TREASURY REFORM.

WHY IT ENGULD BE DEMANDED BY CITIZENS REGARDLESS OF PARTY.

the Law and Weste of Public Funds Under the Present Administration.

The INVELLIGEMOUR from time to time has drawn public notice to mismanagement in the state treasury, but the following letter from ex-Senator H. J. Humes plainly shows the necessity for a reformation:

Edmund A. Bigier was pledged by the state convention, and has given his word that he will faithfully execute the provisions of the act of June 6, 1883. Henry K. Bover has given no such pledge and his parly, now in power, is flagrantly violating that law, both in spirit and letter by giving "the state treasury ring banks" the interest on public funds.

After the passage of the act of June 6, 1883, Governor Pattison was obliged to recort to the courts by mandamus to compel the commissioners of the sinking fund to obey the law. The law was treated as a smilling till 1854. But let us hold Gov. Pattisor responsible for its execution for three years and five months, and compare that term with the one year and eleven months of Gov. Beaver's administration as appears by the state treasurer's sworn reject.

From the passage of the law of June 6, 1883, to December 31, 1886, Gov. Pattison compelled the investment of $4.500,000 U.
S. bonds costing $6,30',8 7. The bonds would have caused by rebruary 1, 1892, when the first state bonds fall due, $1,238,745 interest. He also compelled the purchase of $1,901,500 state bonds costing $2,236,642, saving in interest by February 1, 1892, $619,117, or a total saving of $1,847,8 2 by February 1, 1892, when the first state bonds fall due. The total investment 1 y Gov. Pattison in state and U. S. bonds was $7,542,479.

Gov. Pattison in state and U. S. bonds was $7,542,479.

In one year and eleven months Gov. Beaver invested in no U. S. bonds and only $2,067,650 state bonds, costing $2,211 - 308, thus saving for the state by February 1, 1892, $400,002. But he sold U. S. bonds purchased by Gov. Pattison in December, 1887, and January, 1888, $1,000,000, thus losing for the state by February, 1892, $165,333 in interest. This loss, when deducted from Beaver's gains, leaves a total net gain for Beaver for one year and eleven months of $295,296. That Beaver could have done much better for the state had he not feared the state trasarry ring more than he loved the people, is clearly proved. When Gov. Pattison's term expired, there was eash in the sinking fund—$55,923. By July 31, 1889, Governor Beaver, by refusing to invest in U. S. bonds and in state bonds, to a limited extent, had increased the sinking fund money to $2,716,000. Had Gov. Beaver compelled the investment of this money in state bonds, he would have saved for the people at least $220,000 more. But let the people remember this $2,716,000 is loaned to the "state treusury ring banks" under the guise of a depost, and by such banks loaned to the people, thus enabling such banks to make at least $700,000 out of the people's money. people, thus enabling such banks to make at least $700,000 out of the people's money.

This is the difference between Gov. Pat-tison, who served the people for three years and five months, and Gov. Beaver who served the bosses for one year and eleven months. Let the people vote for Bigler and serve themselves, or vote for Boyer and make money for the state treasury ring.

New York Tobacco Market.
From the U. S. Tobacco Journal.

The customary October rush in the market seems doomed to disappointment this year. Business moves along in an even tenor on a small scale. The manufacturers are evidently trying to freeze out the market, but the market is holding firmly to its prices without whimpering. It's a most exciting game of bluff which even the too subservient brokers cannot accelerate to a break. The liveliest transactions during the week took place in Little Dutch, which is jumping up in price beyond any expectation.

Sumatra is moving on likewise at a leisurely rate. Manufacturers are eager enough to take the pick of light colors out of the whole lots, but the importers have made up their minds to sell as they bought, i. e., the good with the indifferent, and the light with the dark colors. Hence the armistice between buyers and sellers.

The Havana leaf alone in having its own way. Buyers in this field have to acknowledge the failure of the new Vuelita, and are therefore prepared to pay a big premium for old Vueltas, the stock of which is, anyhow, but a limited one in the market. And as for Remedics, the price paid for the new ones in Cuba will not warrant any bear speculation in this market. Business the past week was brisk in Havana leaf, nearly 2,000 bales being disposed of.

brisk in Havana leaf, nearly 2,000 bales being disposed of.

In summing up the market for the past week it can only be said it was dull. No large transactions have been made, but it can be safely stated that before long all the old goods on hand will be lifted from our market.

J. W. McCleary, of Pittsburg, who has attended six sessions of the state council of the Jr. O. U. A. M., and was grand marshal of the Washington Birthday parade was asked the reasons assigned by the National Council for asking for the change of name. In substance he said:

"My candid opinion is that the change of name is wanted for the benefit of a few Eastern people, and not because the present name is not good enough, or that the order has not prospered under it. The truth of this matter is that the National Council does not want the subordinate councils to gain any power, and if the people in the East can bring about the change they will draw the lines still a little closer than they are now. Several of the councils now have charters from the courts. The National Council doesn't like that, and has tried to prevent it.

now have charters from the courts. The National Council doesn't like that, and has tried to prevent it.

"The great general objection to the change is the cost it would necessitate. There is not a council in the order that would pull through the change with less than $50 expense, and there are some councils that would be nearly $1,000 worse off by the change. Rituals, books, badges, seals, constitutions and general laws, charters and everything bearing the present name would have to be changed to conform with the name. Councils that had court or state charters, that owned property or held bonds and mortgages, and many of them do, would need to go through certain legal proceedings to set themselves right. Nearly all of the work that would need to be done would go to a few men in Philadelphia. Out of the $90,000 or $100,000 that it would cost to change the name, 90 per cent. of the amount would go into a few hands.

"It is argued that the present name is a misnomer and a hindrance to the furthering of the order in the West. People think we are a labor organization. There was a time when the order was unknown in time when the order was unknown in Pennsylvania. In 1865 there were but nine councils. To-day there are nearly 400, with councils. To-day there are nearly 400, with an aggregate membership of more than 50,000. What organizers have done in Pennsylvania can be done in the West.

"A little more work among the people and not quite so much talk in the councils, where none but members of the order can hear, would be a benefit to the order.

"A change of name will not add to the interest in the order. And the name 'American Legion,' as proposed, is even worse than the present one, so far as implying the objects of the order is concerned. The National Council is anxious for the change, and if defeated this time, which they surely will be, will no doubt make another effort in a few years."

A LARGE CARP.

One of the largest fish that has yet been taken out of the Conestoga was caught yes-terday by David Harsh, between Binkley's terday by David Harsh, between Binkley's bridge and the bridge at Eden. Harsh was fishing with a dip net, having a handle about ten feet long and when the big fish struck it he thought he had a turtle or a sturgeon. He succeeded in landing his catch, however, and found it to be a carp of tremendous size. He took it home and had it weighed. It tipped the scales at exactly nine pounds, was 25 inches in length and 18 inches around. It is a large shad that weighs six pounds, but they are nowhere with this carp. The fish was brought to Lancaster this morning by Auctioneer John Rebman, who showed it to a great number of people at the Northern market, nine-tenths of whom could scarcely believe that fish so long could be found in the creek. At the request of Mr. Harsh, Mr. Rebman boxed the fish up and sent it to a friend of the former at Lewistown.

DEATH OF HARRY REITZEL

CHAMBERSBURG ON MONDAY.

In Mistake, But Soon Discovers It.

Harry L. Reitzel, aged 45, died in Chambersburg on Monday, after an lithess of three years. He had been in lith-health from diabetes since the war, in which he had participated. He was born in Mt. Joy township, this county, and resided a Chambersburg for thirty-five years. Before his severe illness he was engaged in broom-making. He is survived by his wife, Annie Reitzel, and six children: William, who resides in Nebraska: John, whose home is in Ohio; Mrs. John Upperman, of Steelton: Montgomery, of Green township, and Albertus and Naomi, of Chambersburg. His remains will be buried in the Mennonite graveyard, near Upper Strasburg, Wednesday morning.

Mr. Reitzel had been seriously ill and confined to his bed the past three weeks. Recently he had been taking, by prescription of his physician, Clements' solution, a preparation containing a large percentage of arsenic, and a sleeping potion. The arsenical preparation was administered for the diabetes in doses of three drops, while of the sleeping potion he, each night, was given a tablespo mfal.

Friday Mr. Reitzel ate very heartily and in the evening complained of feeling worse in consequence. Mrs. Reitzel at his request went to another room to obtain the sleeping potion. By some means the bottles containing the two medicines had been transposed and she prepared a teaspoonful of Clements' solution for the relief of the sleeping potion. Finding of Lower Courts In Liquor Cases is Sustained.

Among the decisions rendered in the supreme court on Monday was the application of Obed H. Nordstrom for a mandamus to compel the judges of Jefferson county to issue to him a license to sell ilquor at wholesale. Chief Justice Paxson filed the opinion, and in refusing to grant the mandamus said: "Our attention has not been called to local law in force in Jefferson county in regard to the granting of wholesale licenses. It follows that the general law of 1867 is in force there and is the existing law referred to in the act of May 24, 1887.

"We do not think it necessary to discuss the act of 1867. It places wholesale and Cases Is Sustained.

"We do not think it necessary to discuss the act of 1867. It places wholesale and retail business upon the same plane, and confers upon the courts of quarter sessions the same discretion in granting or refusing a wholesale license as in the case of a retail one. This has been the practice for years. Even if we doubted the correctness of such construction we would be slow to disturb a principle which had received the universal approval of so large a number of jurists, but so far from doubting it the construction referred to was adhered to in Reed's ap peal.

"While it is a delicate matter for this court to criticize the act of a co-ordinate de-partment of the government, we must be permitted to say that in our judgment the law in regard to wholesale licenses contains some very serious defects. We need to re-fer to but one: the provision that a whole-sale dealer may sell by the quart. It seems a perversion of terms to call a person who sells by the quart a wholesale dealer. It is practically a retail traffic, and of the worst character, but the whole subject is carr-estly commended to the attention of the Legislature."

The case of S. P. Sweitzer, of Somerset county, convicted of selling liquor without estly commended to the attention of the Legislature."

The case of S. P. Sweitzer, of Somerset county, convicted of selling liquor without license, is of much interest to distillers. Sweitzer was engaged in the business of distilling whisky in Larimer township, Somerset county, and wasappraised as a distiller, and on May 1, 1883, lifted his license from the county treasurer by which he was authorized to distill whisky from May 1, 1888, until May 1, 1889. At this time there was a diversity of opinion as to the construction of the act of May 24, 1887.

Sweitzer was instructed by his counselthat he could go on and distill under the county treasurer's license, but that he could not sell away from the distillery and could not sell away from the distillery and could not sel away from the distillery and could not sel up a place elsewhere to sell, but could sell under the treasurer's license in the original packages in quantities not less than one gallon on the premises. He was returned in September for selling without a license and on trial was convicted and sentenced to pay a fine of $500 and to go to jail for three months.

Mr. Justice Sterrett, after reviewing the facts in the case, concluded by saying there is nothing in the records to justify a reversal of the finding of the lower court.

In the case of Joseph Sellers, of Morcer county, who was convicted of furnishing intoxicating liquors to minors, the court said: "The license in this case was accepted by Sellers, subject to such laws then in force, or which might thereafter be passed regulating the sale of liquor. In granting him a license the state bartered none of its rights to legislate as to him or any one else on the subject of intoxicating liquor."

The court found no error in the trial below and affirmed the judgment.

Bo far as the ceremony was concerned, nothing could have been happier or better managed. At the eleventh hour the entire Hatzfeldt family opened their arms and received the Huntington family with effusive warmth. The mother and sister of the prince journeyed across the continent to attend the wedding, and showered the bride with costly presents. Uncle Paul Hatzfeldt, the German ambasador at London, opened the spacious pariors of the German embasay and started the young couple off in life with one of the most gorgeous wedding breakfasts London has seen in many a long day, at which the guests all clinked their glasses German fashion and drank the health of the bride and groom. The wedding, though intended to be modest, because the bride's family is in mourning, was conducted by Bishop Patterson, with all the ritualistic pomp and ceremony of the most fashionable Catholic church in London. The walls of the little chapel where the ceremony was performed was almost hidden in a grove of palms, through which myriads of candicativinkled, while below bloomed beds of lilies and other flowers. The bride was married in a traveling dress of dark green velvet, trimmed with asble, and with a velvet toque to match, also trimmed with sable. It was a very modest and simple-looking gown, but, as a matter of fact, the Russian sable to trim it cost $3,000.

The bride was simply loaded down with gifts. The prince gave her a magnificent diamond and pearl bracelet, and his mother gave a diamond sels and of aliamond solitaire bracelet. Her mother gave a large diamond star and diamond solitaire presented gifts of diamonds, family also presented gifts of diamonds, family also presented gifts of diamonds, mrs. John Sherwood gave a handsome pearl pin. Lady Herbert contributed a Bible and rosary specials blessed by the pope. Whitelaw Reid sent a large loving cup of gold on a standard of ivory. The other gi never had an accident, should employ a physician on call in case of such a happening; strange that he should pass by hundreds of competent physicians and go seven miles to arrange with Dr. Cronin, and strangest of all that very soon thereafter a man should appear with his card and take the doctor way, presumably to his death. strangest of all that very soon thereafter a man should appear with his card and take the doctor away, presumably to his death. Mrs. Conklin then related how she identified Dinan's white horse. The crossexamination brought out the fact that, within a few days after the disappearance of Dr. Cronin, Police Captain Schasek had brought Dinan's white horse and the buggy for identification, and that she had falled to identify the animal. Mrs. Conklin accounted for this by saying the circumstances of weather and light and the angle at which she viewed the horse when brought by the captain were different from those under which she saw him when the msn called for Dr. Cronin and when the reporter presented the animal she particularly noticed a peculiar and unusual motion of the horse's knees.

Miss Sarah McNearly, who was in Dr. Cronin's reception room, described the afternoon, the occasion being "Parent Day," a new feature recently introduced into this school. Mr. C. J. Shulmyer, of Lancaster, was present and delivered a very interesting address. Miss Bertha Herring sang a solo entitled "Peace of Jerusalem." Mr. B. Frank Wentz and Miss Herring played a violin and organ duett. Mr. John A. Sheely, Harvey F. Smith, Miss Herring and Mr. Wentz sang a quartette entitled "Along the River of Time." The orchestra consisted of organ, Miss Wechter; violin, Mr. B. F. Wentz; cornet, Dr. E. H. Witmer; alto, Mr. Wallace Souders; trombone, Mr. Horace Murr. They rendered some very fine music. Everyone present seemed delighted with the exercises. Parent Day will be observed in the school the last Sabbath of every month. Miss Sarah McNearly, who was in Dr. Cronin's reception room, described the man as sppearing very nervous, and with a piercing disconcerting stare, which he fixed upon the witness. Her description accorded closely with that given by Mrs. Conklin.

Frank Shaulan gave evidence as to seeing Dr. Cronin drive off in the white horse rig.

The Man Shot at Mount Joy Likely to Recover.

Joseph Hoffman, the burglar who was shot and very badly injured by William Kuhna, of Mt. Joy, whose house he was trying to break into, is somewhat better to-day than he was when taken to the hospital. The physicians probed for the ball without success, and it yet remains in his body. The doctors are not willing to say that the man is out of danger, but they think his chances for recovery are now very good. Hoffman is a sullen fellow, and he refuses to talk much about the shooting. He still clings to the story that he first told as to how he was wounded. Hoffman is of the Catholic faith, but when he was spoken to on the subject yesterday morning, at which time his chances for recoverywere much silimm ar than they are now, he refused to have anythingh to do with a priest. Later in the day he weekened, however, and Rev. A. F. Kaul, of St. Anthony's church, visited him. The priest talked to him for a time, and this morning administers it to him the last rites of the church.

Hoffman complained of great pain under the shoulder, and it is believed that the builst is lodged there. Yesterday carbolic acid was placed in the wound, and the physicians did not think it prudent to irritate the wound to-day by probing for the ball. Hoffman is kept in an ironclad cell in the infirmary, because the officers of the hospital are responsible for his safe keeping until he recovers sufficiently to be taken to prison. week. In order to provide for the comfort of those who are admitted the home needs to be furnished from top to bottom. All kinds of household goods are needed, and anything in that line that may be contributed will be thankfully received by the managers. Mrs. Chas. A. Heiniteh, who has taken a great interest in the home, will furnish one room herself. Should anyone desire to do the same the room may be known herselfer by the name of the person. On Thursday the lady managers will be at the home at 10 o'clock in the forencon, when they will be ready to receive such articles as persons may contribute. As there are many floors to cover they are especially anxious to have carpets.

The managers of the home acknowledge the receipts of the following articles:

Two patchwork quilts from Miss Mary Ross, of Philadelphia, one made by an old lady over 80 years of age; through Miss Mary Hager, six wash towels and six dish cloths; Mr. Aldus Horr, a tin bread box; Miss Sarsh M. Wolff, pillowcase muslin; Mrs. Geo. M. Steinman, sheeting; Mre. J. Fred. Sener, absetting.

Mrs. Conkiin Tells How the Fearless Surgeon Hurried to His Death.

In the Crouin trial on Monday the livery stable man testified that Dinan's horse was covered with sweat when brought back. Mrs. Conklin, at whose house Dr. Cronin lived, said that on the evening of May 4th, a stranger, nervous and excited, called and inquired for Dr Cronin. He seemed very reluctant to enter, but finally did so when told the doctor was engaged with other patients. The stranger took a seat in the waiting room. When Dr. Cronin came out of his office the man said:

"Dr. Cronin, you are wanted to attend a man who has been hurt at O'Sullivan's ice office." The doctor made some remark and the man drew a card from his pocket and presented it to the doctor. Dr. Cronin took the card and said: "Oh, yes; what is the nature of the accident?" He said: "A man has been run over by a wagon." The doctor said: "I will be with you soon," or something to that effect. The man sat down again on the edge of a chair and the doctor turned, laying the card on the mantel plece. The man said O'Sullivan was out of fown, and left word that Dr. Cronin was to attend his men. Dr. Cronin ran to his private room and gathered together some bandages and cotton batting. He brought it out with his surgical case and a case of splints. Then, drawing on his coat as quickly as possible, he left, running out, carrying these things and the case in his arms. The two went hurriedly out of the house as fast as they could, and did not even shut the door. I heard them running down the stairs. She then went to a window overhooking the street and saw a buggy, with a white horse attached, standing before the door. Dr. Cronin and the man who called for him got into the buggy, which was then driven northward. The man seemed anxious to get away. He was of nedium height, with a small, soft hat, drawn down over his eyes, and a light or faded overcoat. Her description tailed very closely with that of the man who hired the white horse.

In the morning the card on the mantel was found to b cratic Candidates.

The Freiheits Bund, of Pittsburg, the name of the permanent organization evolved from the temporary one known as the anti-Prohibition association, held a large meeting in that city on Monday.

The organization is distinctively anti-prohibition, having for its object the exercise of political privileges collectively against candidates whose party position or individual views are antagonistic to their own. Delegates from forty-five societies discussed the merits of the political candidates, and decided that the strength of the association, 9,000 votes, be given to Bigler for state creasurer. John Hollwander and James H. Maher, two tramps, called at the house of Mark Shults, dairyman, on the Millersville turnpike, and asked for something to est. A meal was given to them and they left the place. They had a bottle of whisky with them and after getting very drunk they rethem and after getting very drunk they re-turned to Mr. Shultz's place. They be-haved very disorderly and when Mr. Shultz tried to eject them they turned upon and assaulted him. Policemen were sent for and Officers Gardner and Stumpf re-sponded. They arrested the tramps and brought them to town on a wagen hor-rowed from Mr. Bausman. The mayor this morning sent them to jail for twenty days.

The Chestnat Level Institute Proceedings on Saturday.

The fifth annual session of the Chestnut Level district institute met on Friday evening in the Presbyterian church at Chest. ut Level to hear the lecture by Mr. Bolton. The lecture was finely illustrated by means of the sciopticon, and was very instructive and pleasing. Had the evening been fair, there would have been a larger attendance. Those present were well repaid, and feel grateful to the institute for giving them an opportunity to hear so profitable a lecture.

On Saturday morning the institute met in Chestnut Level academy, and the following programme was rendered:

Morning—Devotional exercises, Rev. J. M. Galbreath; music; discussion, What devices can every teacher use to employ pupils in first and second grades? opened by Belle McStparran; music; paper, How can we place kuitable reading matter in the hands of our pupils? by Msud Patterson; music; discussion, What method would you use in teaching geography? by Prof. Foresman; music; address, Dr. E. O. Lyte; recitation, Emma Evans. Afternoon—Music; address, Dr. E. O. Lyte; recitation, Emma Evans. Afternoon—Music; address, Dr. E. O. Lyte; recitation, What support have the schools a right to expect from the directors? by D. L. Hartzler; recitation, Mary Brosius; music; discussion, Moral training in our schools, by Laura Hess; music; paper, How to teach pupils language lessons, by Alice Arnold.

Following were the officers: President, Miss Anna Brown; secretary, Miss Anna McComb; treasurer, Miss Della Webb; executive committee, Misses H. Mary God, Letitia Paxson and Clara Brown.

Prof. White, principal of the scademy, read an excellent paper on moral training. The discussions and papers were all of a high character and reflected credit upon those who presented or read them. The recitations were carefully prepared and effectively rendered. Prof. Lyte spoke on "Subjects not in the Text Books that may be taught in our Public Schools." Prof. Shaub spoke on "The Spirit of the Scholar."
