ADDRESS, THE INTELLIGENCER, Lancaster, Pa.

LANCASTER, PA., November 23, 1889.

The President and His Party. The Pittsburg Telegraph has been unding the effect of Harrison's admin-tration upon the Republican temper n the different states, and finds it to have been generally aggravating. The Telegraph's researches lead it to believe that Mr. Harrison is not held in that esteem by his party, in which it is becoming that its president should be held; and makes it clear that he could not to-day receive its presidential nom-

In this we do not find anything surprising, .nor anything that in itself is condemnatory of Mr. Harrison. It is rather creditable to him that this should be the Republican feeling towards him ; for it is to be noted that this feeling is that of the Republican politicians, and that the rank and file of the party are quite quiescent on the subject of their president and willing to give him a longer trial before they shrive and hang him. With the politi-cians the period of trial has passed and that of condemnation come.

The presidential offices have not been shelled out to them as they would have them come. The president has developed a disposition to make selections for office in some cases to suit himself; and this they regard as unallowable. To the senators of the party and the working politicians whom they are supposed to represent, the spoils belong, in the opinion of the fellows who demand them. It is an idea which is so ground into the politician's mind that it is quite impossible to deny it and expect him to be amiable under the contradiction. It is true that it reduces the presidential office to be a mere recording machine of the politician's purpose; but that is just as it should be, in the opinion of these men, who hold the weight of the nation to be upon their shoulders.

We have a great deal of sympathy with Mr. Harrison in his encounter with his political friends; and we would have a great deal more if they did not usually turn out to be his bosses. The president is too often defeated in his desire to be president to entitle him to the profoundest sympathy of those who see virtue struggling stoutly with vice.

Since the election we see that he has surrendered even the one ewe lamb that he sought to save from the clutches of the hawks, and that good Captain Walters, of Downingtown, has gone down, under the protest of the spoilsmen that there must be no poaching upon their preserve. To keep peace in the family another man was taken who says that he was not applicant for the office. Plainly Walters went only because the president selected him; and the lesson to be taught the chief magistrate by the Pennsylvania bosses was that he must mind his proper business and not dare to pick out men for office on his own account.

By the time the coming session of Congress is over we think that the president will have learned this lesson quite thoroughly. We do not see the evidence that he has the backbone to persist in his resolution to maintain his prerogative. He starts out well enough but gets into a limping and halting gait before he gets many miles in his course, as we find him dropping before the fire of the senator before the Senate meets, we may look to see him steadily on his knees early in the session. We are sorry for him ; but certainly the man who has the power to defend himself and lacks the mind, deserves no more than pity and cannot claim praise. It may be that we misjudge him and that he may recover himself in the extremity into which the session of Congress will put him; but we shall be surprised if we have hereafter anything of independence in this administration; whose promises of reform in civil service methods are shattered every time the politician's hammer gets a chance at

The Ambulance.

The distressing spectacle of the loading of an injured old man upon a business wagon was witnessed by many citizens on Friday who might very easily spare a little for the purchase of an ambulance. The INTELLIGENCER fund for the purpose has climbed to one hundred and twenty-three dollars and stands there a monument to the liberality of many poor peeple who promptly contributed in small amounts, and a reproach to many wealthy who have so far forgotten to send in anything.

We asked only for small amounts, but the trouble of remembering so small a matter seems to delay the contributions of many. We have opportunity to receive subscriptions for larger amounts even to the extent of the whole balance needed to buy a two hundred dollar ambulance, but we prefer small contributions. The of cash will be promptly checked on reaching the two hundred dollar mark and contributions of dimes, dollars or double eagles will be acknowledged in the order received until that figure is reached.

The ambulance is to be first-class in every respect and similar to those in use in leading hospitals and cities of the size of Lancaster. This is not an advertising scheme and no malicious critic can question the disinterested benevolence of this effort to provide a easy vehicle for the injured and a worthy charity for the people.

An Intellaite Meaning. Not all of the friends of our illustrious Wanamaker are Sunday school teachers, as appears from the remarks written by one of them in a copy of the New York Sun, in which was contained a sharp criticism upon the postmaster general. Upon the margin of the paper, along side the criticism, was written in distinct characters : "The writer of this article ought to go to hell."

This criticism upon the critic may have been wise or otherwise; it may have been a mere ebullition of passion; or it may have really meant to say that one who could so artistically treat the case of Wanamaker, ought to descend into hell to find further fit subjects for when he indulges himself in a sugges-tion so indefinite as that another ought to go to bell, without more particularly saying, "what for; but it is clear enough we suppose, that such a man is not an orthodox Sunday school leader, teacher or scholar, it being understood to be a first teaching of the Sunday school that all such allusions to hell are to be avoided. And we therefore conclude that the postmaster general has admirers among those who are not truly plous; a fact which we have, however, had otherwise abundant reason to realize.

It is hard to say what a man means

THERE have been so many natural gas accidents of late that it is rather gratifying to find the Pittsburg papers talking of the speedy exhaustion of that fuel. It will be a great loss in cleanliness, but otherwise the town will not suffer greatly, and will gain safety that does not seem to be easily attainable with gas, because carelessness i perilous and people will be careless. In the manufacturing establishments when natural gas goes out artificial gas will come in, and there will be a huge consumption of coal in making it.

Some travelers from a northern land were journeying through a forest in Spain where clearings were few, and the wild luxuriance of vegetation limited the scene and established a gloomy twilight even in the full blaze of noon. The wilderness was silent. There were faint, almost inaudible sounds; the tread of a rabbit's padded foot, the rustle of a leaf far up near the sunlight All at once there came through the forest sound that to the travelers was unearthly, strange and terrible. Like the blast of a mighty trumpet it rose and fell and rose again, and called unnumbered echoos to its aid until the very earth seemed trembling with the rushing waves of sound. In trembling awe they fell upon their knees and cried: "It is the last trump of Gabriel!" Their guide turned calmly and replied: "No, it is a jackass!" and turning an angle in the road they came upon a clearing, where they saw a mild-eyed, long-eared jack just recovering from the recoil of his last blast. This fable will be appreciated by the few readers of the New Era who may have read its editorial bray over its Saturday issue. The New Era to-day begins the publication of "Lucy, the Village Girl of Lancaster." This statement is made out of sympathy, for the evident distress of our contemporary which forces it to advertise itself at length in its own editorials, and to issue curious hand-bills and posters. The manuscript of "Lucy, the Village Girl of Fairfield," was first brought to the INTEL-LIGENCER office, but this paper is not in the habit of imposing advertisements in disguise upon its readers, a practice to which our contemporary is addicted.

THERE are four English steamship lines and one each from France, Germany, Spain and the United States, running to Colon, Panama. Of the sixty-seven ships of these lines forty are English and only three American, the other nations named having eight steamers each in the service. And yet we consider the isthmus our own particular stamping ground and would be much aggrieved if any other nation should seek supremacy there.

CONSUL RAIMER reports from Santiago de Cuba that the iron mining industry there is second only in importance to the sugar business and is entirely in the hands of Americans. The Juraqua Iron company, limited, of Philadelphia, Major Luther S. Bent, of Steelton, Pa., president, owns seventeen mines covering a thousand acres. The capital invested is placed at two and a quarter millions and the company employes twelve hundred men in the mines and two hundred on the railroad running to Santiago. Ore is shipped to the Bethlehem Iron company and the Pennsylvania Steel company in steamers which are nearly all under the British flag. The company's railroad is twenty-four miles long, counting branches and sidings. The consul says: "This enterprise, commenced some five years since, has been of immense advantage, both financially and industrially, to this province. * * * Of the proposed opening of new mines by an American company a later dispatch will speak." The consul also talks of the discovery of enormous beds of liquid asphaltum on the north coast of the Island.

Money is tight and Secretary Windom says nothing. The Prohibitionists should flercely oppose an administration that tole-rates financial inebriety.

A MANIAC ON HIS WEDDING DAY. $10,000, Result of Toll, Stolen From an Expectant Bridegroom.

Expectant Bridegroom.

A very sad story has come to light in Sioux City. On Thursday, which was to have been his wedding day, E. Perry was declared insane. Two years ago Perry bade his affianced good-bye and left for Wisconsin to join a party of railroad surveyors, hoping to earn enough money to secure his expectant bride a home. He had bought property and a final payment hung over a clear title. He expected to return with the money necessary to secure his little property from debt, and enough to celebrate in a fitting way the greatest to celebrate in a fitting way the greatest event of a man's life. He toiled with his hope before him.

A lew weeks ago the work was drawing to a close, and he with others of the party, intrusted the collection of the greatest part of his earnings to one of the party who was delegated to go to Minneapolis and bring back the wages. But the fellow, after seearing the money—in the neighborhood of $10,000—decamped for parts unknown, and Perry bad to return to Sioux City penniess and without hope of saving his home from the hands of the mortgagee. Last Sunday evening he was visiting at the home of his betrothed. His misfortune preyed upon his mind, and in the presence of the girl he had hoped to wed his reason left him. He became a violent maniac, and on the day set for his wedding he was carried away raving to the asylum at Clarearing the money-in the neighborhood of earried away raving to the asylum at Clar-

A Successful Straw Binder. The Illinois State Grange last spring of-fered $10,000 for a successful and practical machine or attachment to bind grain with straw. There were 40 competitors, and atraw. There were 40 competitors, and one machine was deemed entirely satisfactory. For this invention the grange tendered the $10,000 to the inventor, but he declined to deed his device to the State Grange for that amount, having had much larger offers. The report of the committee appointed by the grange says: "This binder seems perfect in all its parts, more simple and easier to operate than the twine binder."

It doesn't do a bit of good to take a twelve mile promenade in a foorteen foot room with the baby, and sing or declaim: "Hootehle, pootchie, pudden and pie." Use Dr. Bull's Bahy Syrup and be done with it. Any druggist will sell it to you for 25 cents.

It is convenient to have always on hand some simple remedy for bowel complaint and pain in the stomach. Those affections yield readily to a few doses of Laxador, Price 25 cents. At all druggists.

Or plain, or beautiful, the while, No lady can afford to smile, Unless her teeth are like the snow And if she fall in this. And can't afford to smile or kiss, She must use SOZODONT, I trow.

Redly the firelight shines through the room, Chasing away all the shadow and gloom: Light-hearted children are prattling in giee; Father is as happy as can be. For the wife and mother who suffered so long is getting her health back and soon will be strong.

Is getting her health back and soon will be strong.
And who is so happy as she is to-night.
As she talks of the shadow that's taken its flight—
The shadow of di case that darkens so many homes, and makes the life of wife and mother one of territie suffering. How pleased we are to know that at last a remedy has been found for all those delicate derangements and weaknesses peculiar to women. It comes to cheer has nomes with "glad tidings of great joy." Dr. Pierce's Favorits Prescription has don' for women what no other remedy has done, or can do, and it i not to be wondered at that women who have been caired by it are so enthusiastic in its praise. It is the only medicine for women sold, by druggists, under a positive guarantee from the manufacturers of satisfaction, or money returned.

HOODEBARBAPARILLA.

Catarrh in the Head is a complaint which affects nearly everybody, more or less. It originates in a cold, or succession of colds, combined with impure blood. Disagreeable flow from the nose, tickling in the throat, offensive breath, pain over and between the eyes, ringing and bursting noises in the ears, are the more common symptoms. Catarrh is cured by flood's Barsaparilla, which strikes directly at its cause by removing all impurities from the blood, building up the diseased tissues and giving healthy tone to the whole system. Hundreds of testimonials prove beyond question that a positive cure for catarrh is found in
