JOHN LOCKARD DIES.

AN AGED AND WELL-KNOWN RESIDENT OF COLUMBIA PASSES AWAY.

The Funeral to be Held on Friday—A One-Eyed York County Robber Escapes Arrest—Henry Diggs Appeals.

COLUMBIA, Sept. 24.—John Lockard, an old and well known resident of this place died this morning between 4 and 5 o'clock, at his home on North Third street, in the 75th year of his age. He had been troubled with gravel for about a year and was confined to his bed since Saturday last. Mr. Lockard was born in Columbia and has always lived here. He was employed in quarrying stone for the late Col. James Meyers, at Chickies, but has lived retired for a number of years. His brothers and sisters are Wm. H. and Samuel Lockard, Mrs. Joseph H. Black, of Columbia, and Mrs. Wm. Dickey, of Clearfield county. The surviving children are Mrs. Elizabeth Davis, Mrs. Mary Musser, Mrs. Thomas Hinkle, Charles, John, Bayard and Jennie Lockard. He was a staunch Republican voting for Harrison in 1840 and the Republican ticket in 1888. The funeral will be held on Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

The man was prevented from committing the crime by the appearance of another party. He then passed through Wrightsville and entered the bridge. Word was sent to Squire Evans to have the man arrested. Officer Wittick was out of town, and two men were detailed to make the arrest. They went up Front Street and caught a man with one eye, wearing a blue shirt. The men at the bridge said he was the man, but the Wrightsville constable secured the man's release by saying that he was not the man. By a peculiar circumstance the man wore a blue shirt and was minus an eye.

A STRANGE STORY.

Alleged Intimidation of a Young Man, Who Is Forced to Marry.

There has been considerable talk in West Point, Va., for some days about a very peculiar case. The indictment on Monday of Mr. Walter Ball and his son by the grand jury of King William county brings the whole matter before the public. It is alleged that last Wednesday morning Mr. Ball and his son came over from their home in New Kent county, and as soon as they reached town went to the room of Mr. B. T. Barham, who is also from New Kent; that the men entered Barham's room with drawn pistols; that Barham was still in bed; that the Balls told Barham that he must go with them and warned him that they would shoot him if he offered resistance; that they told him that he should marry Miss Ball, the daughter of Mr. Ball. This is alleged to have happened about 6 o'clock. Report says that Barham offered no resistance and did not remonstrate with them; that he accompanied them down to the train, and one guarded him while the other got tickets; that the party left on the 8 o'clock train without any one having any idea that Barham was under arrest; that the party proceeded to Washington, being joined in Richmond, some say, by the young lady. Upon reaching Washington the couple were married. It is said that Barham spoke not a word in answer to the questions put by the minister, and that he did not speak after the ceremony was over to the woman, and that he had been forced to marry. Barham returned to New Kent and reported the case to his father and then returned to West Point. Saturday Constable Spencer went over to New Kent with warrants for the Balls. He succeeded in bringing the father back. Mr. Ball appeared before the magistrate's court and was bound over to keep the peace for six months in the sum of $200 and to appear Thursday. Monday both of the Balls were indicted. There is a great deal of talk about the case, and it is hard to gather the truth. It is said that Barham promised to marry Miss Ball last spring, and then again in July, and that the marriage was postponed indefinitely. Miss Ball finally told her father all that had happened. Her father and brother started at once to find Barham. Mr. Ball and Mr. Barham's father live near each other and have long been very intimate friends. Young Barham is favorably known there, and is said to have been engaged to a young lady of West Point.

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE.

A Young Man Takes a Dose of Laudanum, But Fails to Kill Himself.

Harry Staley, a young man who resides on South Mulberry street with his father, attempted to leave this world of care by the laudanum route this morning. He called at the barber shop of Fred Lutz, on King street, and bade that gentleman good-bye. He said, "This is the last time you will see me alive," and quickly took his departure Lutz thought that it was merely an idle threat, but after awhile he found out differently. Staley went home and the only person there was his father. He first went down in the yard and then to the house. His father saw him place a bottle to his lips and after drinking its contents threw it on the floor as though he was very angry. He then went up stairs and to his room. Soon afterwards his mother and sister came home and the latter picked up the bottle. She smelled it and found it had contained laudanum. She at once sent for Dr. Overfield, who came and applied the usual remedies to the young man, who was soon out of danger. There is no doubt that Staley wanted to get away with himself, and the only reason given for it is that he had been drinking too much of late.

County Commissioners to Meet.

The state convention of county commissioners opens in Allentown this afternoon. Nearly every county in the state will be represented either by its commissioners, solicitors or clerks, all of whom are entitled to membership. The visitors will be welcomed by Major M. L. Kauffman, in behalf of the city, and J. L. Schaadt, for the commissioners. Giles D. Price, of Erie, president of the memorial committee, will make the response.

The object of the convention is to ascertain the operation and construction of the general laws relating to counties, to advocate legislation more uniform, to prevent waste and mismanagement in the administration of public funds, and generally to discuss the duties and obligations of public municipal officers. Among the business of the convention will be the appointment of a committee to confer with committees of the House and Senate of the state Legislature to frame an act which will equalize the taxation of the counties in the state. It is not likely that the convention will adjourn before Thursday noon.

Dick Redman Committed.

Dick Redman had a hearing before Alderman Deen this afternoon, on the charge of stealing oysters from Mettfett & Bro. The facts as published before were testified to, and Redman was committed in default of bail for trial at court.

Digging of the Shaft on the River's Bank for Wheatley Furnace—Swamped With a Mighty Stream.

From the Pittsburg Dispatch.

A most remarkable water shaft, the first ever made in the United States, is being sunk at the Lucy furnace, to cost about $10,000, under the superintendence of Samuel Harris, according to plans and specifications prepared by Manager Scott, of the furnace. During the progress of the work great difficulties had to be surmounted, owing to the shaft being sunk at the river's edge. In the sinking of the shaft three pumps were used constantly to keep out the water.

The work began on September 2, with 20 men employed. After working three weeks an immense cast iron cylinder, made at the Twenty-ninth street works, weighing 30 tons, was placed in the well. The cylinder is 18 feet in diameter and 1½ inches thick. After the cylinder was put in position by jacks, the ground beneath was removed, and it sank of its own weight. The cylinder acts in a double capacity, as a support to the ground and as a receiver of the spring water. The bottom section of the cylinder is perforated, but at present the holes are plugged. They will be opened as soon as the work is completed. At the top of the cylinder is a projection 18 inches in diameter, upon which is built a circular brick wall 13 feet deep and 15 feet in diameter, the wall being securely bolted.

After the cylinder was sunk 23 feet a sand bottom was touched. In one minute after the sand was reached, while the men were still in the well and the pumps running full, a gush of water spurted up that filled the shaft 15 feet deep. It was by the veriest hair's breadth that the men escaped drowning. Water impeded the work during its progress, but it was not until the 23 feet had been sunk that the great outpouring came. This has stopped the work until they can arrange for putting another pump in place. The three pumps that are working cannot begin to remove the water. In the well there is a centrifugal pump, with an engine and two Cameron pumps, but it will be necessary to attach another pump to remove the water so that the gravel can be taken out.

When the gravel has been cleared away it is the intention still further to sink the iron cylinder 5 feet, which will make it a depth of 28 feet from the surface of the ground, and 20 feet from the water's surface. This will allow the water to pass in the 200 holes punched into the sides and bottom of the cylinder without becoming muddy.

When the work has been completed, two large pipes will enter into the shaft and convey the water into a receiver, situated some 50 feet from the well. This will then be distributed into two iron tanks, temporarily placed, 25 feet high and 15 feet in diameter. From these two tanks the water will be drawn for the various furnace purposes. The four pumps that will be used are of the latest design. They will be able to lift 3,000,000 gallons every 12 hours.

The well is a great engineering feat, which will greatly facilitate the work of the furnace. The water will be clear. Carnegies are building, in connection with this well, an enormous tank, 50 feet high and 25 feet in width, which will be the largest in this section of the country. It will be made of iron, and will be circular in shape. After it has been erected the other two distributing tanks will be removed, and this will receive all the water from the receiver. The cost of this tank will approximate $20,000. Upwards of 1,000 tons of gravel had to be removed before the water was reached.

Samuel Harris, who had charge of the work, has been connected with some great excavating schemes. He sunk a shaft for Colonel Andrews, in the state of Durango, Mex., at a silver mine. He has also worked in France, Germany and Switzerland. While in the latter country he was superintending the Howenstein tunnel, when 63 men and seven horses were suffocated by the shaft taking fire.

Mobbed By Ragged Children.

Supt. Frankland, of the Chicago compulsory education department, has been trying to get an appropriation from some source to buy clothes and shoes for the children who have no raiment fit to attend school. He applied to the county board for aid, but that body replied, through the county agent, that the county had no authority to appropriate money for such a purpose. To make matters worse, Mr. Frankland's men gathered up 130 youngsters off the South Side streets and placed them last week in the Jones and Hale schools. They came to school so dirty and ragged that the principals were compelled to put them out or suffer the schools to be broken up.

Monday morning one of the officers of the department went up into the neighborhood of the Jones school to gather up the expelled children, when he was surrounded by a mob of them and driven from the scene. He had to make his exit in a lively manner to escape serious injury. He was pelted with stones, hit with sticks and knocked about in a shameful manner before he made his escape. Mr. Frankland still declares that he will raise the money somehow to fix up the worthy children who are out of the schools so that they can attend.

Mysterious Mountain Wells.

Near the town of Warrensville, eight miles from Williamsport, are four remarkable wells within a short distance of each other, on the summit of the mountain. Great rocks abound in the neighborhood, and the place is considered the wildest in Lycoming county. Two of the wells are ten feet in diameter, one twelve and one fifteen. They sink downwards to an unfathomable depth. How they came there nobody knows, but their existence is a menace to the safety of strange hunters unacquainted with the locality, inasmuch as they constitute dangerous pitfalls into which a careless sportsman might step without warning. Looking down into the wells one can see huge masses of rock jetting out from the sides here and there, and on these rocks are strewn in great profusion the skeletons and antlers of deer and the skeletons of other animals that have fallen over the brink.

These wells have at times been explored for a distance of several hundred feet by means of rope ladders let down from above, but the investigations gave no clue to the mystery of the formation. All efforts to ascertain their depth with plumblines have failed, as the declivity at all points is not perpendicular. Loose rocks and stones dropped by persons from the ladders can be heard echoing and splashing at vast distances below, with sounds that seem to come from thousands of feet under the surface of the ground.

The Author of "The Moonstone."

Wilkie Collins, whose death was noted in Monday's telegraphic news, was the son of William Collins, a famous English landscape painter. Young Collins read law but showed a strong leaning to literature, and on the death of his father devoted himself to the writing of a biography which met such emphatic approval that literature was at once chosen as his profession. His first novels were not remarkably successful, although they served to mark his ability as a constructor of deep plots. 'The Woman in White," published in 1860, made him famous and "The Moonstone," published in 1868 and usually considered his masterpiece, was universally read and translated into many languages. Other well read books of his were "The New Magdalen," "Basil," "No Name" and "The Law and the Lady."

Mr. Collins visited the United States in 1873, where he read to large audiences two of his best short stories, "The Frozen Deep" and "The Dream Woman." As a dramatist Mr. Collins met with a fair degree of success. "The Frozen Deep" was dramatized, and Charles Dickens lent the piece some celebrity by playing in it. Mr. Collins' activity with the pen was unabated up to his last illness. His work was in great demand for the Christmas numbers of periodicals, and the sums paid him probably exceeded the remuneration of any other living writer. He did not however leave a large estate.

A Pretty Woman In a Rage.

From the Cincinnati Times-Star.

In a Vine street cable car, the other day, were an old gentleman with an ear-trumpet and a very pretty young woman, accompanied by a little boy. She smiled at intervals on the boy, and showed her pretty teeth in a bewitching way. All at once the old man, in the way peculiar to so many deaf people who do not know how to modulate their voices, said in tones so loud as to be audible all over the car:

"I only paid $5 for my upper teeth. What did yours cost?"

To say that the pretty woman was mad is putting it mildly. She flounced around with a flush of anger blazing in her cheeks, and signalled the conductor to let her out at the next crossing.

Eighty Years Old.

On the 22d of this month George Aument, of Quarryville, was 80 years old, and in honor of the event, all his children—grand and great-grand—assembled at the old home and gave him a genuine surprise. There was a house full of them. A big feast and jolly time was had. Mr. Aument, for his age, is one of the most remarkable men of the county. He works every day and can do a full day's work. On the day before his birthday he cut off eighty shocks of corn and he says he did not work hard at it.

Arrested Twice.

On a warrant issued by Alderman Sherwood, Constable Wittick arrested Charles Rinehart, of Marietta, on Monday charged with obtaining goods under false pretense. The case was arranged and Wittick at once re-arrested Rinehart on a charge of larceny, and brought him to jail here.

Went Through a Car Window.

This morning a West End street car was passing by Reist's grocery store, to which one of Bitner's freight wagons was backed. The man with the wagon saw the car coming, and, thinking that it might strike his mules he quickly pulled them around. The result was that the tongue struck a car window and went crashing through it. There was no one hurt nor any further damage.

Men's Footwear!

In competing for a share of the city and rural trade, we base our claim always on exceptional value, and on this only. Never have anything taken from shoes that ought be in them, to the end that we may be able to quote prices below competitors, but rather strive to have them above the average in every point of goodness an intelligent and discriminating public look for. To-day we offer Men's Shoes—different lines—which we can strongly recommend. In them are leathers of superior tannage, and the making, trimming and finish bearing every evidence of thorough workmanship. And a very low price is on them for shoes so good in every respect.

Men's Ex. Quality Bals at $2.
Men's Ex. Quality Button Shoes at $2.
Men's Ex. Quality Congress at $2.

With pretty tips or plain toes, as may be preferred. We hear many instances of these makes giving a year's service—solid leather throughout; uppers strong and tough in fibre are almost indestructible. Heels, solid leather lifts. Shoes to see if you're looking for good ones. Just a word about hand-sewed Shoes, higher in price, way up to top notch in grade. Handsome, stylish, attractive, Shoes for the merchant, doctor, lawyer, or others wanting a high grade of shoemaking at a popular price. Vamps whole cut, practically seamless. Fine, fitting splendidly and greatly admired. For same make in Philadelphia the price is 25 per cent. greater; there the lustre of a maker or seller's name makes the difference in cost.
