August Flowers, two clubs of this city, played a game on the Irousides grounds. The teams represent the eastern and western sections of the city, and there was considerable rivalry between them. The result was a disastrous defeat for the people from the eastern end. The feature of the game was the fine battery work of Snyder and Resh, of the Actives. Hogarth also pitched well, but seemed to fear some of the Actives' hard hitters, as five of them were given their bases on balls. Only seven of the August Flowers reached first, and only one got as far as third. But seven men went to bat in the first two innings and only nine went to bat in the last three. He was around town on Friday night and all day Saturday, drinking freely. He remained at Retallick's on Sunday and was in bed nearly all day. About noon he said he was done drinking whisky. It was his custom when he wanted to get sober to use chloral or laudanum. Yesterday he used audanum, and in a short time he complained of being very sick. His condition was reported to Dr. J. W. Hess and he promptly prescribed for Stains. At an early hour this morning Dr. Hess was sent for, the messenger stating that Mr. Stains was in a critical condition. The doctor responded at once to the call. When he arrived at the house Stains was dead, Coroner Honaman was notified of the death and he empanelled as his jury to hold the inquest : Harry L. Trout, Ċ. C. Carpenter, Christ A. Gast, James A. Miller, I. D. Sprenger and George Richardson. The testimony taken shows that it was a leliberate case of suicide. On Sunday morning he drank a quart of whisky, and about noon he said he was done drinking whisky. He sent for some laudanum, and his wife gave him a teaspoon of that drug. That made him sick, and later in the afternoon, in the absence of his wife from the room, he drank all that remained in the audanum bottle, about three ounces. The verdict of the jury was that death resulted from an overdose of laudanum, dministered by his own hand.

Mr. Stains was a native of Lancaster and 51 years old. He was a shoemaker by trade, but abondoued that business and learned telegraphing. He went into the army in company I, 79th Regiment, and on account of his knowledge of telegraphing was transferred to the signal corps. Upon his return from the army he went into the employ of Bitner & Bro., and was in charge of the daily line of freight cars between Lancaster and Philadelphia. About 1867 he met with an accident while on the road and lost part of one foot, which disabled him. He assisted his mother when she kept store on East Chestnut street for some years and in 1876 he opened a fruit stand at the City hall building. He soon built up a large trade and prospered financially. For several years he abstained from liquor. Great excitement always started him to drinking. When his daughter eloped he went on a spree and remained drunk for several weeks and he has not been sober since this daughter's latest escapade in Lebanon. Mr. Stains leaves a wife, one daughter and two sons. George Stains, his assistant in the fruit business, is a step-son.

There have been several very heavy rains during the past two days, although it was believed by many that the bottom had fallen out of the clouds by the end of last week and there was no more rain to be

Some of the stones were almost as large as walnuts and in some places they could be shoveled up. The heavy fall of hail did not cover an extensive area heavy but it did a great amount of damage, and the gross frauds in the burial of indigent obacco and corn were cut to pieces.

At Neffsville the hail fall was light, and little damage was done by it. At Schoeneek and Farmersville there was some hall, and one of the heaviest rain storms of this year, and there has been quite a number of them. This morning there was another very neavy storm, which was accompanied by thunder and lightning. Rain poured in torrents in this city, and there was just as David H. Martin, a farmer, residing a mile south of Farmersville, near Groffsdale neeting house, was struck by lightning and entirely destroyed. The building which was new, was about 60x40 feet in size. The fire was discovered about three o'clock. Mr. Martin's family were awakened by the bright light and they hastened to the burning building. The neighbors soon gathered in great numbers, and they succeeded in saving all of the stock and one wagon. The other con-tents were burned, consisting of one wagon, we plows, a harrow, and other farming implements, besides all the hay, straw and grain. The building was insured in the West Earl company, of which Mr. Martin is one of the directors, but that amount will not likely cover the loss.

David Martin, another farmer, lives at Groffdale mills, about a half mile from the burned barn. He had three colts in a field at the time of the storm, and two of them were struck by lightning and killed.

A COSTLY WAY OF BUYING RAGS.

A remarkable suit is threatened by the Queen City Rag company, of Buffalo, N. Y. Mr. Sklansky, the manager, has been worsted in several deals by the rival rag house of Oppenheimer & Co. To get even he offered to sell that house twenty bales of rags, one cent to be paid for the first pound, two cents for the second, etc., the price of each bale to be double that of the proceeding bale. Mr. Oppenheimer, without stopping to cousider the offer, jumped at the pro-posal. A contract was drawn up and signed by both parties. Afterward Mr. Oppenheimer figured out his bill for his twentieth bale of rags and found he would have to pay $5,250.85, the tofal bill amount-ing to $10,462.75. The goods were worth $150. When the Queen City company tried to deliver tho goods their cartmen were driven off by Oppenheimer's men. A bill was sent, however, and Mr. Sklansky says he is going to bring up the case in the suaspected Eliza. He was not long in finding her, and when he did he also found the skirt, which she had in her basket. Eliza had a right good "jag" on, and in one hand she carried a growler of beer, which she threw away before going to the station Alderman Spurrier committed Eliza on the above charge for a hearing to-morrow afternoon. This gives to Mr. Fellenbaum the exclusive right to sell on the camp ground, but is restricted from selling confectionery on Sunday.

One hundred and fifteen tents are already taken, and it is supposed there will be 150 by August 15. Three backs will be run from Rawlinsville to the camp ground during the camp. A TERRIBLE TRAGEDY.

A Girl Only Seven Years Old Shot B a Companion.

The quiet village of Halfville, between Pennville and Lititz, was thrown into great excitement on Saturday afternoon by a terrible accident. The parties to it are the son of Andrew Dombach, farmer, and the daughter of Andrew Conrad.

Neither of the children is seven years. Their parents are neighbors and close friends. On Saturday afternoon these children were playing in an upper room of the Conrad residence. In a corner there was a loaded shotgun. Little Dombach in play picked up the gun and pointed it at the Conrad girl. Unconsciously his finger touched the trigger and it went off.

The contents struck the girl in the face, nearly all the shot entering her eye. The discharge of the gun was heard by Mrs. Conrad, and she suspecting something wrong, hurriedly ran up stairs.

She found her child on the floor and the boy almost scared to death. Dr. Hertz, of Lexington, was summoned and he dressed the girl's wounds. She is still living this morning, but no hopes are entertained of her recovery. The accident has cast a gloom over that entire neighborhood. Had the parents of this girl put the gun beyond the reach of the children the tragedy would not have occurred.

A Test Case.

Washington Dispatch to Philadelphia Inquirer Since the return of Senator Cameron the rival aspirants for the collectorship of internal revenue of the Lancaster district have been displaying considerable activity in getting their papers before the secretary of the treasury. It was well understood when the Philadelphia, Pittsburg and Wilkesbarre appointments were made that Langater chould remain undisturbed Lancaster should remain undisturbed until after the senator had got back from Europe. The sad cause of his sudden return is no obstacle to the local in official quarters is no obscience to the local in official quarters that all the papers are now in the secretary's office, subject to the preliminary question as to whether Mr. Hensel's fragmentary term shall be carried forward to the four-year limit or whether he shall simply be permitted to complete the term of Mr. Mactionigle, whose death occurred when he had been in office a little over three years. Had been in once a fittle lived the four years from the time he took charge would have expired last June. Mr. Hensel began duty about the end of November, 1888, or nine months ago.

This, therefore, presents a case of con-struction for Senator Cameron to interview the president on. It is hinted in anticipation of the result that four years is a full allowance for a Democratic offi-cial, that having been the policy of the Democratic administration. This is regarded as a test case, and the question for decision is whether one official having died, and another succeeded, the four years should be rated from the date of the original appointment or from the beginning of the appointment for the unexpired term There are a number of similar cases peing.
