FACTS FOR GRAND JURORS.

JUBGE LIVINGSTON TELLS THEN THEIR DUTY IN PLAIN LANGUAGE.

The City Constables Warned Against Making False Returns-They Will Be Prosecuted For Perjury If They Do.

The November term of quarter seesions court was opened at 10 o'clock this morning, with Judge Livingston presiding.

There are on the list for trial 203 cases, of which 160 have been returned since the August sessions. There are 33 defendants in jail awaiting trial.

H. H. Bingaman, Clay, was made foreman of the grand inquest.

Judge Livingston instructed the jury as to a proper discharge of its duties and among other things said:

"We have noticed of late that grand juries are prone to ignore bills presented for the violations of certain laws, and that petit jurors have returned verdicts of not guilty in the face of the most clear and positive evidence of guilt of persons tried under the same law. Among them, the laws relating to houses of ill-fame, bawdy and disorderly houses, selling liquor on Sunday to minors without license, etc. This is highly improper. It shows a wanton, wilful disregard of a solemn oath, is a direct blow at the four tin head of law and tends directly to corrupt the pure flow of justice through its legitimate channels.

Where grand juries or petit juries—acting under the oaths administered to them in courts of justice refuse to be governed by the laws of the commonwealth and the undoubted evidence in the cause under examination before a grand jury, or being tried in court, before a petit jury and usurp the doubted evidence in the cause under examination before a grand jury, or being tried in court, before a petit jury and usurp the pardoning power where the person charged in the indictment being heard before a grand jury or being tried before a petit jury is shown to be guilty of violation of law, it is practically a pardon. Ignoring a bill or verdict of not guilty in violation of law engenders distrust and creates contempt for trial by jury, tramples the laws under foot and makes the grand jury ignoring a bill or a petit jury returning a verdict of sequittal under such circumstances as great violato's of the law and as clearly and justy deserving of punishment as is the guilty criminal they so unlawfully acquit. Let us have no such conduct on the part of this grand jury."

In speaking of trivial cases the court had this to say: "It is just as clearly the duty of the magistrate to commit for trial, as it is the sworn duty of the grand jury, in presenting all things truly, to return to the court trie bills against the lessor as presenting all things truly, to return to the court true bills against the lesser as against the greater. It is not for the mag-istrates in such cases to refuse to perform their duty, nor will the law, or your oath excuse you from the faithful performance of rs. You are not sworn to consider and ort how great or how trifling has been violation if you find the law has been violated, nor are you sworn to act as judges of the policy of the laws, the propriety of their enactment or the expediency of their enforcement. No such authority or power is delegated to you by any law of this commonwealth."

PLAIN TALK TO THE CITY CONSTABLES. PLAIN TALK TO THE CITY CONSTABLES.
When the city constables appeared before the court to make their returns Judge Livingston said that he wanted to warn them as to the effect of a false return. It is said there are disorderly and bawdy houses in some wards of this city, and that the liquor law is violated. If in the reports made to-day there are no persons returned for violations of the above laws and it is shown that the constable of any ward knew of such offeuses, he is liable to new of such offenses, he is liable to secution for perjury, and if a constable convicted of such offense he need expect mercy from the court."

The constables were given an opportu-ity until to-morrow to file their return if ley desired, but all said they were propared to make their return.

The reports as made show no violations of any of the laws referred to in the judge's remarks. The city of Lancaster was regleet of duty in having the streets in bad A nol pros was entered in the case of Com. vs. Walter Kieffer, embezzlement. It was stated that there could not be a conviction on the indictment as framed, and that the trouble between the defendant and the

A similar disposition was made of three indictments against the supervisors of Fulton township, charged with neglect of duty, the roads complained of having been repaired.

The first case called for trial was that against Jacob Warfel, charged with selling liquor on Sunday, to minors and without license. The defendant kept hotel at Shenk's Ferry, Conestoga township, but did not lift the license granted to him in April, 1887. The offenses above enumerated are alleged to have been committed in May. 1887, and were refurned by the con-May, 1887, and were returned by the con-stable of the township to the August ses-sions. The Grand Army at Church. George H.Thomas and Admiral Reynolds Posts, of the Grand Army of the Republic, attended services at the First Evangelical church, North Water street, Rev. F. P. Lehr pastor, on Sunday evening. The sermon was preached by Presiding Eider B. J. Smoyer, of Fredericksburg, Pa, and he took for his text Judges 7:9: "And it same to pass the same night that the Lord said to him, arise, and get thee down to the post, for I have delivered it into thy hands."

His theme was the spirit of the true soldier and that God is back of all armies. He referred to the formation of this govern-ment, due largely to the instrumentality of the soldier, and commended the soldier for brayely fighting for his country in time

POWDERLY ON READING STRIKE

Protection, Tariff Reform and Things Generally.

General Master Workman Powderly, who is now in Atlanta, Ge., attending the Knights of Labor assembly, when saked how he regarded the proposed federation of the Knights and Farmers' Alliance, said: "Very favorably. So far as I am concerned I am ready to give up my position and place myself as a private soldier under the flag of the united orders. I hope to see them shoulder to shoulder, as the brothers they are, in the great struggle. At this convention we shall appoint a committee to meet with the Alliance men in their convention at St. Louis, December 3, and prepare the way for a final union of the two orders."

Mr. Powderly grew eloquent upon the subject of the Reading railroad troubles. "That trouble," he said, "was a stock jobbing affair from beginning to end. Mr. Corbin has issued an order that no employe of the Reading shall join any organization except such as the management of that road shall pronounce as satisfactory.

"The papers one day announced my death and there was a strike the day after. Mr. Corbin and his party gave the order for that strike. The stock tumbled at once and the shrewd president bought it up."

It is alleged that the flagman did not go back far enough, and also that the engineer of the section was either asleep or careleas, and did not see the signal.

E. M. Lache, of Baltimore, rear brakeman on the first train, was almost instantly killed. Captain Haines, the conductor, saw the impending accident, and jumped from the caboose. He called to Lache, but the latter failed to hear him. Appello, the engineer of the second section, who also lives in Baltimore, was seriously hurt. The fireman was slightly injured. More than thirty cars were demolished, and the perishable cargo will be lost, as the road is blocked by the debris.

A fire, started by the overturning of the stove in the caboose, burnt several cars before it was extinguished. The locomotive of the second train is badly damaged. All Sunday trains on the Northern Central have been crossing at Wrightsville and continuing to Harrisburg over the Columbia division of the Pennsylvania railroad. An investigation into the causer of the accident will be held.

Mrs. Saylor thought the thief intended to shoot her husband and she ran from her house and threw herself between her husband and the thief. The would-be assassin and thief kept his revolver pointed at Mr. and Mrs. Saylor and said he did not want any more noise out of them. He directed his companion to keep on loading the wagon with iron while he kept the owners covered with his revolver. When the wagon was loaded the thieves jumped in and drove rapidly away.

It was too dark for Mr. Saylor to get a description of the thieves, and before he could stummon his neighbor they had too much start. They were strangers to him and when they left they drove towards Willow Street. The township constable is on the lookout for the thieves, but there is very little probability of them being arrested.

last encounter they boldly step forward to face other and more formidable antagonists. With ease and grace they have covered themselves with glory and Swarthmore lies trembling at their feet. Swarthmore has met her Waterloo and her scalp dangles from the belt of F. & M.

The crowd in attendance at the game at McGrann's park, Saturday afternoon numbered about 500 people, among whom were many of the leading citizens of Lancaster. Some of them were gray-haired men and they became so excited that they swung their hats in the air and cheered. Everybody enjoyed the game from the beginning to the close.

The contest from the start was much in Franklin and Marshall's favor. Though Swarthmore played with vim and earnestness that was noteworthy, yet they seemed unable to withstand the heavy rushing of their opponents. In the first half of the game Swarthmore played on, the defensive, making no advances that promised scoring, while Franklin and Marshall kept steadily adding score upon score until 22 points were cradited them. adding score upon score until 22 points were credited them.

In the second half Swarthmore became despense, wrangling and using every effort to evade defeat. They succeeded, in the beginning of this half, in scoring one touchdown, but their scoring ended here and they were made to face the inevitable.

The game was played as follows: (1st half, Capt. Irvine won the toss, Ketchum south goal. F. & M. by heavy rushing made decided gains, a minute Irvine scoring a touch-down. Swarthmore had the ball. Schell made a good kick and by quick and hard work they saved their first and only point. The touch-down was made by Ketcham. No goal. Neither side secred after this and the last point of the inning was replete with wrangling and devoid of brilliancy. The score was 22 to 4, in favor of Franklin and Marshall. The players were as follows:

F. & M.—Line, centre rush; Harold, right guard; Lobach, left guard; Krick, right tackle; Everett, left tackle; Stonebraker, right end; Griffith, left end; J. Apple, quarter-back; Nothstein and Gabriel, half-backs; Irvine (captain), full back.

The Catholic elergy and laity of the city of Baltimore in mass meeting assembled under the presidency of the diocesan head, keenly alive to the gigantic evils of intemperance in the use of intoxicating drinks, evils which menace the dearest interests of religion and thus imperil the well being and stability of the state and of society at the large; justice alarmed, moreover, at the and stability of the state and of society at large; justly alarmed, moreover, at the fearful havoe wrought in so many of their co-religionists by this deadly vice which thwarts the best efforts of the church in their behalf and renders fruitless her holiest influences, and casting about for a means which will if not at once and entirely cure at least greatly diminish the evil and thus have the way to a complete moral restorapave the way to a complete moral restora-tion, believe that they see this remedy in what is known as the high license move-

If they have up to the present time been backward in uniting in the well-meant efforts of so many of the most distinguished and upright of the lir fellow citizens in this holy cause, it has arisen certainly neither from ignorance of the magnitude of the danger, nor from a heartfelt interest in the work of averting it, but solely from the fear of compromising the sacred interests of truth by accepting positions which were sometimes found to be the concomitants of such movements. The high license move-ment affords them the opportunity so long desired, and they therefore hasten to range themselves alongside their friends and neighbors in this sacred battle of humanity Wherefore it is resolved as the sense of this meeting:

First, That high license is at present the only feasible and the only hopeful means of stemming the deluge of vices and crimes of which drunkenness is the frightful help and comforts of religion to make their hard lot endurable.

Thirdly, That not merely a high license will secure all the good aimed at by the movement, but that certain restrictions should be enacted as to the time and place of sale, and the character of those who may be recruited to carry on the trails. Thus be permitted to carry on the traffic. Thus, the number of saloons in any one radius should be limited by statute, they should should be limited by statute, they should not be suffered too near to churches or schools. The excellent Sunday law of our city upon this point should be rigidly enforced, and failure upon the part of the authorities to carry out the law should be summarily punished; the license to sell at all should be issued to none but persons of tried character who can be decended. of tried character who can be depended upon to use their privilege in the interest of sobriety and public order; and finally the violation of the law in any of these points should work either temporary or perpetual forfeiture of the license, according to the number of such violations.

Fourthly. That this assembly pledge themselves to do all in their power to secure this most desirable end and to work for it with tongue and pen until their efforts are crowned with success.

Lewis Cochran Cassidy, ex-attorney general of Pennsylvania, was born in New York city October 17, 1829. When he was but three months old his parents moved to Philadelphia where he has lived ever since. His father was a type founder, skillful, intelligent and highly respected, but he died in 1839, leaving a widow and one son. The lad was at first taught by his mother, and then entered the public schools graduating from the high school. In 1847 he commenced the study of law in the office of the famous Penjamin Harris Brewster, and was admitted to practice in 1850, though not of age. In 1851 he was elected a member of assembly, and was appointed a member of the judiciary committee and of the committee of escheats and estates. He took so active a part in the proceedings that a renomination was pressed upon him but he declined. In 1852 he was elected solicitor of the district of Moyamensing and also refused re-election to this office because of his pressing law business and that of Mr. Brewster who had gone to Europe leaving young Cassidy in charge. In 1854 the degree of A. M. was conferred upon him by Princeton college. In 1856 he was elected district attorney for the consolidated city. He sequired a high professional reputation by able management of homicide cases who had secured the leaders of the bar as counsel. After holding office a year he was displaced by cont s s of his election. Presiding Judge Thompson complimented him for his able and upright discharge of his duties. He had thoroughly identified himself withthe portion of the Democratic party opposed to the Kansas policy of Gen. Peirce and President Buchanan, and was elected delegate to the Charleston convention in 1869 where he was an ardent supporter of Douglas. He was one of the recognized leaders of that branch of the party. In 1862 he was again nominated for district attorney but although he ran far alsead of his ticket he was not elected. During the war he took an active part in raising tr

He was proprietor of the Day a Philadelphia penny paper. In 1883 Mr Cassidy, was appointed attorney general of Pennsylvania by Governor Pattison and justified his reputation for ability and vigor by attacking railroad abuses.

Hewas a delegate to the last national Democratic convention. He was considered by many of his colleagues and opponents at the bar "the ablest criminal lawyer in Pennsylvania and one of the best in the United States."

Among his students were many men now prominent. Judge Gordon and ex-Postmaster Harrity studied law in his office.

Dom Pedro submitted to the terms imposed on him by the new government, and agreed to leave the country within twenty-four hours after he received the notice at his summer palace at Petropolia. He was offered $2,500,000 in cash and provision for the rest of his life in the form of an annual pension of $450,000, which is to be provided for in the civil list of the new republic. He promptly accepted the offer, and came to Rio de Janeiro with his family last night to embark for Lisbon.

The imperial family at 3 o'clock this morning boarded the Brazilian gunboat Parnahyba, which was still flying the imperial flag in the harbor. The Parnahyba transferred the imperial party to the Alagoas, which steamed out of the harbor this forenoon, convoyed by the cruiser Riachuelo and the gunboat Parnahyba, bound for Lisbon.

The new flag of the United States of Brazil, which takes the place of the imperial emblem with its crown and coffee leaf, is composed of green and gold stripes, with a blue field, on which are emblazoned nine-teen stars.

Another dispatch says the imperial ministers have been placed under arrest and are kept in close confinement. The provisional government has guaranteed protection to the members of the imperial family. Senor Constant, the new minister of war, Senhor Bocayura, minister of foreign affairs, and Gen. da Fonseca virtually constitute the government. Gen. da Fonseca, the president, is the actual loader. He held command of the province of Matto Grosso and was recently punished for insubordination.

Doctor Barboza, the new ministers of finance, announces that all contracts entered into by the imperial government will be maintained.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.-Nothing bas been received at the state department today concerning the revolution in Brazil The failure to receive additional information leads the department officials to think that the cables have been seized. Otherwise representatives of the United States would doubtless have kept our government advised of the progress of events. Among navy officers no surprise was expressed it the news of the revolution. Commodore Ramsay, chief of the bureau of navigation, said that twenty years ago, when he was in Brazil, there was a general feeling that when Dom Pedro's reign ended a republi can form of government would be insti-tuted. Lieutenant Barry, who recently returned from Brazil, says that the change which has come to pass was openly talked of among Brazilians as probable to occur and they expected it at any time. To the people of Brazil, he said, it could not appear to have been sudden.

New York, Nov. 18.—Consul General De Mendoca, of the Brazilian government, arrived in this city from Washington today. In reply to questions he stated that so far he had received no official intelligence from home as to the revolution and was therefore unable to discuss the matter
