In the council proceedings will be found a resolution, passed by the unani-mous vote of both branches, directing the city solicitor to discontinue the suit of the concurred. Mr. Baumgardner presented a bill of John Evans & Son, for $260 for making plans and specifications for the new market city of Lancaster against J. W. Johnson, ex-city solicitor, and Henry C. SPEECHES AT THE CONVENTION.
Candidate Bigler Accepts the Nomination For State Treasurer.
Edward A. Bigler, the Democratic candidate for state treasurer, was before the convention shortly after his nomination. He gracefully bowed in acknowledgment of the ovation and said :
I am not accustomed to making speeches, as many of you know, and simply propose to thank the convention for the honor conferred upon me without going into a discussion of the issues of the campaign. This honor is the more highly appreciated in that I have been nominated without the slightest effort on my part but against my expressed wish. As a member of this grand old organization, I bow to the party and pledge myself to do everything in my power for the success of our cause. With us, in connection with the organization, resis the result in November. Active, intelligent, persistent effort on our part will bring the full Democratic vote to the polls and insure us the victory. Our principles are those most conducive to the well-being and happiness of the whole people, and the bad faith and broken pledges of the Republican leaders will certainly cause many to hesitate who have hereiofore acted with that party. The experience of the last six months has more in the last campaign, and I firmly believe that had our great leader, Grover Cleveland, been re-elected we would not have withes attended the advent to power of our political enemies. The reduction of taxation through tariff reform was inscribed on faith reference of data year; the same inscription is the same inscription is the same inscription is the same inscription is data year; the same inscription is the our banners when we went down in the fight of last year; the same inscription is fight of last year; the same inscription is on our flag now and will remain there and lead us to victory in 1892. While this is not a state issue or a question that is affected by the result of a state campaign, yet it is a question that is inseparable from our daily life and its proper adjustment is es-sential to the prosperity of our people. I am a firm believer in the Democratic doe-trine that a " public office is a public trust," and should it be my good fortune to be called upon to administer the office for which I have to day been nominated I pro-mise to bring to the discharge of its duties an earnest desire to so fulfill them as will best serve the interests of the common-wealth. wealth. His remarks were enthusiastically re-

His remarks were enthusiastically re-ceived. In entering upon his duties and temporary chairman, Representative Wherry poured a raking fire upon the present administration for its conduct of the state's finances. "State treasury re-form," he said, "is an issue of fact, and not of sentiment. It deals with figures, not with theories. When the Democratic state administration went into power in 1883 there were about $4,500,000 lying idle in your treasury vaults. Democratic in-fluence in the Legislature enacted a law to make these moneys profitable to the people of the state, but it took even a Democratic mandamus to get that money out of the clutches of the majority of the then sinking fund commissioners who were Republicans. Had that law con-tinued to be observed by the succeed-ing administration the state would have reaped more than $1,000,000 benefit. But how stands the case since the present ad-ministration went into power? The law has been defiantly and flagrantly violated. Hundreds of thousands of dollars of tax upon the industries of the state have been aflowed to accumulate in our idle treasury. Hundreds of thousands of dollars of tax upon the industries of the state have been allowed to accumulate in our idle treasury. A million dollars of interest-bearing government bonds were sold to swell these deposits, and this in violation of the plain letter of the law. And now to-day, or, to speak with absolute accuracy, for I want to be held accountable for my words [ap-plause], on the 39th of July last, there were $1,135,000 in the treasury of this state. You all know-every intelligent man knows-the unlawful uses to which these immense sums are put. They are used to determine nominations and elections: to fatten the coffers of political favorities [ap-plause], and to corrupt legislation here at

LOG COLLEGE GROUNDS, Pa., Sept. 5,-

The old Log college celebration, under the auspices of the presbytery of Philadelphia North, was held to-day on the old Teunant farm near Hartsville, Bucks county, Pa., where the college was originally located. The farm is about 20 miles from Philadel-

The exercises of the day are really commemorative of the founding of the Presby-terian church in the United States. Log college was established in 1726, by William Connant and flourished until 1742, when Princeton college was founded.

When to-day's celebration was first talked of President Harrison promised to attend and he has kept that promise by coming here to-day accompanied by Posi-master General Wanamaker, Mrs. Harrison, Rev. J. W. Scott and Private Secretary Halford. The president and party arrived from Washington last evening and spent the night at Mr. Wanamaker's country home at Jenkintown. Early this morning the presidential party started for the place where the exercises were held, driving in carriages over the old York road a distance of about eight miles. The route along which the party travelled was profusely decorated with flags and bunt-ing, the farm houses, fences, and trees showing evidences of the people's intention to make the president's journey memorable. Tents had been erected on the Tennant farm and an immense crowd from the surrounding country and Philadelphia and including prominent Presbyterian divines from all over the country was present. A long programme of exercises had been arranged, divided into two parts, and at 11:20 the services of the day were opened by the reading of a verse of scripture by Rev. Joseph Beggs, D. D., of Philadelphia. Then followed prayer by Rev. L. W. Eckard, of Abington, Pa. At 11:50 the president, leaning on the arm of Mr. Wanamaker, entered the large tent and was given a most enthusiastic welcome. They were followed by others of the party, and all took front seats on the raised platform. The ladies of the party were all dressed very handsomely and carried beautiful boquets, Mr. Harrison's journey was one continued ovation. The entire 8 miles of road was lined with people, and cheering was frequent. Governor Beaver, who was also of the party, came in for a generous ovation at the hands of the audience when he ascended the steps of the platform.

As soon as the party were seated the first paper of the day was read by Rev. D. K. Turner, of Hartsville, Pa., descriptive of the founding of Log college, and the useful career of its founder. He was followed by Rev. R. M. Patterson, D. D. LL. D., of Philadelphia, editor of the Presbyterian, who delivered an address on 'Log College Evangelism."

Rev. Francis L. Patton, president of Princeton college, was next on the programme for an address, but cwing to the death of his son, he was unable to be present, but Rev. Dr. Murray, dean of Princeton college, delivered a spirited address in Next came Richard Mellwaine, D. D., LL. D., 'president of Hampden Sydney college, Virginia, who read a paper on the "Influence of Log College in the South."

Scott entered their carriage and started back to Mr. Wanamaker's at Jenkintown, at 2:20 o'clock. The vast assemblage gathered around the carriage and cheered the president as he drove off. It is understood that Mr. Harrison will remain there until to-morrow when he will return to Washington, where he will remain until Monday and then go to Dear Park. Mrs. Harrison will remain the guest of Mrs. Wanamaker until Monday, when she will go direct to Deer Park from Jenkintown.

Legitime in New York.

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.-Legitime, ex-president of Hayti, arrived this morning on the steamer Manhattan. He was accompanied by his family and several officers of his army. There were only only five other passengers on the vessel. Legitine's daughters are very handsome childran, with complexions of mulattoes; while their father is coal black, Madame Legitine is a fine looking portly woman, not so dark as her husband. The ex-president would talk very little, but e made a few opigrammatic remarks which were interpreted for the benefit of reporters, "My people called me and I came," he said. "They deposed me and I left, not because I was compelled to, but to avoid further bloodshed. On Saturday I shall go to France, where I will remain a short time. I may return to Hayti as a private citizen, or may go to Cienfuegos and establish myself

The Harrison administration has given an early proof of its capacity for reckless expenditure of the public money. The in-crease of the net debt over one million dolars in July, though unexpected, ex-cited no particular attention because it was thought to be due to an accidental excess in current expenditure. But the August statement, showing a further increase of over six millions of dolars in the net debt, admits of no snet explanation. Evidently The Harrison administration has

we have reached the end of the policy of retrenchment enforced by preceding ad-ministrations, and have entered upon a policy of deliberate extravagance. It is true enough that the money to be dishursed during the current fessel year disbursed during the current fiscal year cannot exceed the amount appropriated by Congress. But what was intended to cover the expenses of a year may be in good part paid out in six months. In pursuance of the Republican policy of resistance to tax reduction, it is of the first necessity to keep xpenditure as far as possible in advance of income. Profusion in the first half of of income. Profusion in the first half of the fiscal year will bring on compulsory parsimony in the last half. It is in the last half that Congress sits; and it is then that the clamor for more money for fortifications, for war vessels, pensions, public buildings, ship canals and Federal aid to schools will resound throughout the land. Under every of this continued land land. Under cover of this contrived lean-ness of available funds in the treasury and of the vociferous demand for a more and of the vociferous demand for a more adequate and liberal expenditure there will be a grand raid on the surplus. The sur-plus will disappear. Then it will be dis-covered that there is no need of tax re-duction or of tariff reform. The adminis-tration will have paid the debt it owes to protected monopolies by making it ap-parently necessary to prolong and confirm their clutch upon the pockets of the people. It is hardly possible that this game, in which the government descends to the sharp practices of street speculators, should sharp practices of street speculators, should pass unobserved by taxpayers. They cannot be convinced that it is necessary that the expenditures for the two first months of the current fiscal year should be $18,855,978 in excess of the expenditures of the last fiscal year. The difference between any claim he might legally have, but it was his duty to pay over to the city every dollar he had collected in his official capacity. J. W. JOHNSON'S STATEMENT.

Mr. Johnson, when seen this morning, said he was surprised at the action taken by councils because he had not asked that such disposition be made of the case. He always held that his claim was a proper one and such as had been allowed to other solicitors and he believed he was entitled to the extra compensation asked.

In regard to paying over the $1,500, after a threat was made to prosecute him for embezzlement, he said that threat had nothing to do with his paying that amount on account. He paid that money over, he says, with the understanding that the finance committee would allow his claim for extra compensation to go before councils and not be opposed by any member of that committee. As to the embezzlement case, pending in court, Mr. Johnson said he has at all times been ready for trial, but the district attorney would not call the case.

Then with uplifted hands, and with his face turned heavenward, the Clearfield statesman continued: "Oh, oh, for six months, with all his failings, of Grover once again!" It was a most dramatic pose, and the appeal was so stirring that it nearly set the delogates wild. The applause and cheers that followed lasted several minutes. He closed by urging the party minutes. #### The Ambulance.

Contributions continue to come in slowly but steadily for the purchase of an ambu lance. The INTELLIGENCER has distributed a large number of envelopes in which contributions may be placed, and if handed to the carriers of the paper or sent to this office will be duly acknowledged. As only two hundred dollars was needed for this purpose we have not called upon citizens individually for money, and hope to secure the ninety-five dollars still needed by simply keeping this worthy cause before the public.

THE PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS. At the conclusion of this address President Harrison was introduced. The assemblage at this time numbered 25,000 or more and this vast audience rose on masse and repeatedly cheered the president as he came to the front of the platform. Mr. Harrison, when the applause ceased so he could be heard, spoke substantially as follows: "I have had illustrated to me here to-day one of the consistent graces and tenets of the Presbyterian church. Nothing, I assure you, short of a robust embodiment of the doctrine of the perseverence of the saints in the person of our distinguished brother, the chairman who has just introduced me, could have overcome the difficulties which seem to be in the way of those who attend celebrations. I have also had illustrated to me, I regret to say, another of the results of persistent Presbyterianism. I never at any time promised to make any address here to-day, (Laughter.) I never authorized any one to say so. There are many embarrassing things to be encountered in this life ; among them there is none more embarrassing than being associated on the platform or sitting at table with gentlemen with manuscripts in their pockets, when one is not similarly provided. Great laughter.) I thank you for your hospitable treatment of me and mine to-day and I must have much pleasure in being here for every impulse of honest pride which stirs your hearts moves mine. I am gald to stand here at the source of a great movement. I have seen the Mississippi river pouring out its enormous gulf and I have had the pleasure of standing at the source of the great Missouri, but what is the force and energy implied by these rushing streams when compared with the movement inaugurated here. (Applause.) I am glad to be here to help celebrate one of those great impulses springing from small beginning and yet how far reaching in its results and effects. I don't want unduly to exalt the Presbyterian church, and yet think historians who have been untouched by partisanship testify that it has been magnificently pressed on-ward. Let us take no backward steps. Let us continue to merit the favor of God and do his work until the world shall cease to move. Steadfastness is our characteristic, our enemies have called it obstinacy and there are occasions when even that trait and that characteristic have its services. Let us, my friends, continue to be steadfast to the faith, nurtured and strengthened on this sacred spot."

In concluding his address the president

" Let me kindly thank you for this most cordial and brotherly greeting. Let me wish that this day will close as auspiciously as it has opened. Let me hope that th scholarly addresses which you have heard read from manuscript (laughter) will convey new thoughts to your minds, and that you will convey away from here pleas-ant recollections of the day's celebration." At the close of the president's address there was a scene of wild excitement for five minutes, men and women cheering and waving handkerchiefs and in other demonstrating their approval ways of the chief executive's sentiments. After the singing of the hymn, "Nearor My God to Thee," the morning exercises closed at 1:30 o'clock, the presi dent and party were escorted to a special tent prepared for them where a bountiful lunch was spread. The tent was beauti fully decorated with flowers and in addition to the president's party all the prominent members of the presbytery were there.

About three-quarters of an hour was commend at the table : the lunch was entirely informal and at its conclusion the president, Mrs. Harrison and Rov. Mr.
