RUDY. THE PATRICIDE. POLA REPORT OF JUSTICE STERRETT'S OPIN ION IN A REVIEW OF THE CASE.

sches the Conclusion That Rudy Was Pairly Tried and Justly Convicted Under the Evidence Produced.

Following is the full opinion of the su preme court, delivered by Justice Sterrett, refusing a new trial to John W. Rudy, convicted of murdering his father:

convicted of murdering his father:

The prisoner was tried and convicted of patricide of the first degree, the most helmous type of murder. The corpus deletiwas clearly proved. The evide new was quite sufficient to justify the jury in finding that the prisoner's father was brutally murdered. The position in which the deceased was found, the nature of the wounds that must have caused his almost instantaneous death, the character of the instrument (with which they appeared to have been infiliated and all surrounding circumstances, pointed to the commission of a wilful, deliberate and premeditated murder. Bu, of course, that was a question of fact for the jury, and to them it was fairly and impartially submitted.

The main question of fact was whether the prisoner was the guilty agent. There was no direct and positive evidence of his guilt. The evidence was entirely circumstantial but it was sufficient to desire the guilt. The evidence was entirely circum-stantial, but it was sufficient to justify the submission of the case to the jury; and that was done in a clear and comprehensive charge, embodying such instructions as were necessary for the guidance of the jury in properly considering and applying the evidence. Some exceptions to the rulings and charge of the court have been assigned for error.

The first specification is without merit

The practice of standing aside juvors had its origin in the construction given by the courts to the statute 33 Edward I, enacted in 1305, and like many other customs it descended to us from the mother country. In the higher grades of felony, at least, the practice has been so long customed and so uniformly sanctioned that it has acquired the force of positive law. Haines vs. Com. 100 Pa., 317. No good reason can be sugrested why it should not be adhered to in the case of jurors brought into court on a the case of jurors brought into court on a special venire as well as those on the regu lar panel.

There was no error in disallowing the questions recited in the 2d and 3d specifications. Under the circumstances the professed evidence was neither competent nor relevant.

The subjects of complaint in the 4th to The subjects of complaint in the 4th to 9th specifications inclusive are instructions on the subject of alibi. The sentence which constitutes the fourth specification is improperly severed from its connection with the next succeeding sentence. When read together, as they appear in the charge, they are as follows: "The setting up of an alibi by the prisoner does not relieve the commonwealth from furnishing, as it has done here, full proof of the commission of the offense or crime charged, nor does his setting up an alibi as a defense. done here, full proof of the commission of the offense or crime charged, nor does his setting up an ailibi as a defense change the burden of proof cast upon the commonwealth by his plea of not guilty, or waive his right to demand from the commonwealth, before he can be c avicted full and complete proof of his guilt, beyond a reasonable doubt." The first sentence relates to the necessity of proving the corpus delecti. The second to the necessity for full and complete proof of guilty participation in the felony. There is no error in either, and when read together, as they were to the jury, the idea intended to be conveyed is perfectly clear, and must have been so to the minds of the jury.

What was said by the learned president of the oyer and terminer, in relation to the defense of alibi, constitutes a full, clear and accurate statement of the law on that sub-defense of alibi, constitutes a full, clear and accurate statement of the law on that subject. The burden of proving it was clearly on the prisoner. If he failed to do so to the satisfaction of the jury, the alleged alibi, as a substantial defense, was valueless; but that did not deprive him of the benefit of his evidence on that subject, so far as it, in connection with other testimony in the case, may have had a tendency to create a reasonable doubt to his guilt. mony in the case, may have had a tendency to create a reasonable doubt to his guilt. Immediately after instructing the jury that an alibi " is valueless as a complete defense" unless it is proved " to the satisfaction of the jury " the learned judge said: " But an alibi is as much a traverse of the crime charged, however, as any other defense, and proof tending to establish it, though not clear, may with other facts of the case raise a reasonable doubt of the the case raise a reasonable doubt of the guilt of the accused, and therefore it must not be excluded from the cause and the in Myers vs. commonwealth, 83d Pa., 141, cited by the prisoner's counsel, the court below had instructed the jury that they must be satisfied beyond a reasonable don's," etc. This court, commenting on that part of the charge, said: "This statement is too stringent and throws the prisoner upon a degree of proof beyond the legal measure of his defense. That measure is simply proof of which is satisfactory, such as follows fairly from a preponderance of the evidence. It need not be beyond doubt. Where the evidence raises a balancing question, and the mind is brought to determine its preponderance, there may be a doubt still existing in the mind, yet the actual weight may be with the person, and this proof should be considered satisfactory. Other authorities to the same effect might be cited, but it is unnecessary.

All the evidence, including the hearing on the question of alibi, was fully and carefully submitted to the jury with special instructions, that if, from the evidence in the case, they had a reasonable doubt of the prisoner's guilt, their verdict should be not written.

prisoner's guilt, their verdict should be not guilty.

If there was any error in the trial of the cause it was in the finding of the jury that the prisoner was the guilty agent. The court below, who heard the test mony and saw the witnesses, was satisfied with the finding of the jury. There is nothing on the record to justify us in setting aside the verdict.

Neither of the specifications of error is sustained.

Judgment affirmed, and it is ordered that the record be remitted to the court of oyer and terminer of Lancaster county for the purpose of execution.

DIED IN COLUMBUS, OHIO.

David Torbet, a Carpenter Well-Known In Columbia-Funeral of Wm. Humble. Columbia, Oct. 14.—On Friday last a telegram was received from Columbus, Ohio, stating that David Torbet, a resident of town, was critically ill at that place. On of town, was critically ill at that place. Cn Sunday at 12 o'clock word was received that he was dead. Torbet was a wellknown resident of this place, where he lived for many years. He was a carpenter by trade and was employed in lumber yards for a long time. The last place of employment was at the Columbia flint mill. He went to Columbus on July 20th, of this year, where he has children living.
He was 60 years, and his wife, Mrs. Lizzie F. Torbet, living in town, survives. The remains will be buried at Columbus, Ohio.
The funeral of William Humble took place on Sunday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, from his home on Walnut street, and was very largely attended. The services were conducted by Rev. Willis S. Himman, of the Second street Lutheran church. The services were attended by Company C. 25 men, the employes of the P. E. E. freight and transfer station, and about ninety of his associates who marched in a body. The floral tributes were a "keystone" from company C: "anchor" from transfer employes; and "pillow and anchor" from associates, The pall-bearers were: Corporals H. C. Lichty, A. B. Fox, H. F. Lockard and J. T. Süngson, of the company. The coffin was covered by the company flag, and a firing squad of 16 men, in charge of Sergeant Aherne, fired three volleys over his grave.

On Saturday night about 6 o'clock a disgraceful street fight look place on Locust street above Third, creating great excitement. The principals were Edward Hamaker, John Caswell, Theodore Law and Henry Smith, and the disturbance started in the gallery of the opera house where some hard names were passed between the parties. At the close of the first act the men went to the street where the disturbance was renewed in front of Yeager's batcher shop. One of the men was forced into the shop and the principals separated.
Chief Burgess Koch has secured the names of the men and they will be arrested.
Several men who aided and abetted the principals will also be given a hearing.
