ADDRESS, THE INTELLIGENCER,

Lancaster, Pa.

LANCASTER, PA., November 20, 1889.

Down With the Squires.

It is not only in Laucaster that the squire has become a nuisance calling for abatement by the state. In Pittsburg three aldermen are under convic-tion for the practice of gross official abuses of the character so familiar to all come in contact with these socalled administrators of justice, especially in cities, where the opportunities for profitably abusing the office of the justice of the peace are greatest. Noriously the place is sought for its profit and quite as notoriously the profit is unlawfully and unrighteously swelled by many unscrupulous squires, who farm it for all it is worth. It is a particular characteristic of this practice to put the machinery of justice at the service of their employing patrons, and give the defendant no show at all of dgment. This is the mildest form of injustice practiced and the additions to it only cease with the exhausted power of the arm of the commonwealth that is given to these mercenaries to wield.

No observant citizen will question that the office of justice of the peace, in towns particularly, is no longer beneficent in its general administration; that its power is so often abused and its occupant is so often vile, that it should be abolished and a better system of administering justice be established. The Pittsburg suggestion is that the number of justices should be decreased ; which would be a step forward in the right way, as there are undoubtedly too many of these offices in all cities for the legitimate business open to them ; and the fewer the number the better chance probably of getting good men, and the certainty at least of removing some of the temptation to unduly stimulate their business. But a more radical change is needed. Fees, the prolific source of op-pression, must be abolished and salaries be substituted. And such care as can be taken should be used to secure upright, intelligent justices ; to which end it seems to us that it would be well that their selection and removal should be coufided to the county court. We doubt whether it is well that judicial officers, so close down to the people, should be dependent upon their suffrage for their place and be liable to the intimidation of those to whom they are called upon to apply the penaltics of the law.

The justices in the boroughs of the state clearly should be abolished and their powers be confided to courts of record, of which one would amply suffice for the needs of Lancaster. In the country the justice, if uscless, is generally barmless; but probably a good system would demand the division of every judicial district into a number of subordinate districts, of a certain population, each fitted out with a justice's court of record for the initial investigation of etermination of minor suits. It is right here at the egg of cases that the state will be particularly benefitted by an intelligent, honest and vigorous grappling with the matter. And who has not been disgusted with the inefficacy of our present mode of starting upon inquiry into crime; with the bungling inquest of the coroner, for instance, who is another officer of justice to be extinguished ?

trines. There are many who would read the first two or three chapters of "Progress and Poverty" and sponta-neously blossom as Georgeites. Perhaps there are more who would read the book thoughtfully, reap benefit and re-ject the radical doctrines, but they would not be heard from for some time, while the "hurrah boys" would stir things up at once. The whole career of this remarkable man shows this. In London and New York he first created great sensations which speedily calmed lown, and in both cities he has been widely studied and is still discussed, but has very few thorough followers. If the impetuous, combustible converts are only formed in comparatively small numbers and far apart there will be little to fear from Georgeism.

THE suppression of the grind organ is making a wonderful hubbub in New York city, and it appears that in the poorer quarters public feeling is very bitter. The Italians with their monkeys and organs seen to be the only bright element in many gloomy lives, and no doubt much hardhip and oppression would be more readily borne than this suppression of organ grinders. A deputation of Italians waited on Mayor Grant, on Tuesday, and their spokesman, Signeor Jimmio Oliverio, pushed a vast glossy shirt bosom and diamond pin in front of him and carried a glossy silk hat and a pair of steel pointed moustaches. This worthy wasted no time but got right down to business. 'Me wanta monk and org for Italian man," said Jimmio, and the ragged, miser-ble crowd behind him seconded the motion. The question of repeal of the law was referred to the law committee of the board of alderman. The Central Labor Union has protested against its repeal, but as most of the newspapers support the grinders and as public sympathy is excited by starvation and distress among them, they will no doubt succond.

In the bucolic district it is said that pigs foretell rain by carrying straws in their mouths. They must have become weary donning and doffing artificial whiskers in the past six months.

WALTER C. POTTER, who was shot a week ago at Providence, R. L. has a fine though painful joke on his doctors. They promptly declared that he was mortally wounded. They dug around after the bullet and failing to find, it declared his vitality wonderful and awaited the shuffling of his mortal coil with scientific interest. He declined to shuffle, and now the doctors admit that the bullet merely scooped out a bloody wound and glanced The man's wife says that she found the bullet sticking in a bed post and threw it away. Potter declares that he tried hard to die according to programme, but could not do it.

JOHN BOYLE O'RELLY, the poet, is one of the shining lights of Boston. Many years ago he was sent to Australia as a political convict on a twenty years' senence. He escaped, and after two years of hard life at sea landed in New England. After this experience he hardly feels well disposed towards things Australian, but he makes an exception in favor of the Australian system of voting, which he ardently favors. The poet is an enthusiastic Democrat, and a reporter who heard his praise of the system just tried in Mas sachusetts commented that it had not enabled the Democrats to win. "No," replied C'Reilly, " but we had a fair election, without let or hindrance from those who usually influence the ballot box where laboring men are employed. Boston is a Democratic city, but we lost 5,000 votes there because the Republicans made a trade with the liquor interests upon the license question, and cheated us out of our own. You see, the Republicans have the board of police and the granting of liquor licenses, Therefore, every liquor dealer wanted to anything they can get up here which will not poison them. The miners are misera-bly poor. The storekceper at Forty-Mile Creek had $15,000 of bad debts on his books this spring, and still, I am told, the man who comes into his store without a dollar gets as good treatment as the one who has the cash to pay for what he gets. He gets his money if the mines can make it, and if they don't, he loses it. These frontiersmen stand together and help each other through thick and thin. Last year a solitary miner was killed by an Indian over at Koejuluk river. He was the first one ever touched. A big band of miners travelled noarly 1,000 miles and hanged the Indian murderer, miles and hanged the Indian murderer, losing a whole season's work by their trip." This letter was mailed August 19, 1880. A second letter, bearing date of August 21,

"Times have been dreadfully hard with "Times have been dreadfully hard with the miners this year, and a great many of them have lost heart. It has rained nearly the whole spring and summer in this neighborhood, and in consequence the mountain streams have become torrents, washing out water-wheels, sluice-boxes, etc., and preventing the miners from doing anything. Wages are high, $$ when you work, but they work so little they would prefer $50 per month and grub. I don't expect to get any more letters out this year nor in the spring. I have no dogs, and therefore no way to send them."

A Centenarian's Diet. Walter Haynes, of Brimfield, Mass., on Tuesday celebrated his 100th birthday. He is in excellent health and does not look to be over 75. He never used liquor or tobacco, and attributes his longevity to boiled victuals and "Johnny cake."

HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA. What Is Catarrh

Catarrh is an inflammation of the nuccus membrane, and may affect the nesd, throat, stomach, bowels or bladder. But catarrh of the head is the most common, often coming on so gradually that it has a firm hold before the na-ture of the trouble is suspected. Catarrh is caused by a cold, or succession of colds, com-bined with impure blood. Its local symptoms are fullness and heat in the forehead, dryness in the nose and back part of the throat, and a disagreeable discharge from the nose. When the disease gains a firm hold and becomes chronic, it is "For several years I have been troubled with that terribly disagreeable disease, catarrh. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla with the very best re-sults. It cared me of that continual dropping in my throat, and stuffed-up feeling. It has also helped my mother, who has taken it for run down state of health and kidney trouble. I recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla to all as a good medicine." Mas. S. D. HEATS, Putnsm, Cons. "This certifies that I was cured of a bad case of catarth by Hood's Sarsaparilla two years

The eyes become inflamed and red, there is throb-" I have suffered with enterth in my head fo years, and paid out hundreds of dollars for medbing in the temples, ringing noises in the ears, headache, capricions appetite, and sometimes loss of sense, of smell and hearing. Hood's Sar-saparilla is the remedy for this ever increasing icines, but have heretofore received only temporary relief. Hood's Sarsaparilla helped me so much that my catarrh is nearly cured, the saparitia is the remedy for this ever increasing malady. It attacks at once the source of the disease by purifying and enriching the blood, which, as it reaches the delicate passages of the mucous membrane southes and rebuilds the tissues, giving them tendency to health instead of disease, and ultimately curing the affection. weakness of my body is all gone, my appetite is wagness of my doug is an autor, my appendix is good-in fact, I feel like another person. Cleveland to Business Men.

The speech of ex-President Cleveland to the New York Chamber of Commerce is worth the attention of all business men. Mr. Cleveland rarely talks without giving strong food for thought, and his suggestion that business men can protect their interests better by taking etive part in politics than by trying to influence congressional committees must commend itself to common sense. Many business men of the country have al lowed themselves to be used by unscrupulous politicians while they held aloof rom politics, and it is high time that their sad experience should teach them that if they would see business interests well guarded they must not be afraid to do some of the guarding. We do not want the occasional intrusion of a patriot of the cheap John Wanamaker variety, but the constant activity of honorable steady business men in the management of national affairs.

Coming right after the great Demoeratic victories this speech of the exsident must re-awaken the confidence and zeal of his admirers; and the enthusiasm of this representative non-partisan gathering of New York business men shows Cleveland far in the lead in the race of 1892.

Henry George Advertised.

Chief Justice F asley, of New Jersey has rendered an opinion by which Henry George secures a bequest of ten thousand dollars, and about that value in advertising, for the opinion is a fine George advertisement. The bequest of that amount, by one George Hastings, was for the purpose of disseminating his doctrines as published in his works, and Vice Chancellor Bird had declared the bequest illegal, because he believed the doctrines of George were against the iaw of the land. The chief justice finds nothing in the works of Henry George mpatible with the law of the land and believes that their circulation will stimulate thought with good results, ather than create error. Mr. George described as an ingenious and barned man, but his opinious and not endorsed. The wisdom of the decision will probably be widely restioned, but though the George theothes may seek to overthrow existing aws they cannot be considered incomtible with the law without establishing the principle that all movements for rm should be stifled ; a notion quite mworthy of discussion in this land of the speech and progress. Certainly the verts of George will stimulate thought, they have already done, but it may be doubted whether good results will be stanter up the Porcupine. We lost the governorship by 2,500 votes outside of Boston, and we should have had 5,000 majority in the city. This is the exact situation. But the Democratic fight was a great one, and we hope it will bear fruit in the future."

weight. Farewell Letter From the United States Near Women's Waiting Room Exploring Expedition.

The last news for at least a year of the government expedition for the survey of Alaska reached St. Louis on Monday in a letter to Patrick McGrath, father of John E. McGrath, one of the chiefs of the ex E. McGrath, one of the chiefs of the ex-ploring party. As the expedition was or-ganized by the United States government in order that a reliable survey of its most northern territory, and espe-cially its unexplored parts, might be ob-tained, miformation of the welfare and work of the party is of national interest.
