SIGNS OF MISFORTUNE. For a Harvard Student Stole Them and

Came to Grief.

A Harvard student, with his trouser legs daubed to the knees with mortar, stood in the dock of the municipal conrt in Boston on Friday. He was Edwin Mandell, of Milwaukee. He had been told by some joking classmates that he must steal a certain number of signs before he could become a member of a society which he desired to join. So last evening about 10:30 he began collecting signs. Constable C. G. Drew, heard a noise at the window, and saw a young fellow tugging ow, and saw a young fellow tugging at his sign. At Mr. Drew's yell the young fellow gave one great big yank for all be was worth and oil came the sign. Then be fled. He had a companion and they kept a first hold of the sign. The two boys were unacquainted with the locality boys were unacquainted with the locality and field up the square only to find to their terror the big sign. "Police Headquarters." They became panic-stricken and darted to the court house, becoming badly tangled among the barrels and bricks and mortar beds. They tried to double on Constable Drew and made a wild break for liberty through the mortar beds.

Drew and made a wild break for liberty through the mortar beds.

Mandell's companion got away with the stolen sign, but Mandell got stuck in the mortar and fell an easy prey. Under his overcoat appeared the damning evidences of his guilt in the shape of two pasteboard signs labelled respectively "Paint" and "We sell Commonwealth Ginger Ale." Judge Parmenter kindly let Mandell off with a fine of $5, and the beplastered youth made his way back to Cambridge.

Enten By an Alligator. Last Tuesday a negro boy named Tom Washington, of Camden county, Ga., was captured and eaten by an alligator. Wash-ington, in company with his father and another negro, want fishing on the day in another negro, went fishing on the day in question to Dennis' mill pond in South Camden. After supplying themselves with a half boat load of the finny tribe, the party headed their boat for the landing. Just before starting, however, Tom was ordered to change from the prow to the stern of the boat. In attempting to do this he fell overboard. Before he could regain the boat a mouster alligator arose to the surface and fastened his jaws about the boy's body. The boy began to shriek and ery most phifully and called to his father for help. Human assistance, however, could avail nothing, and the boy was carried beneath the waters. The two negroes then returned to waters. The two negroes then returned to the landing told the story over the commuthe landing told the story over the commu-nity and, securing a party of ten, put back to the fatal scene. The men were all armed, and after reaching the spot a little dog, brought along for the purpose, was thrown into the water as bait for the alligator. No sooner did the dog strike the water than the monster made an attack on it. At a given signal everybody fired upon the huge animal killing him instantly. The alliga-tor's body was then taken ashore and cut open. In its entrails human flesh and clothing were found.

Miserable Men.

From the Hartford Currant. An incident occurred on an afternoon train on the Consolidated road the other day that ought to have found it way into print before this. Among the passenger were three sweet and quiet Sisters of Charity were three sweet and quiet Sisters of Chariy of their characteristic dress. A drunkeu man, very drunk and annoying, drank from a big bottle that he carried, and finally stuck his disagreeable face repeatedly into the long bonnet of one of the sisters in the most insulting way. She was evidently much frightened. The conductor had al-ready been told of the man's conduct, but ready been told of the man's conduct, but did pething. The other passengers, in true passenger fashion, sat and looked on. No man stirred. Finally a woman, white as a sheet, and fell of sup-pressed indignation, got up from her seat and went to the resens. She grabbed the fellow's bettle, wrested it from his hands and flung it out of the window, and she took hold of him, and after a lively and unassisted struggle got him out of the seat, "I'm no Roman Catholic," she said excitedly, "but I can't att still and see a excitedly, "but I can't st Sister of Charity insulted."

A Little Boy Breaks Ills Leg. Samuel, a six-year-old son of Albert Martzall, who resides between Mechanics burg and Manheim, met with a serious accident on Friday afternoon. The little fellow followed his father, who went out to a field with a wagon. He stepped in a wegen rut, and, twisting his right leg, broke it near the hip. The boy has been quite unfortunate, as he has had both legs broken before. Dr. Shenk, of Rohrerstown, attended him for yesterday's injury.

California Trout in the Streams. Fish Commissioner Demuth has received several cans of California trout, which will be placed in two of the streams of the county. Some were sent this morning to Lititz to be placed in the springs there and the balance to the lower end of the county to be placed in the vicinity of the Unicorn. The law prevents fishing for these trout for a period of three years from the time they are placed in the streams.

DEAR SIRS-I had never used a Furnace in a private dwelling before last winter, but am now much pleased with the No. 40 Novelty, its work is perfect, and it is so easy to manage. Even when the mercury was below zero I had no trouble in keeping perfectly comfortable the 7 rooms and a hall in my house, which are 24x50 with a back bullding and 12 and 9 feet ceilings. The checkdraft is a great convenience and saves both attention and coal. Cold air from the cellar supplies eight registers, and not a trace of gas or dust can be detected. You can Respectfully, D. S.
