A GOOD CROWD AT THE FAIR. ALTHOUGH THE SAY IS CLOUDED.

A Fine Exhibit of Horses and Cattle Names of the Exhibitors-The Race Track In Good Condition.

Exhibitors were busy all of Monday in getting their exhibits in shape for the opening of the county fair to-day. A large number succeeded, but a few were delayed through the non-arrival of goods and other causes. At noon to-day all but a few were in place, and by this evening every ex-hibitor will be comfortably fixed. There

There are more exhibits than a year ago, Below will be found the entries in a number of the departments. Other departments will be described daily until all the im-portant exhibits of the fair have been noted.

The eastern section of the first floor of the main building is nearly all taken up with the exhibit of Reilly Bros. & Raub.

To the south end of the main building, To the south end of the main building, occupying nearly the whole east side, is the exhibit of Reilly Bros. & Raub. This firm recently had a severe fire, but it has not daunted them, for they have a most admirable display of stoves, heaters, ranges and furnaces. The celebrated Novelty hot air furnace, largely in use in city and county as a cellar heater, the Radiant double heater, the Harling parlor stove and the Valley Novelty cook stove are among the exhibits. The latter is in operation and a cook is engaged in constantly handing out biscuits, etc., to the crowd, which offers a happy means of illustrating the excellence of these goods.

In the vestibule in the centre of this building Knipe, the photographer, of N., 45 West King street, has some of his fine work on exhibition.

The west end of this building has been handsomely fitted up. One section is oecupied by Samuel Clarke, the grocer. He makes a specialty in his exhibit of XXXX flour, home made ketchup, Irish ginger ale, Marvin's crackers and Poppy oil soap. He will distribute several barrels of crackers and 5,000 pieces of soap. He also shows two samples of dress goods, one of silk and the second of plush, which will be given as prizes to ladies for getting up clubs for tea, coffee and baking powder, to be purchased from him. He also displays lamps, china and dinner sets, which will also be given as prizes.

Opposite to Mr. Clarke's apartment is the exhibit of A. C. Yates & Co., clothiers of Philadelphia, in charge of Mr. John W. Canary. This firm exhibits a large number of suits for children, youths and men and the exhibit is a fine one. A specialty is a suit which was awarded the first prize at the Wilmington fair. It is known as the fat man's suit. Mr. Canary distributes as souvenirs handsome cards and a cloth book, in which papers, cigars and matches can be carried. The latter is a handy arti-

Next the exhibit of Martin Bros. is reached. This firm shows a large variety of clothing, neckwear, gent's furnishing goods and shirts. This is one of the large exhibits of the fair and is much admired, Across the aisle is A. F. Parmalee & Co., of Birmingham, Alabama. Here Turkish rugs are shown, made with the patent machine manufactured by this firm. This firm also exhibit a patent camp-stool, weighing only 25 ounces and which can be folded up and put in an ordinary sized pocket.

Next is the exhibit of indurated fibre ware, by Flinn & Breneman. This ware is manufactured by Cordley & Hays, of New York, and is something new. It is a composition of wood fibre, and buckets, kettles, measures, rules, &c., are made, from it. Its advantage over ordinary ware from it. Its advantage over ordinary war is that it has no hoo; s and will not rust.

Tu the annex to the main building is the exhibit of A. W. Woodward, who represents Wm. G. Fischer, of Philadelphia. He has entered pianos made by Decker Bros. Haine. Bros., and Mason & Hamlin, the Maine. Bros., and Mason & Hamlin, the Crown organ and Bridgeport organ. Next to him is the Domestic sewing ma-chine apartment. L. H. Campbell, the agent, shows a number of very fine ma-chines.

The west end of the annex is occupied by W. H. Rexford & Co. This firm exhibit a number of pianos and organs. In the building directly west of the main building is the exhibit of Kirk Johnson & Co. This firm show Knabe, Conover, Bhoemacher and Lester pianos and Wilcox & White and Mason & Hamlin organs. This firm offer special bargains during fair DEATH FOLLOWS BRIEF ILLNESS OF THE PROMINENT LAWYER AND BANKER.

Sketch of His Eventful Career-Citizen of Lancaster Since 1855-He Attains High Rank in the Legal Profession.

Hon. Samuel H. Reynolds died at ar early hour this morning, at his residence No. 125 North Duke street. He was taken ill on Saturday with a severe spell of indi gestion. This was followed by several hemorrhages of the stomach the same day. On Sunday he had another hemorrhage and on Monday morning he was greatly improved. Later in the evening he changed for the worse, and died between 2 and 3 o'clock this morning.

The news of his death reached the streets at an early hour, and the community was shocked, as his illness, noted on Monday, was looked upon as a temporary matter from which he soon would recover.

His career was eventful, and some account of it is here presented.

count of it is here presented.

Mr. Reynolds was born at Brier Creek, Columbia county, Pa., on November 20, 1832, but soon after his birth his father, Thomas Reynolds, removed to Danville, Here Mr. Reynolds spent his early boyhood, and attended the ordinary schools of the day. He then went to Bellefonte and completed his preliminary education at the Presbyterian school of that town. He was early prepared for college and chose Dickinson as his alma-mater. His since distinguished classmate was Rev. Dr. O. H. Tiffany, and college mates, that walking encyclopedia of learning, Moneure D. Conway, the late H. G. Smith, of the INTELLIGENCER, and Geo. De B. Keim, president of the Reading Coal and Iron company. After graduation he took a literary course under Prof. Allen, of Philadelphia; then returned to Bellefonte and entered the law office of Hon. James T. Hale, one of the most distinguished lawyers of his day, and was admitted to practice in 1853, when but twenty-two years old. He was recommended to settle in St. Louis. Thither he went, but the prevalence of epidemics, a dislike for the town and climate, and influenced by the request of his father, he returned to Bellefonte. While in St. Louis he occupied the office of the late Senator Polk, who afterwards became a Confederate general. He next turned his steps to wards Lancaster, which then, as now, had HIS EARLY LIFE.

He came with let-ters of introduction to Thaddeus Stevens, Col. Reah Frazer, Thomas E. Franklin and Rev. Dr. Samuel Bowman. Being a Demo-crat, Mr. Reynolds was kindly received by Col. Frazer as a young, enthusiastic and eloquent political ally. It was on mo-tion of Col. Frazer that Mr. Reynolds was admitted to the bar.

admitted to the bar. When Mr. Reynolds came to Lancaste he was an utter stranger to the city and its people. He spent some time in looking about the town and was pleased with it. One of the gentlemen he conversed with it W. Brown, esq., who assured him that i was a grand place for a young lawyer to

HIS CAREER AS A LAWYER. He opened an office in the Mathiot build He opened an office in the Mathiot building, on South Queen street, where Dr. Bolenius now has his office. There Thaddens Stevens went one day to give him encouragement, and to assure him that if he found no other means of introduction to the public at the next term of court he would take him into the trial of an important case. When court time came the offer was renewed, but Mr. Reynolds had a case of his own. He defended a negro named Johnson, charged with arson. Judge Patterson was then district attorney. Mr. Reynolds' client was convicted, but he had an opportunity on the trial of the case to make a speech which at the time attracted great attention.

Mr. Reynolds soon became known throughout Lancaster county as an orator. throughout Lancaster county as an orator. He made his reputation as a speaker in this community at a meeting held at the old market house in the fall of 1855. Rival meetings were being held, the Whigs in an angle of the square and the Democrats in the old market house. The late Thomas Wiley was presiding at the Democratic meeting, and some of Mr. Reynolds' young friends called for him. General Stelman was speaking at the time. He stopped and requested Mr. Reynolds to step forward and address the meeting.

He came forward and recalled to the nemory of the chairman that he had met him once at Danville, when he was doing some work up there. But the chairman failed to catch the name and introduced the failed to catch the name and introduced the young and blushing orator as 'The Mountain Sprout'—a name that clung to him for some time. He very soon commanded not only the attention of his market house audience, but as his new and strange voice was heard over in the square, the crowd there was attracted and the Whig meeting broke up. year, in the Buchanan campaign, his services were in great demand. In that campaign he made 56 speeches.

Mr. Reynolds was frequently invited to deliver addresses before lyceums and literary audiences, and he made it an object to accept as many of these invitations as he could attend to, without neglecting his rapidly growing practice.

DECLINED A HIGH OFFICE. Mr. Reynolds never cared for political preferment. After the election of President Buchanan he was tendered the position of private secretary to the president. Mr. Reynolds considered the high honor tendered him, consulted with his friends and finally decided not to accept that office, in which conclusion President Buchanan told him be acted wisely.

told him he acted wisely.

He was the candidate of the Democratic party for Congress against Thaddeus Stevens in 1868, and his vote was larger than his party's strength. He was fre-quently a delegate to Democratic state and ational conventions. In 1873 he was elected a delegate-at-large to the constitutional convention, but re-signed from that body before it had fully completed its labors.

He was a member of the Lancaster city school board for nine years and was at all times an earnest advocate of the common school system. He was a member of the "Peace Convenat Harrisburg at the breaking out of In 1857 he was elected city solicitor, and In 1857 he was elected city solicitor, and he was for three years notary public by appointment of Governor Packer.

Mr. Reynolds has been a leader at the bar the past thirty years, and during that time he was retained in nearly all the im-portant cases tried. One of his early tri-umphs was the conviction of Hogentobler, of manslaughter. The prisoner was defended by David Paul Brown, one of the greatest criminal lawyers in the country. The case attracted great attention, and in his speech Mr. Brown reflected severely on Mr. Reynolds for taking blood-money. In his reply Mr. Reynolds defended his course as prosecutor, severely handled the counsel for the prisoner and secured a conviction for manslaughter. Mr. Brown used to make his boast that he never lost any murder cases and he was so chagrined with his defeat in this case that he never tried another case in Lancaster county.

IMPORTANT CASES HE TRIED.

Among the other important cases he tried were commonwealth vs. Leachy, murder; commonwealth vs. Miller, murder; commonwealth vs. Lizzie Culp, commonwealth vs. Lijzie Culp, commonwealth vs. Lijzie Culp, commonwealth vs. Elijah Pugh, false pretense; Hough & Hirsh vs. the Northern Central railway company, involving over $100,000 and the charter of the company; Kinney vs. Kinney; B.J.McGrann vs. Pittsburg & Lake Erie railroad; McCauley's will case and Lant's appeal. He made a great reputation in the United States court on the trial of the Minnich case for tampering with the United States mail. He was retained by Attorney General Brewster to assist, him in the prosecution of the celebrated "Star Route" cases, but the trial came to a sudden ending, through a plea of the statute of limitations. Mr. Reynolds retired from the active practice of the law on May 1st, while yet in the very prime of manhood, and he looked forward to many years of the enjoyment of the fruits of his labor, but He who directs willed otherwise.

He was one of the organizers of the People's National bank, and the president of that institution. Mr. Reynolds resided in the elegant marble front residence built by Benjamin C. Bachman, at No. 125 North Duke street. He was married in 1858, to a daughter of Col. Wm. B. Fordney, of this city. His children are Wm. Frederick, engaged in the banking business in Bellefonte, now in Europe; Mrs. Frank Harris, of Woonsocket, R. I.; Samuel H. Reynolds, Jr., Miss Mary and Miss Maud, at home.

TRADE IN TOBACCO.

stx Hundred Cases Sold by Local Pack ers-The New York Market Active. About six hundred cases of leaf tobacc was sold during the past week, of which Skiles & Frey sold half that number. Sampling is about being finished. In a very few cases of seed leaf there has been found some damaged tobacco, but no more than ordinary and much less than last than ordinary and much less than last year.

Dealers have been looking at the new crop and farmers in Manor township report that they have been offered 25, 10, 5 for their tobacco and refused that offer. They want 25 cents through. This tobacco is of very fine quality and farmers expect to have no trouble in disposing of it at the price they ask.

New York Tobacco Market.

New York Tobacco Market. From the Tobacco Leaf.

From the Tobacco Leaf.

The market was exceedingly lively this week, and our predictions have been verified in regard to the 1888 Onondaga tobacco being a very desirable article. Messrs. Jos. Lederman & Sons, of Maiden Lane, sold to a house of this city 2,000 cases of this tobacco this week. This is the largest transaction made in domestic goods for many years, and proves conclusively that large blocks of tobacco will find takers when blocks of tobacco will find takers when blocks of tobacco will find takers when the same contains merit. Wisconsin also sold heavily. This tobacco is excellent, and prices seem to be advancing for this variety. Eastern goods and Pennsylvania Havana seed were sold to quite an extent. Pennsylvania broad leaf has been sampled Pennsylvania broad lear has beyond a very extensively, and proves beyond a very extensively, and proves beyond a doubt that the cry about black rot is just doubt that the cry about time ago, "all what we said it was some time ago, "all nonsense," the portion damaged being ex-ceptionally small. Export demand was active. Summing up the total amount of tobacco sold this week makes it the banner week of the year.

Just as we go to press we hear of sales of 500 cases Onondaga and 300 Pennsylvania Hayana by Jos. Lederman & Sons to two

The market for Havana is fairly hun ming this week. Goods are being hurried forward from Havana to meet the growing demand. The sales since our last report foot up 2,100 bales. It has been many years since the market has been in such a healthy condition. Some of the larger holders are putting on brakes, for the reason that they do not see their way clear reason that they do not see their way clear to replenish stocks. The new crop has many defects, and the reports from Cuba many defects, and the reports from Cuba are far from flattering. The sales this week show a slight advance in prices.

The sales of Sumatra since our last report foot up about 400 bales at $1.27 to $2.15. The demand for choice medium colors is on the increase. The supply of straw colored leaf is so limited and the price so high that manufacturers are educating their customers to something darker. The new goods are selling as fast as they arrive, and there is little trouble in agreeing on a price if the tobacco smits.

Gans' Report. Sales of seed leaf tobacco reported by J S. Gans' Son, tobacco broker, No. 13 Water street, New York, for the week end ing September 9, 1889 : 1,588 cases 1888 state Havana, 11‡ to 13c.; 600 cases 1888 New England Havana, 15 to

The Philadelphia Market.

Cigar leaf is moving splendidly. Old sells readily, while new finds a ready market, with dealers anxious to examine market, with dealers anxious to examine stock as freely as offered on the market by reliable inspectors' samples. Prices ob-tained are satisfactory to all parties. The year 1889 is full of hopeful financial encour-agement for packers of cigar leaf. The end of the year will increase considerably the bank balances of packers and dealers. Already you can detect the smile of satis-faction playing around the countenances of holders. Glad of it; it is as it should be; would like to see it oftener.

ACCIDENTS AT THE NEW MARKET.

A Hod-Carrier Falls From a Ladder and Is Badly Injured. There were two accidents at the new Central market house yesterday, but the colored hod-carrier, who was working for colored hod-carrier, who was working for John R, Jeffries. Book was carrying bricks up the inside of the tower, which is being built in the southwestern corner of the building. He was coming down stairs when the accident occurred. When at the top of the lower ladder he missed his hand hold or slipped and defell to the foot of the ladder, a distance of about twenty feet. Fortunately he did not strike upon the ground, which was covered with bricks, but landed on a board platform. He was picked up and taken to his home at No. 432 North street. Dr. Campbell, of South Queen street, attended him. Upon examination he found that Book had suffered a severe concussion of the right side from the lower ribs down. The right arm and hip are also very badly bruised and he had slight internal injuries, but no bones were broken and nothing serious is apprehended. In falling Book struck against Isaish Smith, another hod-carrier, cutting and bruising him somewhat about the head.

ATGLEN, Pa., Sept. 10.—John K. Malone, one of Atglen's most respected business men and a good citizen, died last night. He had been ill for some time and confined to his bed for six weeks, his death finally rehis bed for six weeks, his death finally resulting from paralysis of the brain.

Mr. Malone occupied a place in the affections of the people, among whom he was well known, which few men in the same station of life are permitted to fill. Mr. Malone came to Atglen originally from Bucks county, and was of good old Quaker stock. He came here a mere boy in 1839 with his young wife, established a home and reared a family.

He engaged in the general mercantile business, and built up a trade which has benefitted him 40 years. He dealt extensively in grain, lumber and coal, and in addition to his many patrons throughout customers in Colerain, limber and coal, and in addition to his many patrons throughout Chester county had a great manyfriends and customers in Colerain, Bart and Sadsbury townships, Lancaster county. He was a man of marked probity of character, of quiet, unruffled demeanor, and while he was not prominent in public affairs by reason of his testural proclassic he took interest in all prominent in public affairs by reason of his natural modesty he took interest in all matters for the public's welfare. He has one brother and one sister who survive him: Watson Malone, of Taylorsville, Bucks county, and who is head of the extensive lumber firm of Watson Malone & Son, Laurel street wharf, Philadelphia, and Mrs. Mary Trump, of Philadelphia, His brothers, Dr. Benj, Malone and Seneca Malone, of Philadelphia, were prominent men in their day.

New York, Sept. 10.—Drs. Wynkoop, Scudder and Lockwood held an informaconsultation this morning with regard to the condition of Mr. S. S. Cox. The result was that they found their patient in a lower condition than yesterday. Meanwhile the physicians say that there is no reason why Mr. Cox should grow any worse during the day, unless indeed there is a return of the attack of heart failure, which the phys-icians do not anticipate. That Mr. Cox's condition is a precarious one is established by the fact that it has been determined that at no time during the day will he be out a physician at his bedside.

Dr. Wynkoop left Mr. Coxe's real shortly before two o'clock and anno that the patient was slowly sinking. This, he said, was the opinion of Dr. Metcalf an I himself.
