nearly like the one in the dispatch, but could not learn anything conerning the man. The telegram to the chief is from a doctor and the man is likely dead or dying.
