That Hasty Grant. The councils seem to have been very easily convinced that it was a good hing for the city to have the street cars run by power from electric wires suspended over the tracks from poles laced on the sidewalks; as they gave he permission, to the persons who came here from abroad to ask for it, with promptitude upon hearing of the system; and if these state-ments are true, the proposed motor is preferable to horse power for the owners of the railroads, and also for the elty. It is not well, however, to accept with unquestioning faith the statements of promoters of new projects, and in all cases it is right to consider well before acting. The decision of councils may not turn out in this case to have been wrong, but they have certainly not acted with due deliberation; and if they have not made a mistake they will have more reason to bless their luck than their wis-

From what we have understood of this motor system we are inclined to the pinion that it is a good one; but it is t clear that the overhead suspension of the electric wires is a necessity and that this objectionable feature of the system would not be obviated at a rea-sonable cost to the proprietors. As to this matter councils should have condered further. And they also should have considered whether they might not have secured some special concessions to the city for the privileges they were asked for. They might have secured, for instance, the abolition of the turn-outs, by requiring a return line for the cars to be laid on a different street from the outgoing line, and they might have obtained a car tax or other value for the grant of the privilege of using a cheaper motor than horses.

Possibly the councils thought that sufficient advantages accrued to the city in the more frequent running of the cars that is promised; but we do not see that they made this addi-tional accommodation a stipulation of their grant; which appears to have en made without qualification. Nor do they seem to have been advised even as to the parties who were getting the privileges from them, and as to who the men are, who, under the deal with the car companies, remain in the ownership and control of the corpe-rations. A little more light on this matter would have been desirable. And considerably more consideration would have been becoming. It need not have been taken for granted that a bargain that was satisfactory to the car city to agree to off-hand.

We do not know that councils jumped wrong in their grant, but clearly they jumped in a big hurry.

The Gymnasium

The movement for a gymnasium took splendid start last evening and a great al is said about it in the news columns, but, as the bard of Avon has it, "The thing done avails and not what's said about it." If the enthusiasm and vim of the first rush towards this worthy goal is not kept up by persistent agita-tion the fair promise of to-day may not be easily fulfilled. Our thrifty men of siness and affairs must be brought to consider the far reaching results that may flow from this easy enterprise. The foot ball team and the college athletes, not only advertise the college, but also the town. They may make it widely known as a pleasant and healthful city of homes, where nature gives health and plenty and a venerable institution of learning exercises a social influence towards refinement and culture. The "gym," as the students call it, should be presented to the college as a token of the city's appreciation of the work of that institution and as a means of further veloping its usefulness and its value

Judge Brewer. The president has made an excellent selection for the supreme bench in promoting to it Judge David J. Brewer, of the Kansas circuit. It is somewhat remarkable that Judge Brown, of the Michigan court, who has been named as s probable selection for the place, and who would also have been a very creditable one, was a classmate of Judge Brewer, at Yale college, where they graduated in 1856. The plan of filling the supreme bench from the best material in the circuit and district courts is a very good one, as it is well that a judge should be tried on the lower ench before promotion to the higher; and it furthermore stimulates the judges below by holding out the prize of an oporable ambition.

Judge Brewer has gained a high reputation on the bench, and has shown that no mistake could be made in putting him into the highest tribunal in the country, which he has the vigor of years and of mind to adorn.

The Silver Chief. The report of the secretary of the treasury is not so colorless a paper as the president's message; however wrong its positions there is no trouble in recognizing them as positions. The secretary takes the party ground in favor of high tariff and subsidies and other iniquities; but has particularly distinguished himself by getting into the lead of the silver band, whose pet scheme of free coinage he knocks on the head only to give them a scheme for free bullion of his own, that is better for them than theirs. He proposes that all the silver offered to the governall the silver offered to the government shall be bought by it, at the market price, which he is to fix, and that the government notes shall be given for the amount. The bullion is to be stored by the government, and held until the notes are persented for payment; when they are to be paid in silver at the market value at the law of presentation.

It is clear enough that this scheme source the silver producer a steady contours in the government for all the allver be produces. He needs but to deliver it, to get his money for it. And it is clear that the currency will be increased to the extent of the silver production, and and that no one can know what it will be swelled to. There is no limitation upon it save the capacity for silver production. The silver is turned into money as soon as it can go from the mill to the mint, and without even the delay of coinage. It is free silver money to the last limit of the idea; and the secretary would do better for the silver producers than they have sought to do for themselves. So ready a way of do for themselves. So ready a way of turning silver into cash could not be beaten; and if it goes through it will be appropriately followed by a law to turn metal and copper into money in the like easy way, by selling all the nickel and copper product to the treasury at the market price and receiving currency notes for it redeemable in the metal, at the market price when redemption is asked for.

FORAKER denies that any reflection can rest upon him in the ballot box forgery matter. Whether he is or is not innocent his attempt to make political capital of the forgery shows him to be the meanest of unprincipled politicisms. That forgery business is the nail in his political coffin.

WHEN doctors disagree they should not use their guns. In Birmingham, Ala., on Tuesday night, two pill manipulators had a dispute in a meeting of the medical society. On the street the quarrel was re-newed, which led to the shooting of Chew by Davis. Chew is dying. The quarrel arose over a difference about proper treat-ment of kidney diseases. Both are young men and highly successful practitioners.

A MYSTERIOUS FORCE.

Louis Hamburger's Power of Making Itouis Hamburger's Power of Making Things Adhere to His Finger Tips.
The Baltimore Sun has a long account of a remarkable force shown by Louis Hamburger, a young student of chemistry in the Maryland College of Pharmacy. It seems to resemble the remarkable power claimed by Lulu Hurst and other Georgia girls some years ago and never explained to the satisfaction of scientists. "When she appeared in Baltimore by placing her hand on a billiard cue and giving no evidence of muscular effort, she resisted sthe combined pulling of three or four men. She was also able to lift and repel many objects by touching them. But all these wonders ultimately failed, and all had to be withdrawn from the stage. Miss Hurst would not submit to scientific examination of her powers, although offered every inducement by such men as Prof. Simon Newcomb, of the Johns Hopkins University." Louis Hamburger is not exhibiting as a mystery or freak. He is only sixteen and small for his years. His feats are thus described:

The first experiment was to place a number of pins around the palm of his hands and on the tips of his fuggers. On holding Things Adhere to His Finger Tips.

described:

The first experiment was to place a number of pins around the palm of his hands and on the tips of his fingers. On holding the palms vertically the pins are found to drop only after a long time. He next showed his ability to pick up from the table by pressing his dry finger tips against it any highly-polished, smooth body, such as a pencil or pen. Much more striking, however, was the manner in which the pen, held perpendicularly, would stick to his fingers.

He touched his finger pads against a glass tube three-quarters of an inch in diameter, and they stuck with such force that as he pulled them away from it, one after another, there was a click. The end of the tube thus raised was freighted with a plaster-of-Paris block, and on this were gradually piled leaden weights until 2,450 grains (5) pounds) was reached. This he was able to raise with open palms and without much effort. A variety of other metallic tubes were held fast in the same manner.

Prof. Wm. Simon of the Maryland Col-

Prof. Wm. Simon, of the Maryland Col-Prof. Wm. Simon, of the Maryland College of Pharmacy, has developed what ever strength and remarkable powers the young man displays from the very smallest beginnings. He has hopes of making him perform yet more wonderful feats. At present he is engaged experimenting with him in a scientific manner in order to present the case in a technical journal. Mr. Hamberger, accompanied by his preceptor, will give an exhibition of his remarkable powers before the Scientific association of the Johns Hopkins University.

SENATOR REAGAN'S BILL.

Severe Punishment For Those Conducting Trusts-Points of the Measure. Senator Reagan's bill provides for the abolition of trusts, as being unlawful and inimical to the interest of the people. One section of the bill reads thus:

"A trust is a combination of capital, skill or acts, by two or more persons, firms, corporations or association of persons, or of any two or more of them, for either, any or all of the following purposes:

either, any of all of the following purposes:

"To create or carry out any restrictions in trade. To limit or reduce the production, or to increase or reduce the price of merchandise or commodities. To prevent competition in the manufacture, making, purchase, sale or transportation of merchandise, produce or commodities. To fix a standard or figure, whereby the price to the public shall be in any manner controlled or established, of any article, commodity, merchandise, produce or commerce intended for sale, use or consumption. stomach, howels or bladder. But catarrh of the head is the most common, often coming or so gradually that it has a firm hold before the na-ture of the trouble is suspected. Catarrh is caused by a cold, or succession of colds, com-bined with impure blood. Its local symptoms are fullness and heat in the forehead, dryness in the nose and back part of the throat, and a disagreeable discharge from the nose. When the disease gains a firm hold and becomes chronic, it is being liable to develop into consumption. The eyes become inflamed and red, there is throbbing in the temples, ringing noises in the ears, headache, capricious appetite, and sometimes loss of sense, of smell and hearing. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the remedy for this ever increasing malady. It attacks at once the source of the disease by purifying and enriching the blood, which, as it reaches the delicate passages of the mucous membrane soothes and rebuilds the tissues, giving them tendency to health instead of disease, and ultimately curing the affection.
