For Sleeplessness.

In the Journal of the American Medical sociation, Dr. Eggleston writed that nost people troubled with insomnia are yapeptic, and he has found it easy to treat structed to est before going to bod, having put aside work entirely at least an hour before. If they are not hungry, they should simply be instructed to eat; and if they are hungry, they should eat whatever they want. A glass of milk and a biscuit is sometimes all that can be taken at first, or a mashed potato buttered. In a short time the night appetite will grow, and the appetite will then need no particular directions. If possible the night meal should be taken in another room than the algebring apartment, and for men in the should be taken in another room than the sleeping apartment, and for men in the city it will be found advantageous to go out to a restaurant. The idea of going out for something to eat, and having to wait a short time for it, will excite the appetite. Before eating, however, a bath should be taken, prefer-ably cool, which should be given with a sponge or stiff brosh, and the body thorsponge or stiff brosh, and the body thor-oughly rubbed off with a coarse towel after-ward. The bath need not be more than rive minutes in duration. After the bathing and rubbing, or after eating, a moderate amount of exercise should be taken. For this a few minutes with Indian c'ubs or domb-bells is sufficient. Further than this, the patient should go to bed at the same hour every night, and rise at the same hour every morning. There is a popular superstition that grown people should not eat immediately before going to sleep; that it will give them indigestion or nightmase, or both. Dr. Eggleston cannot see why adults should be so very different in this respect from babies. c'ubs or domb-bells is sufficient. Further

ANOTHER NICE GATHERING.

A Masquerade Carnival, a Fight And Other Attractions for One Price. At the Mænnerchor hall last night a party young men gave what they called a masquerade carnival." There was a large crowd of people present and four-fifths of the females were girls not yet out of their teens. The majority of their escorts were boys. There were costumes of all kinds and boys. There were costumes of all kinds and while some were very pretty others were very queer. A large number of the young men in attendance were of the class that has given the King street rink such an unsavory reputation and many were full of rum. For a time it was feared by many that the night might pass away without a fight of any kind, but they concluded that such a thing would never do. Finally the opportunity came. A red-headed man from Columbia, who had few friends, was attacked at the water closet in the yard, and in a few minutes he was terribly beaten about the head, which presented a frightful appearance. The men who slugged him are the gang from Faegley-ville, of which Dick Redman is the principal member.

The march, which is usually called "grand," came off at 12 o'clock and all the youngsters and others participated in it.

Resigning from the Baltimore club, he sought a vindication by reapplying for membership, but was black-balled. He then left Baltimore.

The Refined Torture Indulged in by Three Cruel Chinamen.

A sample of the fiendish ingenuity to which the Chinese can resort to secure a confession was given on Sunday in New York. Lee Hing is employed in a laundry which is controlled by Lee Lang. On Saturday Laundryman Lee Lang went to visit some friends, leaving the laundry in charge of Lee Hing. When Lee Lang appeared in the Chinese quarter three of his countrymen concluded that then was their chance to rob the laundry.

Lee Ging, who was one of these fellows, was acquainted with Lee Hing. Lee Hing recrived them cordially and treated them to small cups of delicate flavored tea and American cigarettes. Lee Ging asked him if he had no Chinese cigarettes. Lee Hing answered that he had some in the rear room, and rose to get them.

As soon as his back was turned, the three guests sprang upon him and presented daggers. They bound his feet with the rope, tied his arms behind his back, then bent his hands and feet so that they met and tied them together, after which they uncoiled his cue and tied it to the middle of his back, so that his head was bent back to his shoulders. The flends asked their captive to reveal the hiding place of his employer's money. He refused to tell, and then they gagged him and tickled his nose and ears and lips and feet with pieces of tissue paper. This was agonizing torture. They broke open a trunk and [secured $160 in cash and a gold brooch.

The New Era's Originality. From the Reading Times,

The Lancaster New Era publishes, in its issue of Saturday last, a poem entitled "Measuring the Baby," which it prefaces with the words, "Specially written for the New Erd." This is evidently a gross imposition upon our cotemporary, as that poem, according to our recollection, appeared originally in the columns of the law York Letter some sixteen or seven. York Ledger some sixteen or seventeen years ago. It is from the pen of Emma Alice Browne, a former resident of Reading, who began her literary work, which has since become quite well known, in the columns of the Berks and Schuylkill.

Misses' Shoes

In Misses' Shoes we've every conceivable shape known to the trade; there's nothing that may be called for that we cannot supply—the finest, medium grades, or the commonest that's worth your buying. Among the many kinds here to tell of, the spring-heel shapes have precedence to-day. We have them in a variety of makes, and in leathers equally as diversified. The widths of the finer grades run from A to E, and the lowest, D and E. It's an odd shaped foot we cannot fit closely, neatly and comfortably. An excellent shaped and well-made shoe to try is one that sells at $1.25; solid leather throughout—soles, counters and heels; prettily soles, counters and heels; prettily trimmed and finished. The same grade is said to cost more money everywhere
