LANCASTER, PA., August 19, 1899.

A Step in the Right Direction.

The opinion which Judge Patterson handed down on Saturday, in the case stated between Constable Dorn and the county of Lancaster, was a step in the right direction. It was a case which concerned not only the constable but every taxpayer in the county.

Mr. Gladstone has for many years been an ardent admirer of our system of government and he has never failed to express his admiration on public and private occasions. A criticism from this great statesman, which comes from an interview which Rev. Theodore L. Cuyler had with him, has great force and merit.

One of the great virtues of the English system is that serious follow hard upon trial and conviction. In this country years sometimes elapse before a murderer pays the penalty of the crime, and in the mean time, he is given every opportunity to escape by legal means.

It is a healthy sign when nearly all the papers of the country heartily approve the course of Gov. Lowry, of Mississippi, in bringing Sullivan, the sluggard, to trial and the backbone of Judge Terrell, who sentenced the prize fighter to a year's imprisonment.

It is time a reform is instituted in this matter. Anyone who would have the moral courage to make the fight against this legal thieving would be a public benefactor. The better class of our citizens never gets into the criminal court and knows nothing about this wholesale fleecing.

But until this is done the efforts of an honest county solicitor and upright judges in cutting costs down to their strictly legal amount will be commended. It is a greatly needed reform, and this paper has never failed to call attention to its necessity when an occasion offered itself.

er though the man who does so may be court-martialed for mutiny, and if his judgment of his duty is found wrong he may be shot.

The attempt upon the life of Don Pedro was a crime of the most heinous character. The crime was attempted at a theatre when the chief executive of the nation was surrounded by his family, and the would-be assassin appears to have been a fanatic who assumed the mission of an avenger of the slaves-holders.

Mr. Gladstone regards the rapid growth of the plutocratic influence in politics and the loose condition of marriage and divorce laws as formidable dangers to the state.

It is a little disappointing to find that the solicitor of the treasury has refused to give an opinion in answer to the question whether a duty would be imposed in case electricity developed in Canada at Niagara Falls were sent across the river into the United States.

Is the Nez Perce Indian war an officer narrowly escaped capture because he failed to arrest his captain, and assume command when the latter hesitated in pursuit of the enemy?

Did Deputy Marshal Nagle do right in killing Judge Terry? This is a question of more intricate bearing than may at first appear, for the actual attack by Terry was not murderous, and no man has a right to take the life of another, save in the defense either of his own life or of a life which has been placed by due authority under his protection.
